U.N. Assembly seeks to help poor nations

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Delegates to the special United Nations General Assembly have assigned top priority to measures aimed at helping the poorest countries stave off economic ruin.

But they can't agree on where the money for the immediate special measures is coming from.

The "working party" of the Assembly's special economic session decided Wednesday night that various proposals for easing the present hardships of needy countries should be taken up ahead of longer-range matters.

Chairman Eustace Seignoret of Trinidad-Tobago asked for specific proposals in writing for the discussion starting today, midpoint of the special session.

A cabinet minister from Sri Lanka told the assembly that fuel, food and fertilizer price rises have brought "some developing countries...including my own...to the brink of a disaster."

It is a disaster "which could not merely imperil economic development programs but which could even threaten the very foundations of their social and political order... Some measures of urgent and immediate relief must be found while the ultimate solution is being sought," said Felix Dias Bandaranaike, the Asian island nation's minister of public administration, local government, home affairs and justice.

Bandaranaike said his country must pay 300 per cent more than it did in 1973 for oil, 162 per cent more for fertilizer and 170 per cent more for rice and flour.

Proposals have been submitted or are expected from Iran, France, Japan, Romania, Zaire, West Germany, Ivory Coast, Argentina, Algeria, the United States and Italy.

But there is a basic conflict over the main source of new funds to feed and fuel the approximately 30 poorest countries hit hardest by rising oil and fertilizer prices. Their added costs through the end of 1975 have been estimated at from $9.5 billion to $12 billion.

The industrialized countries are asking the oil exporting nations to contribute generously of their new wealth. Major Middle East oil nations have replied at the assembly that prime responsibility rests with the advanced nations.

Council reviews salary changes

A proposal for an improvement in the salaries and benefits for city employes was reviewed by members of Washington C.H. City Council at a special session Thursday morning in the City Office Building.

City Manager Dan Wolford said the pay increase proposal was presented to Council members for review by Hugh S. Patton and Ralph Cook, who comprise Council's personnel committee.

Wolford said he will be reviewing and discussing the package with various city department heads before legislation is prepared for Council's final consideration of the proposal.

No details on the contents of the salary increase and benefit proposal were released.

Talking trash can swallows garbage, says 'Thank You'

BROOKVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — He talks, he sings, he makes slightly risque suggestions and he swallows garbage.

He's Arthur, the talking trash can. His inventor thinks a kind word from Arthur encourages people to fill him with garbage rather than dump it where it doesn't belong.

Arthur's voice is a tape cassette, activated when trash is stuffed into the 45-gallon can.

Hamad said he has five different tapes for Arthur. Several say, "Thank you," one plays music and another makes random noises.

And then there is what Hamad calls the "X-rated tape."

Hamad says it's "kind of corny, but says things like, 'Meet me up in your room in 10 minutes with a whip and a prune danish.'"

But Hamad says a simple "thank you" seems to work best.

Arthur is a standard plastic trash can. There is a face painted on the lid, with blond hair, blue eyes and yellow teeth. The teeth surround a plastic mouth attached by a hinge, through which garbage is deposited.

When the mouth is pushed, the cassette is activated.

Hamad says he placed Arthur in a college dining hall for about four hours one day.

For the first hour, the cassette was turned off, and only 20 persons stuffed garbage in Arthur.

For the next three hours, the cassette was turned on and "a few hundred people" used Arthur, Hamad said.

But Hamad says Arthur has been used only for about 15 hours and more data is needed to confirm his theory that people are more likely to use trash cans if the can talks back, and to determine whether the novelty will wear off.

"Basically it's an example of behavior modification, it's merely a mild form of reward," Corey said.

Hamad says some students have had trouble coping with Arthur, the gabby garbage collector.

"One person had keys in his hand and he thought it was a regular garbage can," Hamad said. "He was sort of taken aback by the response the can gave him. He dropped his keys in it and we had to take the whole thing apart to get his keys back."

Glenn OKs debate with Metzenbaum

By The Associated Press

U.S. Senate candidate John Glenn accepted his opponent's challenge Wednesday to public debates, but he promised U.S. Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, he would press hard on the issue of "openess and candor" in financial disclosures.

In response, Metzenbaum, on the campaign trail in Canton, said he "is anxious to ask Col. Glenn a few questions about his finances, too."

Glenn said he would debate Metzenbaum April 25 on WEWS-TV in Cleveland, May 1 at the Cincinnati Communications Coalition and May 3 at the Cleveland City Club.

"I believe the public's right to see the candidates for the Democratic nomination discuss issues on the same platform should not be impaired any longer by Howard's refusal to make a complete financial disclosure," Glenn said.

Responded Metzenbaum: "I am pleased that John Glenn has partially capitulated on the issue of free and open debate. But he is still running away from making himself available in Columbus, Toledo and Dayton."

Glenn earlier had accepted a date to debate Metzenbaum in Cleveland, then changed his mind saying he would only participate in a debate if Metzenbaum disclosed his federal income tax returns for 1969-72.

Glenn said Wednesday the same provision goes for any dedates other than the three he listed.

Both candidates disclosed their federal and state income tax returns for 1973, but Metzenbaum has refused to disclose prior income tax forms claiming they include information about private individuals who have not waived their rights to privacy.

Earlier in the year Metzenbaum released financial information which he said should clear up any questions about conflicts of interest.

Metzenbaum and Glenn both were scheduled to be in Cleveland tonight for fund-raising dinners.

In other Ohio politics, state Sen. Tony P. Hall, D-6 Dayton, candidate for secretary of state, blasted the Republican incumbent for a 24-year record of perpetuating "outdated election practices." Hall charged that Secretary of State Ted W. Brown "has consciously maintained practices which systematically deny the right to register and vote to thousands of Ohioans."

The unopposed Republican incumbent said his office for years has "been responsible for legislation that makes it easier to register and vote."

Mideast crisis worsens

Egypt threatens to join fighting

By The Associated Press

Israeli planes bombed and strafed Syrian positions on strategic Mt. Hermon again today, Egypt hinted it might join the battle, and another terrorist explosion erupted in a Tel Aviv suburb, injuring 13 persons, officials reported.

The Israeli planes scrambled following artillery barrages aimed at Israeli troops occupying the 9,232-foot mountaintop, often described as Israel's Middle East eyes, an Israeli spokesman said.

At the same time Syrian gunners also opened up on Israeli forces in the southern sector of the 300-square-mile Syrian enclave captured last October, the Israelis said. But the Syrians charged the Israelis with firing first.

It was the second straight day Israeli planes were called into action and the fourth time in a week.

Israel has held all high ground on Hermon since the October war. From the craggy windswept top viewers can see Damascus and beyond, the Israelis say.

In Cairo, War Minister Ahmed Ismail said Egypt would fight alongside the Syrians if the situation on the Golan Heights became critical.

Ismail, who is commander in chief of the armies of both Syria and Egypt, said: "If the fighting became more serious or the situation became critical, no doubt we will take part."

In the Tel Aviv surburban village of Pardes Katz, an Israelimade hand grenade exploded, wounding 12 Arabs and one Jew, the Israeli military command reported.

The blast came as Israel sirens marking the annual day of mourning for six million Jews slaughtered by the Nazis in World War II, and less than 24 hours after the body of a Jerusalem taxi driver was found wired tt a booby trap.

Guerrilla sabotage bombs have been going off in Israel almost daily for the past few weeks.

The Israeli military command reported a one-hour air attack on the Mt. Hermon range Wednesday but gave no details. It said all the planes returned to their bases.

Steel prices likely to rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Director John T. Dunlop of the Cost of Living Council says an estimated 13.6 per cent increase in costs for the nation's steel firms will result in sharply rising steel prices.

"We expect prices to increase substantially," Dunlop told a news conference Wednesday.

Steel companies will be free to raise prices without government interference when wage and price controls expire April 30.

"We think there will be rather substantial inflationary pressures in the economy growing out of steel prices," Dunlop said.

He noted that the pending price increases would be on top of the 9.2 per cent hikes already allowed the steel industry during the Phase 4 controls program.

The 13.6 per cent increase in costs projected by the steel companies would be for the period from Jan. 31 to July 31, according to Dunlop.

Simon to tackle inflation problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — The country's high inflation rate will replace the energy crisis as the number one challenge for William E. Simon, President Nixon's choice as his fourth secretary of the Treasury.

Nixon named the 46-year-old millionaire and former Wall Street investment banker to succeed economist George P. Shultz, who steps down in May after nearly two years at the Treasury Department helm.

Simon has served since December as head of the Federal Energy Office. The White House said he will be succeeded as energy administrator by his deputy, John C. Sawhill, 37.

Simon's appointment as Treasury secretary is expected to touch off a struggle among Nixon's economic advisers to gain a portion of the considerable influence over economic policy-making held by Shultz.

Nixon said he would take a more active hand himself in economic planning and will head the important Council on Economic Policy, a post previously held by Shultz.

Other positions held by Shultz that will not go to Simon include assistant to the President for domestic and international economic policy, which will remain unfilled for the time being, and chairman of the Cost of Living Council, a position of declining influence that will be filled on an interim basis by council director John T. Dunlop.

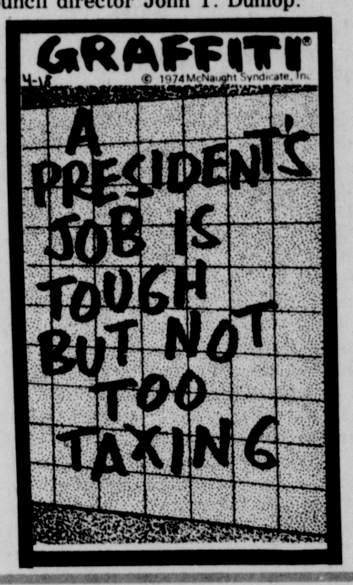
Sources say that Simon will face a difficult challenge in the international policy-making arena from Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who Monday showed his interest in this field in an important statement on U.S. foreign economic policy delivered to the United Nations in New York.

But Simon is said by aides to feel the major problem facing him as Treasury secretary will be the country's worsening inflation rate, which saw consumer prices rise 8.8 per cent last year, and at a 12 per cent rate during the first two months of this year.

Simon is said to generally support the approach to inflation followed by Shultz, including steps to increase agricultural supplies combined with conservative spending and money supply policies.

Like Shultz, Simon is cool to economic controls.

Simon likely will give additional details on his thinking on ways of combatting inflation when he appears before the Senate Finance Committee for confirmation hearings, expected early next week.



Nixon pledges Latin trade

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has pledged efforts to lower U.S. trade barriers with Latin America and said he will encourage American private investment in the region.

Serving as host for 24 Latin American foreign ministers at a White House dinner Wednesday night, Nixon listed trade and private investment as two essential ingredients for overcoming Latin America's development problems.

On private investment, one of the most sensitive areas in inter-American relations, Nixon said, "we recognize that each government has the sovereign right to determine the rules for investors in its country, but we also believe that private investment is the richest potential source of technology, capital and organizational skills the developing world needs."

The ministers dined with Nixon after spending the afternoon in private, informal consultations with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

4 dozen solons on junkets

By DAVID C. MARTIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — While Congress is in recess, nearly four dozen senators and representatives are traveling overseas at taxpayer expense — "feeding at the trough" as one State Department official put it. Many are accompanied by their wives.

The legislators are members of delegations to international conferences in Romania, Malaysia, Korea and Taiwan.

Their itineraries also include stops in Paris, Athens, Istanbul, Singapore and Hong Kong. They travel in Air Force planes, and at each stop are eligible for $75 a day spending money.

On two of the trips, the congressional delegations will meet with legislators from other countries to "talk and pass resolutions on international topics of the day," said the State Department official who asked not to be named. A third group will look on as observers while outgoing Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz participates in the annual meeting of the Asian De Development Bank in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia.

On all three trips, some wives are going along "for protocol reasons," said an aide to Rep. Melvin Price, D-Ill. Price and his wife are part of a 50-person delegation headed by House Majority Leader Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill, D-Mass., attending interparliamentary conferences in South Korean and Taiwan.

The State Department handles arrangements for most overseas trips but refers all queries concerning itineraries to Capitol Hill.

Asked why the State Department would not release unclassified information relating to travel at public expense, one department official explained that "their first allegiance is to the congressmen, and you don't want to be running around advertising that your principals are feeding at the trough."

Members of the O'Neill delegation are stopping off for two days in Hong Kong, with the option of a side trip to Saigon, on the way to South Korea and Taiwan. Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., and his wife went along because "Mo thought it'd be a fun trip," an aide said.

The group of 19 senators and congressmen, plus wives and staff members, attending the annual meeting of the Interparliamentary Union in Bucharest, Romania, are going by way of Greece, Turkey and Bulgaria, a memo to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee says, and will fly to Paris for the weekend before returning home.

Demo election wins to shape strategies

Their collective clout in Washington doesn't add up to much. They are, after all, the most junior members of the House of Representatives.

But the way they got there will be a significant factor in shaping campaign strategy in both political parties for the congressional election season just ahead.

For they are the men who won the special House elections of 1974, all in what had been safely Republican districts. All but Californian Lagomarsino are Democrats.

"No Republican should assume he has a safe seat any more," said Sen. Robert P. Griffin of Michigan, the Senate GOP whip.

Democrat Traxler's victory in the Saginaw, Mich., area made it four out of five for Democrats — and while the White House said President Nixon was not disheartened, some Republicans who will be running in November obviously were.

"It appears some Democrats are riding the President's coattail to Washington," said Republican Gov. William G. Milliken of Michigan, where VanderVeen earlier captured another traditionally GOP House seat.

In each of the five special elections, the issues raised had included national and area economic problems, Watergate and the President himself.

Although Nixon spent a day campaigning for Traxler's Republican opponent, the White House maintained that the President had not become the big issue in Tuesday's election.

No one can prove or disprove that Nixon's situation was behind the Republican defeats there and elsewhere. But each of the districts involved went Republican by a landslide margin in 1972, before the scandals unfolded.

Together, the five elections point to a protest vote aimed at the Republican White House.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., who is running for re-election this year, said he was concerned about a backlash against all Republicans because of Watergate.

Vice President Gerald R. Ford said the trend in the special elections pointed to an overwhelming Democratic majority in the House next year. "One party control is not good for America," Ford said.

That, and the comments of other Republicans about the danger of damage to the two-party system itself, sound a good deal like the GOP comeback theme that followed landslide congressional losses in the 1964 presidential defeat of Sen. Barry Goldwater.

Greece and Turkey dispute oil rights in Mediterranean

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — The armed forces of Greece and Turkey have been quietly put in a state of preparedness because of the controversy between their governments over oil rights in the Aegean Sea and Cyprus, informed sources reported today.

Travelers arriving from Turkey reported "unusual military activity," including tanks and other armor in operation, on both sides of the 125-mile border.

The Greek navy also was reported in a state of readiness. The government announced it was sending only one destroyer to take part in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization manuevers that began today off the western Italian coast.

A pro-government Athens newspaper accused the Turkish government of "issuing threats of war" in demanding oil prospecting rights in the Aegean and the creation in Cyprus of a federation of the Turkish and Greek Cypriot communities.

"Turkey is mobilizing the masses and is almost demanding the re-establishment of the Ottoman Empire, the setting of the Turkish flag on the Acropolis and the governing of Greece by some fat pasha," said Eleftheros Kosmos, apparently speaking on behalf of the Greek military regime.

Turkey began demanding oil rights in the Aegean after oil was discovered off the Greek island of Thassos, in the northeast Aegean. Greece claims that each of the 1,250 Greek islands in the Aegean — some of which are in sight of the Turkish mainland — has its continental shelf, in effect making the Aegean a Greek lake.

Woman, 76 admits sale of heroin

NORRISTOWN, Pa. (AP) — A 76-year-old woman who came to court in a wheelchair and admitted selling heroin has been sentenced to six years of unsupervised probation by a judge who liked her cooking.

Judge Frederick B. Smillie, recalling fondly how much he'd enjoyed Blanche Smith's food when she ran a local restaurant, handed down the decision in Montgomery County Court on Wednesday.

"If it can be used for the vice president of the United States, it can be used for you," Smillie told Mrs. Smith, referring to the sentence of unsupervised probation.

Mrs. Smith had pleaded guilty to charges of selling heroin to state police undercover agents.

State police said they raided her home three times in 1972 and each time they found heroin.

"I don't believe you were engaged in drug traffic," the judge told her. "Your son who is downstairs on a murder charge used you as a fall guy. You collected the money that he finally got."

Mrs. Smith's son Donald is in jail awaiting trial on charges of murder and drug trafficking.

Before sentencing, prosecutor Theodore Swain asked the judge: "The problem is, what do we do with a 76-year-old heroin pusher?"

"You don't really believe she is a pusher, do you?" the judge replied.

aboard the plane carrying Secretary Shultz and will spend time in the Philippines, Indonesia and Singapore before arriving in Kuala Lumpur next week for the two-day meeting of the Asian Development Bank.

The cost of the foreign travel will remain largely hidden from public view. Flights aboard Air Force planes disappear into the mammoth Pentagon budget while the State Department absorbs much of the cost incurred by various U.S. embassies charged with entertaining the visiting congressmen.

The $75 a day in expense money also is furnished by the State Department in the form of U.S. owned foreign currencies. Members are required to make public the amount of these so-called "counterpart funds" spent in each country, but records of past accountings give little indication of what the money actually was spent on.

Members are required to make public the amount of these so-called "counterpart funds" spent in each country, but records of past accountings give little indication of what the money actually was spent on.

There also are incidental expenses such as a Navy doctor reportedly assigned to travel with the O'Neill delegation as "physician in attendance" and the cost of innoculations administered without charge to members prior to their departure.

Regardless of what budget the money comes from, all expenses are met with funds originally authorized and appropriated by Congress. "It's a nowin situation," the State Department official said. "It's all money appropriated by the self-same congressmen who are spending it."

Patty Hearst bank holdup role still subject of dispute

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Was Patricia Hearst forced to take part in the Symbionese Liberation Army bank robbery?

Everyone from the U.S. attorney general to the governor of California seems to have a different opinion.

U.S. Atty. Gen. William Saxbe told a Washington news conference Wednesday he personally thought that Miss Hearst "was not a reluctant participant in this robbery."

He labeled the SLA a group of "common criminals" and said he included Miss Hearst "as part of them."

Miss Hearst was abducted Feb. 4. In the last communique from the SLA, which claimed it kidnaped her, Miss Hearst scorned her parents and said she had joined her captors.

The FBI has issued a warrant for Miss Hearst's arrest as a material witness to Monday's armed holdup at a Hibernia Bank branch, in which five bandits who identified themselves as members of the SLA stole $10,690. Two bystanders were shot during the getaway.

Authorities said Miss Hearst was identified as one of the five from automatic photographs taken in the bank during the holdup.

Miss Hearst's father, newspaper executive Randolph A. Hearst, refused to comment on Saxbe's remarks, except to call them "speculation."

In Sacramento, Gov. Ronald Reagan said he believed Miss Hearst acted under duress — "There still is no conclusive proof that she was there or participating of her own free will."

U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr. said a federal grand jury is reviewing the evidence and might issue indictments by next week.

Edward Shea, 66, a guard at the bank, said the woman identified as Miss Hearst took an active role in the holdup, "giving orders and all that, saying she would shoot the first guy that moved.

"She wasn't scared. She let it be known that she meant business. She had a gun and looked ready to use it."

After studying the photographs, Miss Hearst's mother, Catherine, said she wasn't convinced her daughter was even a participant.

Bar group eyes Nixon and Mitchell

The investigation could lead to their disbarment in New York state, according to John G. Bonomi, the association's chief counsel.

The probe is part of a nationwide investigation by bar associations into all lawyers allegedly linked to the Watergate case and related matters, Bonomi said.

Information for the probes has come from Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski and the Senate Watergate committee, Bonomi said Wednesday in a telephone interview.

Also involved in the city probe are Gordon Strachan, a former aide to H.R. Haldeman, former White House chief of staff; David R. Young, former co-director of the White House "plumbers;" and an unidentified lawyer, Bonomi said. All are licensed to practice in New York.

John D. Ehrlichman, former presidential adviser; Herbert W. Kalmbach, Nixon's former personal attorney; and political saboteur Donald H. Segretti are the subjects of similar investigations in California where they are licensed to practice, he said.

Any disbarment proceedings against the President will be held up and will rest on the question of whether a President in office may be prosecuted in the courts or subpoeaned to appear before an investigating committee, excluding a congressional impeachment panel, Bonomi said.

Auto emission guarantee under fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — A spokesman for independent manufacturers of automobile parts has criticized the government's requirement for longterm warranties on auto emission controls.

Harold T. Halfpenny told a congressional panel Wednesday that implementation of a provision in the 1970 Clean Air Act "will mean economic catastrophe to the thousands of small independent businesses that now make up the aftermarket industry."

The act stipulates that auto manufacturers must warrant antipollution equipment for five years or 50,000 miles.

Halfpenny, general counsel of the Automotive Service Industry Association, testified before a House small business subcommittee that the warranty provision "will create a monopoly" for the automakers and their dealers.

He said there was every indication that auto manufacturers will insist on use of their own parts as a condition of the warranty.

The car owner "has no choice, he must bring it to the dealer...and while he is there he will have other parts and services supplied by the dealer that are not covered by the warranty, thus further cutting into the independent automative aftermarket."

A large ridge of high pressure stretching from the Gulf Coast to the Ohio Valley is now beginning to move eastward allowing an area of showers over the Mississippi Valley to pose some threat of ending Ohio's fair weather of the past two days.

A weak frontal system dropping southward across the Great Lakes also complicates the weather pattern somewhat. This front is producing very little active weather at the present time, according to the National Weather Service, but offers some threat of showers over northern Ohio by tonight.

Mild temperatures will continue south of the front today but some cooling over northern sections is likely tonight and Friday.

Highs in the state Wednesday were mostly in the 60s and today's readings are expected to be about the same or a few degrees warmer.

A chance of showers Sunday and Monday. Above-normal temperatures are forecast across the state Saturday through Monday with highs in the upper 60s and the 70s and lows in the 50s.

Clear skies favor U.S.

By The Associated Press

Fair skies stretched across most of the nation today, while a band of showers spotted areas from Texas into Wisconsin.

Scattered showers also sprinkled the Carolina coasts and southern Florida, with about a half inch reported at Fayetteville, N.C., before dawn.

Along the upper Pacific Coast, light rain fell and skies were increasingly cloudy.

Cooler air moved into the upper Great Lakes region, while temperatures in the eastern half of the country were generally below normal.

are likely to lead many Republican candidates to seek to put some room between themselves and the administration, particularly the President. Nixon was quoted weeks ago as saying privately that he understood some Republicans would find it necessary to do so. Democratic candidates are just as likely to do what Traxler did, and try to depict their GOP rivals as Nixon men.

Ford and other GOP leaders said the Democratic special election victories should have no bearing on House action on Nixon's impeachment.

Of course, there are four more Democratic votes now.

But the political situation could have a more significant, indirect effect on Republican House members. The defeats, the polls, and in many cases, their own surveys of constituents, indicate that the President's political power has ebbed to the point at which it doesn't have to be a factor in their individual decisions on impeachment.

While politicians weigh the impact of their elections, Reps. Traxler, VanderVeen, Lagomarsino, Murtha of Pennsylvania and Luken of Ohio will have to start campaigning all over again.

The terms they won last only for the balance of this year. To stay in the House, they'll have to run and win again in November.

Stock prices edge lower

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market returned to a sluggish, drifting pattern today as a two-day rally ran out of steam.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 1.64 at 865.77, but gainers and losers were just about even in light trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Colonial Penn Group was the NYSE volume leader, up 1⅜ at 30⅛ in trading that included a 124,700-share block at 29½. The stock sold for as much as 57⅞ earlier this year. On Wednesday the company said it expected to show a strong first quarter earnings gain.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .18 at 94.73.

Other Big Board issues on the active list included National Airlines, up ⅜ at 21⅝. The airline reported sharply higher first quarter earnings today.

Bausch & Lomb, also benefitting from a favorable first quarter report, was up ⅝ to 34⅛.

Oils were generally fractionally higher. Golds also gained, but other metals issues softened. Autos and most retail stocks were lower.

The Amex's most heavily traded issue was Texas International, unchanged at 8⅛.

The Big Board's composite index of all its listed common stocks was down .03 to 50.21 at mid-day.

Penn Central capitulates to Teamsters

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Penn Central Railroad has capitulated to Teamsters Union pickets who had been resisting a railroad proposal to shift jurisdiction of several hundred workers in piggyback rail-truck terminals from the Teamsters to another union.

Pickets have seriously hampered freight and mail operations in terminals in New York City; Chicago; St. Louis; Boston; Cincinnati and Columbus, Ohio; Indianapolis and Elkhart, Ind.; and Weehawken, North Bergen, South Kearny and Port Newark, N. J.

A management statement issued Wednesday night said the Penn Central had instructed the president of its division, Pennsylvania Trucking Lines, to offer the Teamsters "a return to the status quo."

A railroad spokesman said, "Pennsylvania Trucking Lines employes are now in the process of making contact with the Teamsters locals in order to determine if an agreement can be reached that will allow the Penn Central terminals to resume operations."

He said he expected there would be no final settlement until sometime Thursday, but added that the union had not mentioned any other grievances.

Teamsters officials have said their picketing meant that as much as 90 per cent of the goods, including perishables, shipped by the Penn Central were rerouted to other railroads, causing delays of several days.

The strike was called because the Penn Central wanted to transfer the workers from the Pennsylvania Truck Lines to another division, which also would transfer them to the jurisdiction of the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks.

The teamsters asserted that their contract, running through 1976, barred the change.

Picketing began in the New York-New Jersey area April 1. It was halted by court action until last week, when a federal court judge in Newark lifted a temporary injunction against the picketing.

Wheat exports below prediction

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Only a few months ago Agriculture Department figures showed wheat exports might shoot over 1.3 billion bushels this fiscal year and leave the U.S. bread grain reserve at practically zero by midsummer.

But now some in the trade think shipments will have to pick up sharply in the next two months if wheat exports are to match the USDA's prediction of 1.2 billion bushels.

George S. Shanklin, one of the department's export watchers in the Foreign Agricultural Service, said Wednesday "we have no reason right now" to reduce the 1973-74 wheat export estimate below the 1.2 billion bushels projected earlier.

The possibility that wheat exports might drop significantly was raised by reports showing clearances from U.S. ports last week totaled around 8.5 million bushels. That was the lowest one-week export total in about two years, Shanklin said.

Wheat shipments from U.S. ports had averaged about 18 million bushels per week since Jan. 1. During peak activity last year they rose to more than 32 million bushels per week.

The low mark for wheat exports last week raised doubts among some grain traders that shipments would pick up enough from now on to boost the total for the year ending June 30 to the department's estimate of 1.2 billion.

Reports filed by exporters showed that nearly 932.8 million bushels of wheat had been shipped as of March 31 for the fiscal year which began last July 1. Wheat remaining for delivery to known destinations this fiscal year totaled 221.5 million, unknown destinations added another 58.1 million.

Thus, counting wheat already shipped and the total exporters said remained for delivery, the gross wheat exports by June 30 could total slightly more than 1.2 billion bushels.

Shanklin said the arrival of spring shipping from Great Lakes ports is expected to stimulate wheat exports from now on. Thus, he said, the 1.2 billion bushels estimated still appears a sound figure.

Assuming that, the wheat reserve on July 1 would be 180 million bushels, far below the 483 million bushels of last summer and the stockpile of 863 million on July 1, 1972.

Farmers will begin harvesting 1974-crop wheat in southern areas by late May, with the new crop developing for market in Kansas in early June.

Stans denies secret contribution illegal

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Commerce secretary Maurice H. Stans says he had a mandate to keep secret financier Robert L. Vesco's $200,000 cash contribution to President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign. He swears he was not covering up any misdeeds of his own, or anyone else.

Stans testified about a March 14, 1972, meeting of campaign officials, including four White House aides. He said it was decided not to follow the lead of Democratic presidential aspirant George McGovern, who voluntarily released names of campaign contributors.

"I took that as a mandate to me to do everything possible to insure the privacy of these contributors," Stans told a jury Wednesday at his federal conspiracy trial. He is a codefendant with John N. Mitchell, the former attorney general.

"That was behind the whole thing," the 66-year-old Stans said at another point. "Vesco made a contribution in private and privacy was his constitutional right under the law. I was doing my best to protect Robert Vesco and every other contributor up to April 7."

A new law effective April 7, 1972, mandated the reporting of all campaign contributions from that point on.

Stans was still under direct examination when the trial recessed for the night. He will return to the stand when it resumes today.

Mitchell and Stans are accused of conspiring to obstruct justice for allegedy attempting to impede a Securities and Exchange Commission fraud investigation into Vesco's affairs, in exchange for the $200,000 cash contribution, and later lying about it to a grand jury.

One of the most potent government witnesses against Stans was G. Bradford Cook, general counsel and later chairman of the SEC. He admitted he lied under oath about Stans on five earlier occasions, but insisted his trial testimony was the truth.

In line with a key clause in the conspiracy count, Cook testified Stans got him to change a paragraph in a proposed SEC complaint about Vesco, to delete specific reference to the transfer of the $200,000 in cash that made up the contribution.

"I did not ask Brad Cook to delete anything on that occasion or any other occasion," said Stans. He said Cook told him he was having the paragraph reworked at his own instigation because it was too "sensational."

Sterilization lawsuit filed

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A 36-year-old divorcee on public assistance has charged welfare officials in neighboring Armstrong County with illegally ordering her sterilization.

The suit, filed in federal court recently on behalf of Norma Jean Serena, is seen by her attorney as an unprecedented challenge of welfare department decisions involving the child protection system.

The complaint seeks in excess of $10,000 for compensatory damages for Mrs. Serena and in excess of $10,000 for punitive damages.

Mrs. Serena claims that two days after giving birth to her fifth child at Citizens General Hospital in New Kensington, in August 1970, she was sterilized without her consent or knowledge.

Bizarre kidnap comes to end

ELKINS, W.Va. (AP) — The house father at a Huntington children's home was arraigned Wednesday on charges stemming from the alleged kidnapping of three boys from the facility.

Roger Dale Blankenship was arraigned before U.S. Magistrate Leslie Lucas Jr. following his arrest Tuesday by state police and FBI special agent Philip Sheridan in a rural area near Franklin in Pendleton County.

The arrest ended a bizarre, seven-week search for the youths in which they enrolled in two schools in two different states.

Blankenship was charged with child abduction and unlawful flight and on two counts of kidnaping. Bond was set at $50,000 and was being held in Grafton.

An indictment returned April 14 in U.S. District Court in Bluefield charged that Blankenship kidnaped the youths from the Cammack Children's Home "for immoral and illegal purposes."

Two of the boys were found unharmed Tuesday and were taken back to the center. The third youth was discovered Friday in Cleveland.

According to police Blankenship left the center Feb. 27 with the three youths.

The 16-year-old was driven to a Greyhound bus station and got a ticket to Wheeling and then Cleveland where authorities found him, said Lt. Pete Bowen, commander of the juvenile unit of the Huntington Police Department.

Blankenship took the other two boys to a South Point, Ohio, motel and registered there as Roger Dale Sturgil, Bowen said. The boys told police they were under the assumption that he had adopted them, Bowen said.

The following day, according to Bowen, the three went in a car to Amelia, Ohio, where Blankenship rented a mobile home. The boys enrolled in a local school and attended classes two days before moving on.

Bowen said Blankenship left March 6, took the boys, drove across the Ohio river and into Pendleton County where he rented another house. Local neighbors gave them some old furniture, police said.

The boys told police that Blankenship got a job for $60 a week at a nearby farm and the three of them ate fresh deer meet provided by a hunter. After attending classes for one day, the youths did not return to a local school.

Authorities discovered Blankenship after a curious woman inquired why the boys failed to return to school, Bowen said.

Widen search for zebra killers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mayor Joseph L. Alioto has appealed to blacks to cooperate if they are stopped on city streets for identification and possible search by police hunting for the "Zebra" killers.

"Extraordinary situations like this call for extraordinary measures," Alioto told reporters Wednesday. "We will be stopping a number of people who fit a certain profile — a lot of them innocent.

"Mass murderers are simply roaming the streets of San Francisco, killing people at random without any real motive or without any real sense. This can't be investigated as a regular murder."

Nelson T. Shields IV, 23, became the 12th white person killed within five months by a black gunman who fired without warning and without provocation Tuesday night.

Six other whites have been wounded in shootings police have code-named the "Zebra" case.

Washington Garner, the black president of the Police Commission, urged the city's blacks, "If you are stopped, don't resent it. Show your identification and, if necessary, permit a search."

Alioto said, "We are mindful of constitutional guarantees. Everything will be done within constitutional limits."

Police Chief Don Scott said in three of the shootings two persons were seen and a composite drawing of one gunman was being circulated. He said police would be acting with information that would narrow the number of persons that might be stopped by police.

"We are going to stop slender black people," Scott said.

The composite drawing is of a black man 20 to 30 years old, slender build, and 5-foot-9 to six feet in height.

The mayor said the total reward now posted for information leading to the conviction of the killers is $30,000.

Opinion And Comment

Radiation peril aloft

One wonders how long it is going to take the government to crack down on laxity in shipment of radioactive materials on commercial passenger aircraft.

There ought to be new impetus in the recent episode involving an inadequately shielded shipment of iridium 192. Passengers aboard two Delta Air Lines flights may have been exposed to harmful radiation.

The intensity of that exposure is problematical; the Atomic Energy Commission is investigating. But in a sense this is beside the point. It should be possible to assure that under all normal circumstances airlines passengers will not be subjected to such a hazard.

There are two ways of attacking the problem. One would be for the appropriate federal agencies to enforce tough packaging standards to guarantee against improper shielding of radioactive materials. Another would be to ban all transportation of such materials on commercial airliners.

The latter course has been proposed by the Air Line Pilots Association. The Federal Aviation Administration balks at this, maintaining that it is the airlines' responsibility to make sure that any radioactive shipments are properly labeled and safely packaged.

This is not an acceptable response. The AEC and the FAA should combine forces to set fail-safe standards and see that they are policed.

If the agencies object to this, then an order should be issued requiring that radioactive shipments be made only on non-passenger aircraft.

French politics as usual

By the time this column appears there may be as many as 25 announced candidates for the French presidency.

April 16 was the deadline for declarations of intention, but a large number of the characters who announced their ambition to replace the late Georges Pompidou are engaging in political blackmail and — even though their names will appear on the May 5 ballot — will by then have announced their support for someone else.

One party's "candidate" is conspicuous by his absense: there is no Communist. Georges Marchaise, the extremely shrewd leader of the Parti Communiste (PCF), already has announced endorsement of Socialist Francois Mitterrand.

This is a mixed blessing for Mitterrand. The advantage is that the highly disciplined Communist vote — which ranges from one-fifth to one-quarter of the electorate — is in his corner. Yet the thought of the PCF as a "government party" strikes many French voters as unthinkable.

Mitterrand's ideal scenario would have included a Communist candidate in the first round (if no one gets an absolute majority on May 5, the two top candidates go to a run-off on the 12th).

This could have presented him with the opportunity to get in a few symbolic punches at the PCF, thus indicating he was no stooge for Marchaise. But this would also have been risky: the Communist candidate might have come in ahead of the Socialist, utterly destroying any chance for a left-wing victory.

A TRULY Machiavellian proposal, suggested by a French friend, would nave seen the PCF fielding a candidate but instructing their voters not to support him!

Believe it or not, the Communists probably could have pulled this off: they went fishing the day Pompidou beat Alain Poher, the 1969 candidate of the left, and the late president won a landslide victory. It was a cold-blooded decision based on the PCF's judgment that a strong anti-American Gaullist was preferable to a wobbly centrist with "Atlanticist" tendencies.

On the other side of the hill, a real joker has just emerged from the deck: Jean Royer.

Royer made his name and fame by sponsoring a law that put "les supermarches" (supermarkets) in an economic straitjakcet in the interests of small shopkeepers. (During the Depression, a number of American states passed similar laws, but failed to save the friendly neighborhood bakery, fish market or delicatessen from the encroachment of the big chain stores.)

Naturally, he is a hero to the small businessmen. But there is an additional demension: Royer could emerge as the catalyst of what I have called the "Danish Syndrome" — the anti-political vote.

There has always been a strong anti-political tendency among the French, and de Gaulle capitalized on it until he became a bore. Voting for Royer could become the ideal way to kick the politicians in the tail.

THIS IS PARTICULARLY true because the other right-wing nominees are old familiar faces who, for better or worse, have built a record. Jacques Chaban-Delmas, a former Prime Minister, is known for his spectacular ability to (legally) avoid income taxation.

Valery Giscard d'Estaing has been the Minister of Finance during a period of increasing inflation and unemployment and is an outspoken economic conservative. At this writing it seems that Jean-Jacques Servan-Schreiber may be the candidate of his party of one: he consciously imitated the Kennedy image, won a remarkable victory in a legislative election, but didn't have the sense to quit when he was ahead.

Instead he made a complete ass of himself by running against Chaban-Delmas for mayor of Bordeaux; campaigning on his own turf, Chaban obliterated "J.J.S.S." So much for charisma, so much for the "Parti Radical."

It is pointless to coninue these descriptions except to note that all the leading "Gaullists," "neo--Gaullists" and "Independents" have been involved in politics up to their ears. So, for that matter, has Mitterrand, 11 times a minister, who once achieved notoriety by having his car shot up.

His "miraculous escape" was subsequently explained by the news that he had staged the episode!

Which brings us back to Jean Royer, a new face ideally situated to denouce all the "old boys" and call for an end to "petty politics."

Since there is no reason to believe that France will escape from the "Danish Syndrome," which has been sweeping all of Western Europe and Great Britain, don't be dumbstruck to see Metterrand and Royer as the candidates in the run-off on May 12.

Injunction issued over poll workers

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — The Richland County Common Pleas Court has issued a temporary injunction ordering the county board of elections to give jobs back to elderly poll workers.

Judge James J. Mayer issued the decision Wednesday in a class action suit brought against the county board of elections by 77 dismissed workers who were fired because they were 70 years of age or older.

Mayer set a final hearing in the suit for April 30. He is seeking opinions from Gov. John J. Gilligan and former Gov. James A. Rhodes on how the ruling would affect the state political process.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR, RECORD HERALD:

For the past two weeks I have been reading letters concerning the graduation of Laurel Oaks students. Now I wish to express my feelings on the matter.

As a senior attending Laurel Oaks Career Development Campus, I completely understand and accept the fact that I will not get out of school early this year. As a member of the 1974 graduating class of Washington Senior High School, I cannot accept the fact that I am to receive an unsigned diploma at the commencement exercises.

There is no doubt in my mind that each instructor will know whether or not his or her students are eligible to graduate in plenty of time for the diplomas to be signed. If there is a question as to the eligibility of one or two students, why should the remaining students suffer?

Leaving my high school to enroll at Laurel Oaks was a hard decision to make. I do feel, however, that it was a wise decision and that I have bettered myself by attending Laurel Oaks.

In six weeks, I will have completed 12 years of school including a two-year secretarial course, and I am looking forward to graduation.

I am not, however, looking forward to going through the ceremonies in front of my relatives and friends only to receive an unsigned diploma.

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

"Three Cheers" for Mr. Crissinger, who finally got a fund started for our Fayette County tornado victims.

Several organizations and individuals wanted to help these people but were at a loss as to where to send their contributions as no one seemed to know of a fund set aside for Wentz Road victims.

Our Fayette Garden Club gave me a check, asking me to give it to whomever was setting up a fund, but after contacting several Jeffersonville residents, also the Red Cross and the Salvation Army, I found no requests had been made.

I also contacted the school, but the principals could give me no information. I was just about to send our check to the Red Cross, when Coffee Break advised that Mr. Crissinger had started a fund and that donations could be sent to The Jeffersonville Inn or to the bank.

It would be interesting to know what has happened to these five families who suffered this great loss.

Thanks again, Mr. Crissinger, I'm sure many people will now send in their contributions, as we did.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Don't call 'the other woman' - get help

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem which I have discussed with my married daughter, and she said I should write to you.

After many years of marriage, my husband has been seeing another woman. She's a young school teacher he met at church. (Her father is a minister.) The worst part of it is, I know he really loves her, but I'm afraid of what people would think if I let him go to her.

I admit that our marital relations have never been enjoyable for me, but I have done my duty and given him three children who are grown and married now.

I work full time, which my husband never liked, but it has provided us with lots of extras we wouldn't have been able to get as soon as we did.

Should I call this woman and tell her I know the truth and she'd better stop seeing my husband or else? Should I call her father and tell him about it? Or should I keep quiet and hope they get tired of each other before too many people know about it?

TROUBLED

DEAR TROUBLED: Don't call the young woman. And don't call her father. You and your husband should get some counseling and level with each other.

If you don't let him go to her (knowing that he really loves her) because you are afraid of what people will think, that's a poor reason. Add that to your feeling that you've done your duty and given him three children, and the picture becomes even more clear. You seem to be a sensible woman. Counseling is the only answer.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been arguing over a question that we would like you to answer.

I say it is bad manners to yawn in company, but if you can't help yourself you should do it with your mouth shut.

My husband says he only yawns when he can't hold it back, and he can't yawn with his mouth closed.

Please give us your opinion. Thanks.

MRS. B.

DEAR MRS.B.: Yawning with one's mouth closed isn't easy. However it can be done, but a squelched yawn offers very little satisfaction.

The ideal solution would be to go ahead and yawn, but cover your mouth with your hand. And apologize for it afterwards.

DEAR ABBY: In trying to decide what to give my son and his bride for a wedding gift, I have come to the conclusion that the best gift I could give them would be the treatment at a "stop smoking" clinic.

The treatment costs $350 per person, so I feel that it would be a generous gift, considering my relatively low income. My son has been warned by his doctor that he should stop smoking, and he has indicated that he would like to. However, there wouldn't be much point in giving him the treatment unless his bride takes it too.

Under the circumstances, would it be proper for me to offer such a gift or would I be considered meddlesome?

CONCERNED MOTHER

DEAR CONCERNED: I don't agree that there wouldn't be much point in giving your son the treatment unless his bride agreed to take it, too. However, unless you know for certain that they both want the treatment and would welcome it as a wedding gift from you, it might not be appreciated.

Musical performances, both individual and ensembles, will be featured in the show in addition to dance and comedy routines.

Meningitis is traced to hamsters

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Health officials say they have traced an outbreak of a rare but usually mild form of meningitis in New York to hamsters.

The State Health Department said Friday the disease, called LCM, usually produces a flulike illness with fever, muscle aches, pains and prostration. It normally is not fatal.

The hamsters, state and New York City health officials said, were bred in Alabama and were purchased between Dec. 4, 1973 and March 24, 1974. They were identified in tests as the carriers of the disease.

New York was one of eight states named Thursday by the U. S. Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga. where a total of 93 cases of LCM have been reported. The others were California, Minnesota, Nevada, Florida, Massachusetts and New Jersey. LCM is an acronym for lymphocytic choriomeningitis. It normally is not fatal.

The New York City Health Department urged new hamster owners to isolate their pets in a ventilated room and to notify the department. They recommended that the 300,000 animals in the stock in question should be destroyed.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Two weeks from today, CBS News will air a one-hour daytime news special for women. It eventually could become a regular weekly event, according to a CBS executive in charge of th project.

The show is called "Magazine" and is hosted by correspondents Sylvia Chase and Charles Kuralt. Employing a format similar to CBS' "60 Minutes," it'll report on such diverse stories as hysterectomies, economical supermarket shopping and how soap operas are put together.

How did the show come about? Was it prompted by pressure from women's activist groups who feel daytime television should offer its predominantely female audience more than soap and games?

"No, I wouldn't think so," says Bill Leonard, a CBS News senior vice president. He said it basically stemmed from a suggestion made about 1½ years ago by CBS program chief Fred Silverman.

If the show gets the reaction CBS hopes it will, he said, it could become a weekly series in future years: "I would hope they (CBS brass) could make it that."

It isn't a low-budget effort, he said. Although he declined to say what the May 2 show is costing, he said the price tag was similar to that of a prime time documentary — in the $50,000 to $100,000 range.

The show will pre-empt two soap operas — "The Guiding Light" and "The Edge of Night." And Leonard expects gripes will come from devotees of those shows, as they usually do during such news pre-emptions.

But he's philosophical about it. "This is only an hour," he said with a laugh. "I guess we can live with a few phone calls."

Exploding glass bottles subject of commission probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Marion S. Gronemeyer was carrying a bottle of fruit juice in her kitchen when it shattered in her hand. She says the wounds she suffered from the accident required "a year of treatment, casts, therapy and tests."

Mrs. Robert V. Estes was opening a bottle of ginger ale when the top of the bottle exploded. Despite the care of specialists, according to her husband, "the flexibility and mobility of her right thumb is extremely limited and an uncomfortable nerve reaction exists."

The Consumer Product Safety Commission estimates that about 62,000 such accidents occur annually, with about 25,000 resulting injuries requiring treatmet in hospital emergency rooms.

The hearings will include testimony from persons injured by exploding bottles and representatives of bottling companies, including the National Soft Drink Association and the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute, Inc.

In a letter to the commission, Mrs. Gronemeyer, of Santa Ana, Calif., said that had she not been helped quickly she may have bled to death as a result of her injuries.

According to Estes, of South Milwaukee, Wis., his wife "started the twist off operation and before the separation of the crown from the anchor ring, the top of the bottle exploded with a loud bang."

Dr. Lawrence Kushner, a commission member said that a survey of 119 hospitals across the nation indicated that approximately 110,000 injuries a year are associated with glass containers and must be treated in emergency rooms. Approximately one-quarter are associated with exploding bottles, but many more are treated in physicians' offices or at home.

Russians unhappy with Sadat

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Corespondent

The Russians act as if they suspect they've been had by President Anwar Sadat of Egypt, and that can make them tougher to deal with in the search for an over-all Middle East settlement.

Moscow was never very happy in its relationship with Sadat's predecessor, Gamal Abdel Nasser. But it is even more irked with the man who assumed Nasser's mantle in 1970.

This irritation has been increasing ever since the October war. Now, if Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger seems to run into mounting difficulties trying to bring about a military disengagement on the SyrianIsraeli front, it's a good bet Soviet pique has something to do with it.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko has been trying to counter Kissinger's shuttle diplomacy in the Middle East, and Syria is the obvious route. The Kremlin wants badly to shift attention away from Kissinger's activities to an unwieldy Geneva conference where the Russians can be more visible.

Sadat irked Moscow by failing to go along with that idea. But he had annoyed the Russians ever since October, when he failed to consult them on his war plans. He also:

—Neglected to confide in his Russian allies before agreeing to Kissinger's disengagement proposals.

—Ignored a Soviet proposal that Russian and American officers sit in on the disengagement talks between Egypt and Israel;

—Ignored Soviet advice and successfully campaigned for suspension of the Arab oil embargo against the United States.

—In a telecast this month retorted testily to Soviet complaints and accused Moscow of having opposed the October war and having been niggardly with arms help. At the same time a Cairo newspaper accused Moscow of systematically sabotaging Syria-Israel disengagement efforts and of begrudging Egypt better relations with the Americans.

The Russians have had lots of time to get used to the idea that Sadat trusted them even less than Nasser did.

Sadat is a devout Moslem who fears the Soviet brand of atheistic communism. He gave a detailed account a few years ago of a bruising experience he had with Kremlin hard-sell when he visited Moscow at the head of an Egyptian delegation in May 1961.

At that meeting, Nikita Khrushchev exploded when Sadat suggested Egypt's international affairs were none of his business.

Relations between Cairo and Moscow have always been on-again, off-again. They were severely strained in mid-1971 when Communists in the Sudan, Egypt's neighbor, tried to seize power and failed; and again in 1972 when Sadat suggested the Russians were primarily interested in a no war-no peace situation in the Middle East because it would be advantageous to the communist cause. A few months after that Sadat abruptly told 15,000 Russian military advisers to pack up and go home, and the Kremlin had to grin and bear it.

Cambridge man dies of explosion, burns

ZANESVILLE, Ohio (AP) — A 19-year-old Cambridge man has died of burns suffered in an explosion near an oil well in Muskingum County.

Authorities said Billy W. Cleveland died Tuesday after flammable solvent exploded as it was being poured from one can to another.

A second man, 46-year-old Kenneth Knapp of Buffalo, is hospitalized in critical condition with burns over 90 per cent of his body, authorities said.

Hydrogen, a colorless gas, was discovered in 1766 by Henry Cavendish.

CRAIG'S DEPARTMENT STORE

Craig's observes 100th birthday

Craig's Department Store, which has served Fayette County for more than a full century, is celebrating its 100th anniversary in Washington C. H. this year.

It was scarcely 30 years after Fayette County was actually formed that D. S. Craig opened a general store in neighboring Staunton. His sons, Eli and Williams, moved the business to Washington C. H. in 1874.

The first store in Washington C. H. was located on N. Main Street. The business later moved to W. Court Street and eventually to the present location at 131 W. Court Street which was expanded to handle the growing business. The store has been located on E. Court Street for the past 95 years.

THE BUSINESS remained in the Craig family until 1971, when Merrill Kaufman, a Washington C. H. native who also operates a successful store in Delaware, purchased the long-established business with the idea of changing its image.

"We undertook a major remodeling project immediately," Kaufman explained. "We modernized both the upstairs and downstairs and introduced younger fashions for both men and women."

"The men's, women's and children's clothing departments were greatly expanded with a fashion in mind," Kaufman said. "The shoe department was enlarged; and the fabric department and gift department were relocated on the second floor. Craig's is now the most modern store of its kind in the entire shopping area," the store owner remarked.

HAILING from a long line of clothing retailers, Kaufman feels there is still a prominent place in today's business world for the small retail store.

"The small retailer can offer personal service, which is missing from so much today," Kaufman said. "At Craig's, we know most of our regular customers by their first names, and they know if they're not satisfied, they'll get their money refunded," he said.

"We owe our customers a lot and like to pay back to them part of what we receive by offering quality goods at reasonable prices," he said.

According to Kaufman, a series of anniversary celebration activities are being planned for the remainder of the year, evolving around historical, nostalgic and educational themes.

"Naturally, we'll have special sales," Kaufman remarked, "to show our appreciation to the many customers who have helped us reach our 100-year mark." The first anniversary sale begins Friday.

Birth defect brings boy $530,000

TORRANCE, Calif. (AP) — A jury has awarded $530,000 in damages to a 3-year-old boy after ruling that his birth deformities were caused by a fertility drug taken by his mother.

The drug, Clomid, is produced by Richardson-Merrill, Inc., of Cincinnati, Ohio, and is marketed worldwide.

A company spokesman said he was "shocked and dismayed over the verdict" which he called "absolutely unwarranted." He said the company would appeal the decision.

The money was awarded Tuesday to Mark Breinhorst, son of Heinz and Ingrid Breinhorst of Torrance.

The parents, who had filed a $3 million suit, were awarded $40,000 by the jury. Their son was born with no hands, facial paralysis, knock knees and eye problems.

Breinhorst said the money would go into a special trust fund for his son, who attends a special school for crippled children.

The Breinhorst's attorney had argued that Clomid had not been tested properly although it did have the approval of the Food and Drug Administration.

Richardson-Merrill's attorney claimed during the month-long trial that the birth deformities had occurred naturally.

Mrs. Breinhorst said she took the drug in September, 1969. Her son was born in June, 1970.

Safety inspections uncover violations

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John J. Gilligan says an intensive safety inspection program has uncovered 14,882 violations in eight months in business and industry.

The governor said Wednesday more than 2,000 inspections yielded an average of 6.2 violations per inspection. He said more than $175,000 in penalties have been collected.

Ohio Perspective

Office space costs rise for state

By DAVID LORE
Columbus Dispatch

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The State Office Tower across from the capitol will rent for about $8.5 million the first year, but the state faces sharply increased costs after July 1, 1975.

The Ohio Building Authority (OBA) the project financer, set initial rents for some 30 state agencies scheduled to occupy the tower.

OBA agreed that through July 1, 1975, the Gilligan administration will pay $8.12 a square foot. That would amount to about $8.5 million a year when the tower's 1,048,000 square feet of net rentable space is fully occupied next fall.

But, the three-member OBA board began last week to consider ways of refinancing the $60 million tower project in order to prevent rents from climbing rapidly to $9 or $10 a square foot.

OBA is financing the 41-story state tower through the State Insurance Fund, investment monies of the Ohio Bureau of Workmen's Compensation, with interest rates being recomputed every two years.

OBA originally agreed to pay the fund interst of less than 5 per cent. Last week it found itself approving a new, one-year, $76 million note at 8.6 per cent.

An administration analysis said an 8.6 per cent interest charge would force OBA to charge its state tenants about $8.75 a square foot in order to retire the debt in 30 years, $9.60 to retire the debt in 20 years.

Gilligan estimated an $8 a square foot rental cost in his 1973-1975 budget, but state officials only a month ago talked about $8.50 a square foot.

John B. Olsen, director of the Office of Budget and Management, called the $8.12 compromise a "conservative and solid figure." He said the administration couldn't afford more.

The administration tries to keep its agencies from renting space from private landlords at much more than $5 a square foot.

Still, the $8.12 beginning rate will cover only interest payments to the Insurance Fund and maintenance costs, Olsen said.

It probably will be insufficient to allow OBA to begin repayments on the debt principle, he said.

John Kessler, OBA chairman, said Insurance Fund interest rates meant the OBA must consider lower-cost financing.

Mead Corp. lists gains for quarter

DAYTON — Mead Corporation reports first quarter sales of $356 million, compared with the $302 million it recorded in the first quarter of 1973.

Earnings for the first quarter of 1974 are reported at $13,475,000, or $.75 per common share after provision for preferred dividends. Mead earned $7,980,000 or $.37 per share, in the first quarter of 1973.

Mead's earnings have shown significant improvement for six consecutive quarters, Board Chairman James W. McSwiney noted. "However considering today's replacement costs for Mead facilities, the present performance must be further improved," he said.

The major thrust for Mead's improvement in first quarter earnings came in the white paper area, McSwiney said. Sharp improvement at the large Escanaba, Mich., mill plus the timely addition of wood pulp for sale on the open market at a time of growing demand and increasing prices were important factors.

Product mix has been refined at all Mead's paper operations, and this has been an important ingredient in their earnings, McSwiney said.

BUSINESS in Mead's Paperboard group continued strong during the quarter, McSwiney said. Both Mead Containers and Mead Packaging recorded increased volume at increased prices during the quarter. "The company's paperboard mills have experienced sharply higher costs, however, and price improvements were not effected in time to fully offset these increases," he added.

Supplies of pulpwood for Mead's paper and paperboard operations, which were very tight during most of 1973, have improved, according to McSwiney. However, he indicated pulpwood costs are significantly higher.

Operating results in Mead's Industrial Products group were hurt by major costs increases in basic raw materials used in its foundries, McSwiney said. "Those increased costs will not be fully covered by price adjustments until the second quarter," he added.

Demand for Mead's industrial products continues strong, the chairman reported. He said the new Archer Creek, Va., plant of Mead's Lynchburg Foundry Co. is making good progress in its startup and that order backlogs for castings continue at a high level.

First quarter performance by the Mead School, Home and Office Products group, Mead Interiors and the Mead Merchant group was at or above that of a year ago, McSwiney said. The Westab division, which makes school supplies, has had significant gains this year, and sales by Stanley Furniture, a Mead company, continue strong, he said. The Mead Merchant group, distributors of both fine and industrial papers, showed increases in sales and profits.

MEAD'S EARNINGS from its Canadian affiliates, Northwood Pulp and Timber and British Columbia Forest Products, declined in the first quarter. McSwiney said the difference resulted from lower lumber prices, transportation problems and operating problems experienced by some of the Northwood sawmills and its pulp mill.

Both Northwood and BCFP are major pulp producers, and this part of their business continues to be very strong.

"Over the last two or three years, Mead has devoted considerable time and effort to several new ventures," McSwiney commented. "These include an information storage and retrieval system now used in legal research and a high-speed, ink-jet imaging system.

"Now that we are entering the commercialization stage with several of these developments, it is important to provide top-level operating leadership.

Accordingly, Robert O'Hara, who has been Group Vice President - Mead Paper, will assume the role of Group Vice President - New Ventures as of May 1.

Burnell Roberts, former head of the Mead Merchant group, will succeed O'Hara as Group Vice President - Mead Paper," McSwiney stated.

Action at Steele Data Processing

Steele Data expands its computer service

Due to a recent merger with National Scanning Inc., Columbus, the former Steele Data Processing operation in Washington C.H. is now able to offer a complete spectrum of computer services.

Previously limited to preparing imput data for clients with their own computers, the firm now has access to the other facilities of National Scanning which include computer programming, processing, optical scanning and a full range of consultant and advisory services.

One of the advantages to local business is that services can be made available to some firms which do not have the volume to make computer service profitable under the old operation, James and Marie Steele, managers of the local office, point out.

A wide variety of data processing services are offered at the computer facilities in Columbus. National Scanning can provide such diverse services as routine business reporting and payroll systems, plus sophisticated statistical data manipulation of tests and surveys. One of the programs carried by National Scanning is the weekly feature of computer ratings during the football season.

OPTICAL SCANNING is of primary importance to the average businessman, the Steeles observe. This process of material reading allows businesses with sporadic quantities of computer material to utilize the assets of the system by minimizing the amount of material preparation for computer input.

Another arm of National Scanning located in Lancaster, Pa., is the only full service printing facility of its kind. The staff is engaged in the design, composition, printing and distribution of optically scannable business forms, surveys tests, etc. This operation is capable of producing forms for every major scanning system currently in use.

Although the range of work encompassed by National Scanning is much greater than was done by Steele Data Processing, the local operation will remain essentially the same as before.

"We are now the data processing arm of a computer service organization," says Mr. and Mrs. Steele, "and, as such, we can offer our clients the benefits of the entire operation. However, our primary functions on the local level remain the preparation of input data."

Help with chores

Junior Leader club to hold 'slave auction'

Members of the Fayette County 4-H Junior Leadership Club are offering their services to assist with spring chores at a "slave auction" which will be held at 10:30 a.m. Saturday on the Courthouse lawn.

Jack Sommers, Fayette County 4-H Extension agent, said more than 40 Junior Leadership Club members will be "sold" to work for four to eight hours at various spring chores such as yard work, house cleaning, farm work, window-washing and many other tasks.

Minimum wage is $1 per hour with the Junior Leader being "sold" to the highest bidder on a per hour basis. The Junior Leader will complete the work before May 11 and will schedule arrangements for the work with the buyer on the day of the sale. Payment will be made to the Junior Leader when the working hours are completed.

Funds raised from the "slave auction" are to be used by the Fayette County 4-H Junior Leadership Club to sponsor trips to the National 4-H Citizenship Short Course in Washington, D.C. this summer.

Sommers said several older 4-H'ers will be attending the National 4-H Citizenship Short Course, depending on the amount of money raised at the auction.

City manager nixes handicapped measure

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — City Manager E. Robert Turner rejected a proposed ordinance to grant special permission to handicapped persons to park in "no parking" locations.

Councilman Gerald Springer had asked decalcomania designs to exempt drivers who need wheelchairs from traffic fines.

Fighter group receives planes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Formal acceptance ceremonies are scheduled Friday by the 121st Tactical Fighter Group of the Ohio National Guard for its first A7D tactical fighter aircraft.

The plane was picked up Wednesday from the LTV Aerospace Corp. in Dallas, Tex., and flown to Lockbourne Air Force base by Col. William F. Bill Casey, commander of the 121st TFG.

Spokesmen for LTV said the Ohio unit will receive additional planes during the next few months.

Community Education events scheduled

Hank Shaffer, program director, said that although the six courses have concluded, a number of other events are in the planning stages for the spring and summer months.

In fact, the summer recreation program in Washington C.H. will be conducted under the auspices of the Community Education program. Shaffer will serve as the recreation director.

City officials and members of the Washington C.H. Board of Education recently entered into a formal agreement for conducting the program.

RESEARCHING THE FAMILY TREE — Instructor George Robinson and one of his students study volumes of newspapers in their search for information on her family background. The volume in the photo is a file of a Cincinnati newspaper from the 1860's. Some 36 area residents attended the four-week class on genealogy which met in one extra session at the request of some of the more avid participants.

GENEALOGY, quilting and the open recreation activities in the Washington Junior High School gymnasium were the most popular among the programs offered.

The genealogy course, conducted by George Robinson, 445 W. Circle Ave., attracted 36 persons, according to Shaffer.

"I told the class as we were ready to leave, if you've enjoyed this half as much as I did, then we accomplished a lot," Robinson said after the four-week course had been completed. "The class was receptive, cooperative and interested," he said.

"It was interesting and I enjoyed it a lot," said Mrs. Irene Grim, of Bloomingburg, one of the participants in the class. "I learned the library had a lot to offer on genealogy and it made the class well worth my while," Mrs. Grim said.

THE FOUR-WEEK quilting course, instructed by Barbara Vance, had 16 participants.

"I wanted to learn the basics about quilting and I did," remarked Mrs. Eileen Tatman, 929 Millwood Ave. "I enjoyed the relaxed and informal atmosphere. It made the class very friendly," Mrs. Tatman noted.

An average of about 60 youngsters and others attended the open recreation activities in the junior high school gymnasium each night.

"It was fine supervised recreation for the children," Mrs. Vic Luneborg, 307 N. North St., said. "My children talked a lot about the mini-trampoline and the parellel bars. They are really looking forward to the summer recreation program at Eyman Park," Mrs. Luneborg said.

Leroy Wilson, 526 Delaware St., was one of the students in regular attendance at the open recreation activity. "I really enjoyed it and I wish you would have kept it open longer because even though the weather is nicer, it still gets dark outside," said the ninth grader at Washington Junior High School.

THE THREE-WEEK gardening course attracted 14 participants, while the landscaping class had 125; public speaking, 7, and meal management, 3.

A Kite Day activity was also conducted recently by the Community Education program. A total of 20 children participated and there were a number of spectators for the event held at Eyman Park.

Tennis lessons to begin here next week

An organizational meeting will launch beginning tennis lessons at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Washington Junior High School gymnasium.

The tennis lessons are being offered by the Community Education program. Maurice Pfeifer will conduct the tennis course.

Hank Shaffer, Community Education program director, said the class is open to all beginners over 8 years of age. Shaffer said it is hoped the class will build the interest of younger persons toward the game of tennis. Adults are also welcome as participants. Following the first meeting, the lessons will be held Tuesday evenings at the Eyman Park courts.

There will be six lessons, including the organizational meeting, at a cost of $5 per person. Those interested in taking beginning tennis lessons should attend the first meeting and bring their rackets and tennis shoes. It is hoped that an intermediate and advanced course can be established later, Shaffer said.

Plan suit against segregation

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—The parents of eight Columbus school children plan to file a complaint against segregation in the city's education system, their attorneys said Wednesday.

On the advice of a federal judge, the families withdrew a request for an injunction against an $89.5 million building plan. Their original complaint said the plan would further racial separation.

School attorneys will not take action until the new complaint comes to trial, probably sometime in December, spokesmen said.

An Ohio State University education professor testified in the original hearing that the Columbus school system is "highly segregated."

Dr. Charles A. Glatt said he studied segregation in the schools for a period from 1969 to 1972.

The judge said a ban on school construction would put undue burdens on taxpaying voters who in 1972 approved the money for a five-year construction program.

Sentences meted out in Municipal Court

Three persons charged with non-traffic offenses by the Fayette County Sheriff's Department have been found guilty and sentenced in Municipal Court.

Four cases, on private warrants, were dismissed at the request of the prosecuting witnesses.

Robert Curtis, Xenia, pleaded guilty to conversion of mortgaged goods and received a 90-day suspended jail term from acting Judge John P. Case. Curtis was fined $100.

Curtis was charged with selling or otherwise disposing of goods on which he was making payments, which is illegal without permission from the creditor.

Robert J. Hawkins, Guilford, Conn., was found guilty of possession of marijuana and was fined $100 and sentenced to 30 days in jail. Both the fine and jail term were suspended.

Harold E. Smith, 111 Water St., was fined $50 for failure to obey a lawful order from a sheriff's deputy. Smith had been told to stand clear of the automobile accident scene on Ohio 41-S Saturday night. When he refused to obey officers at the scene he was placed under arrest.

A bad check charge against John Carpenter, 25, of New Carlisle, was dismissed as were charges of assault filed against Thomas E. Lyons Jr., 1330 Pearl St., Clifford R. Upthegrove, Jeffersonville, and Donn Bowles, of Good Hope. All four had been charged on private warrants, and all agreed to pay the court costs.

MEMORIAL FUND GETS A BOOST — Curtis E. Fleisher, right, principal at Miami Trace High School, thanks Jon Ervin, of the Miami Trace Boosters Club, for the club's $500 contribution to the Delmar Mowery Memorial Fund. Ervin, treasurer of the Boosters Club, said the fund is used to finance an annual grant for a graduating scholar-athlete. Recipients of the grants are selected on their scholarship (b average or better), athletic ability (varsity lettermen), and school and community leadership. The fund was established in honor of Delmar Mowery, a highly respected teacher and coach at Miami Trace, who died unexpectedly last November.

New energy chief to push conservation for future

WASHINGTON (AP) — John C. Sawhill, designated Wednesday to head the Federal Energy Office, says the major thrust of his agency over the next 12 to 18 months will be toward energy conservation.

Sawhill promised when his appointment was announced to send the President a plan by Nov. 1, to make the nation selfsufficient in energy.

But in an interview before the announcement Sawhill said it would take several years at least to achieve any substantial increases in U.S. domestic oil and gas production.

In the meantime, he said, the nation's imports of petroleum will continue to increase — making it even more vulnerable to sudden interruptions of supply, such as the recent Arab oil embargo.

During the next few years, the only way to reduce the imports and the threat is to reduce U.S. petroleum demand, he said.

"My approach would be to pursue very vigorous conservation."

Sawhill's attitude should be welcome to the administration's top environmental advisers, Environmental Protection Administrator Russell E. Train and Chairman Russell W. Peterson of the Council on Environmental Quality.

Train charged Monday that energy conservation was mostly just talk so far and said he saw no great push in that direction by the Federal Energy Office, which has authority over energy conservation programs.

Peterson is urging a national goal of reducing the growth rate of energy consumption from its recent 4 or 5 per cent a year to 1.8 per cent.

Sawhill talks in terms of a 3 per cent energy growth rate.

First 'summer' collector show slated

The first of the 1974 "summer shows" sponsored by the Central Ohio Gun and Indian Relic Collectors Association will be held at the Fairground Saturday and Sunday.

Doors will open at 7:30 a.m., and lunch will be served both days. The Mahan, Youth and Merchants buildings will house the "inside" displays, and, depending on the weather, the outdoor flea market will expand over the grounds.

Competition, a feature of the summer shows, will be resumed this weekend, with a trophy offered for the best 41-caliber Remington Derringer pistol.

Also to be resumed at the April meeting will be the 25-cent parking charge.

Only members of the association are permitted to have displays, although the meetings are open to the public. Alcoholic beverages are not allowed on the Fairground, and gun laws are strictly enforced.

American official will come home

CORDOBA, Argentina (AP) — Alfred Laun III, the American official wounded during a kidnaping by leftist guerrillas last week, will return to the United States soon, U.S. embassy officials said.

Laun, 36, of Kiel, Wis., was flown to Panama Wednesday night for further medical treatment. He had undergone surgery here for a bullet wound suffered in the kidnaping and was said to be in stable condition.

Laun, the chief of the U.S. Information Service branch in Cordoba, was shot while resisting the abductors at his home last Friday and released 15 hours later.

Utility rate hike under attack

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Cincinnati Mayor Theodore Berry called a rate hike sought by the Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co. "shocking" and urged city council to "vigorously resist."

The utility, seeking its second hike in two years, asked a 7 per cent increase in electric rates and 10 per cent for natural gas.

The utility has 131,000 customers in the city and must ask the city's permission for rate increases. Rate increases for customers outside the city are determined by the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio.

Glenn-Metzenbaum mud-slinging nears wire

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — In this corner, a millionaire businessman already an interim senator. Across the way, an astronaut space hero.

At ringside, Ohioans watching an old fashioned mud-sling as candidates for the Democratic nomination for U.S. Senate verbally lash each other daily as the May 7 primary nears.

Metzenbaum, 56-year-old silver-haired executive, attacks Glenn, trim 52-year-old who jogs three miles most afternoons.

"We think he (Metzenbaum) has a lot to hide," Glenn tells laborers during a stop in Cincinnati.

"Honesty, integrity and sincerity" are key issues, Glenn explained to reporters early in his campaign.

"The people of Ohio have gotten only a campaign of personal vilificiation and distortions of fact from my opponent," Metzenbaum said a few days ago.

So it goes. The fight for the nomination has become one of the most hotly contested election races in years.

Glenn leads the polls, slightly. Metzenbaum, a former labor attorney, has captured the unions, or most of the unions. Glenn slowly erodes Metzenbaum's labor and state Democratic party endorsements, inching forward.

Glenn, shedding the "boy scout" image he acquired in a loss to Metzenbaum in 1970's primary, remains the aggressor.

He made a "full disclosure" of his financial status, including income tax returns back to 1965, and demands Metzenbaum do the same. Metzenbaum disclosed his holdings and net worth — $3.6 million, calling it "the fullest disclosure ever made by a U.S. Senator."

Glenn makes his opponent's refusal to display his past income tax returns the reason for turning down a recent proposal for a series of televised debates.

"If Howard Metzenbaum cannot trust the Democratic voters of Ohio with information about his taxes and finances, how can they trust him with their votes?" Glenn asked.

Metzenbaum released his 1973 tax return and countered with a charge that Glenn was "back peddling" and called on him to "get on with the important business of the campaign, a dialogue about who is better qualified to serve the people of Ohio."

Glenn and Metzenbaum have been political adversaries for years.

Glenn, who filed for the nomination in 1964 and dropped out after suffering a head injury in a bathroom fall, lost by 13,442 votes to Metzenbaum in the 1970 primary. Two lesser known candidates in the fourway race compiled 32,000 votes.

Metzenbaum later lost the 1970 general election to U.S. Sen. Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio.

Late last year, Metzenbaum was chosen by Gov. John J. Gilligan, a Democrat, to serve out the term of William B. Saxbe, then Ohio's senior senator and now attorney general.

Gilligan acted after being urged by state and national labor leaders with whom Metzenbaum enjoys a long rapport. Gilligan later won Metzenbaum the backing of the state party organization.

Glenn turned down an offer from Gilligan to run for lieutenant governor on the governor's re-election ticket.

Ordinarily, a candidate with the backing of his party, the governor, organized labor, and plenty of money could rest at ease in an Ohio Democratic primary. But Metzenbaum has problems.

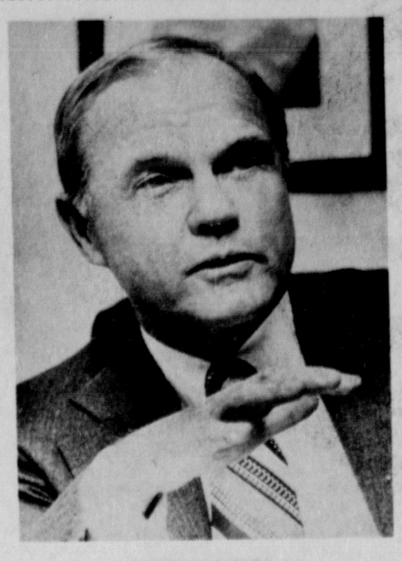
Just before he was sworn in last January, Metzenbaum revealed he deposited $118,000 with the Internal Revenue Service pending settlement of back income tax issues. Glenn has sought to make that, along with the payment of no income tax by Metzenbaum in 1969, gut issues in the primary.

The senator was rankled by Glenn's comment and expressed confidence the money will be returned after the IRS completes its investigation. "Mud slinging," Metzenbaum said, and repeated his invitation "for the colonel to join me on the high level to bring the real issues before the people."

Another time, Metzenbaum was furious when an aide in Glenn's headquarters reportedly told a newsman that the senator's home was built with non-union labor. "A vicious lie," Metzenbaum countered.

Metzenbaum's campaign director, James J. Schiller, asserted the statement was aimed "at the senator's overwhelming support among the working people of this state.

"But it is doomed to fail. It is an unmitigated lie," Schiller said.



JOHN GLENN

HOWARD METZENBAUM

Glenn said Metzenbaum's claim of overwhelming labor support is invalid. Glenn predicts he will have the support of rank-and-file union workers when the polls open.

Metzenbaum has the endorsement of the Ohio AFL-CIO and the United Auto Workers.

Yet, Glenn cites big labor support of his own: 2,500 service employes in Youngstown, teamsters in Dayton, steelworkers in Mansfield and the Paper Workers Union of Ohio. He has picked up endorsements of county Democratic organizations, defecting from state headquarters.

Glenn's greatest county endorsement victory was Franklin County, the state capital which voted for Metzenbaum in 1970.

Metzenbaum, with union help and other major contributors, is expected to match the $800,000 he spent in the 1970 primary, much going to television. Glenn's press secretary estimates the Glenn camp will spend half that.

'Scoop' Jackson enjoys home life

WASHINGTON (AP) — Capitol Hill duties and an avowed interest in considering another bid for the Democratic presidential nomination mean these are busy days for Sen. Henry M. Jackson.

But the four term senator from Washington State tries to find as much time as he can to be with his wife and two young children.

Youthful looking at 61, Jackson as chairman of the Senate Interior Committee has been a key figure in congressional efforts to deal with the energy crisis.

He is also chairman of the Permanent Investigations Subcommittee and a senior member of the Armed Services Committee. An advocate of a strong military posture, Jackson has been an outspoken champion of Israel and a critic of U.S. Soviet detente.

Jackson first came to the Capitol after being elected to the House at age 28. Initially elected senator in 1952, he was re-elected in 1970 with more than 80 per cent of the vote.

Outside his home state, Jackson's major political strength is among leaders of organized labor and party officials in the South and West.

Jackson got the second most votes at the 1972 Democratic National Convention. Though he intends to delay any formal decision for at least a year, he makes no bones about his interest in another presidential race.

After getting up early, the senator shaves, gives his son Peter, 8, a good brushing up, then he's downstairs for breakfast—plus a good morning kiss from his 11-year-old daughter, Anna Marie.

Jackson shares a moment with his wife, the former Helen Hardin, whom he married in 1961 after long years of bachelorhood. He manages to do a bit of tinkering with his 1961 automobile. Then he's off to his Capitol Hill office.

2nd man succumbs to balloon injuries

ZANESVILLE, Ohio (AP) — A second man has died as a result of a balloon crash March 31 near Cambridge.

Tom LeBleu, 38, of El Paso, Tex. died Tuesday en route by ambulance from one hospital to another. LeBleu, a registered geologist, was being transferred from Cambridge to University Hospital in Columbus when his condition worsened. The ambulance was diverted to Zanesville, and LeBleu was dead on arrival at Good Samaritan Medical Center.

The pilot, Clyde H. Jacobs of Cambridge, died after the balloon fell into power lines, severing the gondola from the balloon and plunging the passengers to the ground.

GE and GM fight energy critics

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Two of the giants of U.S. industrial life are showing their bruises from the energy controversy and are fighting their critics with unusually blunt accusations.

Says General Electric: "Appliances are not wasteful users of energy as the public has been led to believe." That belief, claim GE executives, is the result of "misinformation ... and downright bad advice," General Motor's outrage is directed at what it feels are smears contained in a booklet distributed by a Senate subcommittee alleging, among other things, that GM destroyed thriving street railway systems.

"General Motors did not destroy street railway systems," the company said in a 67-page reply. "They failed everywhere because they were no longer able to give adequate service."

It adds that the publication, distributed by the Senate subcommittee on Antitrust and Monopoly, "is replete with additional false and deceptive statements."

Neither company is likely to change attitudes immediately, but their claims seem to open a phase of the energy controversy in which opposing views might be better analyzed and the objective truth distilled from them.

One of the popular assumptions about the shortage is that the proliferation of electric appliances, such as toothbrushes and self-cleaning ovens and the like are among the chief culprits.

But, says GE, a self-cleaning over uses only slightly more electricity than a conventional oven.

A statement released here in March said:

"It is essential to recognize that the 300 million major appliances presently in use consume a small fraction of our total energy. Only about 5 per cent of the total energy supply is being used in the home ..."

GM's anger was made known to the subcommittee in the form of a request to suspend distribution of what it terms a false, misleading document. If that document is distributed again, it asked that GM's position accompany it.

The chief causes for GM's anger were assertions that:

—GM aided the Nazis during World War II through its subsidiary, the Adam Opel Co., After the German invasion of Poland, GM claims, it had little effective control of Opel decisions.

—GM helped supress rail transportation.

—GM helped destroy more than 100 surface rail systems, its motive being to promote the sale of its gasoline-using products.

The company's response was delivered to the subcommittee last week. A company spokesman said discussions were continuing with the subcommittee but that, so far as he could learn, no decision on GM's request has been receive.

9-day strike against Kroger comes to end

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Local 390 of the Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Workers Union ended a nine-day strike against the Kroger Co. Wednesday night by narrowly ratifying a three-year contract, 248-240.

All 60 Cincinnati supermarkets remained open during the walkout. A Kroger candy plant remains struck by the production, shipping, sanitation and oilers union.

The pact means a $1.58-an-hour raise over the three years. Base salary for six-year employes is now $4.20.

The union also won the right to respect the picket lines of other unions after 48 hours. The old contract said five days, officials said.

He will be accompanied by Edward Zickafoose, Lima. Metais has been active in Concert Band (serving as president), Jazz Band, Brass Ensemble, Pep Band, Wind Ensemble and is vice president of Kappa Kappa Psi, honorary band fraternity. He has studied trumpet under Edwin Williams at ONU.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andre Metais, 330 E. Paint St.

A reception will follow the recital, which is open to the public without charge.

Accident prevention lapses under attack

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An eye safety expert has charged that no qualified safety officials are guiding accident prevention programs in the nation's schools.

James O'Neil of the Society for the Prevention of Blindness told the All-Ohio Safety Congress Wednesday every state and county department of education should be required to hire qualified safety specialists similar to those hired by major corporations.

Fined for fighting

A Washington C.H. man was found guilty in Municipal Court Wednesday of disturbing the peace by fighting. Lewis H. Lute, 27, of 1126 Gregg St., was fined $25 by acting Judge John P. Case after being found guilty. The charge had been filed by city police.

Set strike at Ohio U for Monday

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Members of the Student Workers Union have voted to begin a campus-wide strike Monday.

The strike vote came Wednesday night after some 50 student employes ended a one-day walkout at Nelson Commons cafeteria.

Union organizer Mark Stachwell of Columbus said the campus-wide strike "will continue until the university administration recognizes the SWU as a bargaining agent for all student workers or agrees to bargain in good faith."

The union claims to represent 240 of what it says is a total of 1,200 student employes on campus.

The university says there are 2,500 student employes on campus, but the union says it does not include students involved in federally-sponsored work-study programs and those who work less than nine hours a week.

The union claims that 86 per cent of the student employes at the cafeteria stayed off the job, although the cafeteria remained open and most non-student workers reportedly crossed the picket line.

Traffic Court

Two persons forfeited bond Wednesday in Municipal Court when they failed to appear on traffic charges. Acting Judge John P. Case presided.

James M. Kilgore, 24, Greenfield, forfeited $35 on a charge of driving with expired license plates, and Ramond W. Green, 19, Jamestown, $35, on a charge of driving an unsafe vehicle.

Committee to back State Issue No. 2

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Newspaper publisher and former state Rep. E. W. Lampson has announced the organization of a committee to back Issue 2 on the May ballot.

Lampson said the objective of Issue 2 is "to remove an inequitable requirement that the auditor and one commissioner of each county wait two years longer than all other county officials to receive cost of living adjustments."

The Jefferson Gazette publisher said the issue does not provide for salary increases, raising taxes or enabling county officials to vote themselves pay raises.

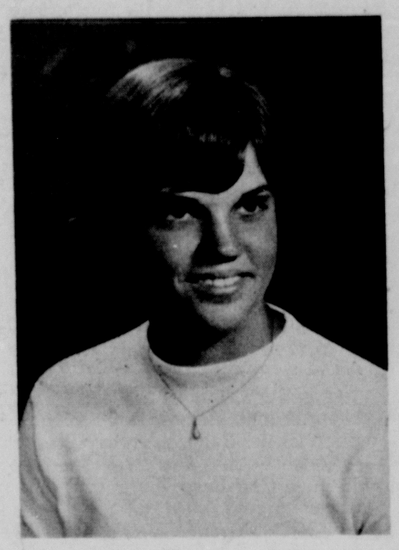
Seniors of the Week



CATHY VAN DYKE

By ANN CAMPBELL

"My high school years were a really great experience, especially those at Laurel Oaks. I encourage all underclassmen to consider attending the vocational school," comments Cathy Van Dyke, our first senior of the week. Cathy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Van Dyke, Rt. 1.

Cathy enjoys sports of every kind, sewing, and working jig-saw puzzles. She is taking cosmetology at Laurel Oaks and works as an Avon saleslady.

After graduation, Cathy plans to work in a beauty shop.

Eileen Nichols, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Nichols, of Bloomingburg, is our second featured senior. Eileen is also taking cosmetology in Laurel Oaks along with American Government. Her hobbies include swimming, dancing, music, and just having fun.

She is a member of VICA, Vocational Industrial Clubs of America, and is secretary-treasurer of her cosmetology class at Laurel Oaks.

Eileen says, "I have greatly enjoyed my years at Miami Trace, especially my years at the vocational school. I'm looking forward to graduation. I'd like to thank Mr. Doyle at Miami Trace for all the assistance he has given me. To the underclassmen I say, 'Get everything out of school that you can, for your experiences will be most rewarding in the future.' "

Eileen plans to continue in the field of cosmetology upon graduation, as a licensed cosmetologist.

Bubbly, and bouncy Jeanette Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Anderson, Rt. 1, Mount Sterling, is our last featured senior this week, Jeanette has been a valuable asset to this year's music department. She had a major role as "Flora" in our musical production of "No, No Nanette", in addition to being an outstanding alto in the Folksingers.

Jeanette is a horse-lover and lists riding as a favorite hobby. She also enjoys playing softball and is on the girls' softball team at Miami Trace, and is in a softball league at London.

JEANETTE ANDERSON

When asked to comment on her past experiences at Trace, Jeanette said, "I can't believe they're over. I will miss the good times but will be glad to graduate."

Although unsure of her career, Jeanette is going to Ohio State. Needless to say, Ohio State will be very lucky in getting such a vivacious young lady.

National Library Week set at MT

By SUSAN THACKER

The slogans for National Library Week (April 21-27) this year are "Grow with Books" and "Get It All Together with Books." Miss Lida Grace Wissler, Miami Trace librarian, would like to encourage all students to do just that. The selection found in the library is very good, and all students should find something to interest them.

National Library Week is an annual event that was established to achieve three basic goals: to inspire, to inform, and to involve. Reading is the gateway to all these things and many more. Through reading one can be shown places he could never imagine on his own. He can never be bored if he lets books excite and challenge him.

So during National Library Week come in and choose a book. Investigate the new cassettes and see a new side of life.

Penalties scheduled for excessive noise

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — The Mansfield City Council has set up misdemeanor penalties for an anti-noise ordinance setting sound limits for trucks, buses, cars and motorcycles.

Sponsor Robert Boling said the ordinance is for "the cowboys — the guys racing and revving up their engines on the streets."

FHA week observed

By BECKY DAVIS

Miami Trace's chapter of Future Homemakers of America, like other chapters throughout the United States, observed National FHA week April 1-5. Each chapter decides what different things it will do each day, and it may choose different things each year.

This year Monday was New Members Day. Each girl in her first year wore a sign saying, "I'm an F.H.A.'er," with her name.

On Tuesday, Mr. Guy Foster, district superintendent, talked with representatives from the club on WCHO radio. He asked about several different things having to do with FHA.

Honor the Teachers Day was Wednesday, and each teacher received an apple. On Thursday the club made cookies for the teachers' lounges.

Friday was Honor the Seniors Day. The senior girls received flowers to wear all day, since this is their last year in FHA.

National FHA week this year was a big success, thanks to the girls who put in their free time working on it and to the teachers for their cooperation.

Garvey cracks two home runs

Los Angeles powders Reds, 14-1

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers stunned the Cincinnati Reds with a walloping 14-1 win Wednesday night to sweep their two-game series and continue to dominate the National League Western Division.

"I don't think they'd better get too gay," said Reds Manager George "Sparky" Anderson. It's still early."

"I'm happy to win these two games and sneak out of town before those guys get hot," said Dodger first baseman Steve Garvey, who belted two home runs in the contest, collecting four runs batted in.

"The Western Division is like an old cowboy movie," Garvey said. "Someone will be waiting in the bushes to ambush us pretty soon. You can take your pick in this division who that someone will be. We've had as much trouble with San Diego as we have with Cincinnati."

Garvey hit his first homer in the seventh to make it a 3-1 ball game. Jim Wynn followed with a homer with two on to chase loser Roger Nelson.

"I think it came at a very good time," said Wynn, acquired from Houston. "It put the icing on the cake and made the pitcher (Doug Rau) and the team relax."

Dodger Manager Walter Alston remained low-keyed. "It's nice to get started well, but it doesn't prove anything. We still have to play all 62 games," he said.

It was the fourth straight victory for the Dodgers who are 9-3 on the young season, leading the division by two games.

Rau, who previously pitched only one-third of an inning, was lifted for a pinch hitter in the eighth by Alston. "I didn't want to take the chance of hurting him," Alston said.

Rau gave up only three hits, one a home run to George Foster, his first of the season. Pete Rose singled in the first inning for his 17th hit in 11 games.

Los Angeles scored two runs in the third inning and four each in the seventh, eighth and ninth.

Johnny Bench, who went hitless in three attempts, suggested Phil Gagliano hit for him in the last inning. Bench has a bad cold, said Anderson.

Hillsboro tatoos Lions, 11-7

By LARRY WATTS
Record-Herald Sports Editor

Washington Senior High's outfield had a busy day Wednesday afternoon. Hillsboro's batters opened their guns full blast and riddled Lion hurler Mark Johnson for 11 hits and 11 runs in handing the Blue Lions a 11-7 defeat.

For the first four innings, the two squads traded the lead back and fourth. Finally, the Indians erupted for five quick runs in the sixth inning to regain the edge for the final time.

Playing right field was like being exposed to the bright lights of an oncoming car. Time and again, routine fly balls kept falling in for hits because the right fielders were losing the ball in the sun.

Although he struck out 13 batters, Indian pitcher Bob Seeling never retired the Lion batters in order. Seeling always had at least one runner on base, as he walked eight and his fielders committed seven errors and two passed balls.

Johnson worked in streaks. At one time, he retired eight consecutive batters. In his six innings, Johnson struck out five and walked one.

Both teams opened the first inning with two runs. The Indians' Dennis Wharton singled and scored on a triple by shortstop Larry Gibbs. Gibbs crossed the plate when Seeling doubled into the sun field.

Washington quickly retaliated, as Johnson opened the Lions' half of the first with a triple into right-center. Third baseman Craig Shaffer drew a walk and stole second. When Shaffer stole second, Indian catcher Kevin Bailey tossed the ball into center field, allowing Johnson to score and bringing Shaffer to third. Shaffer then scored on a wild pitch.

In the bottom of the second, the Lions took a 3-2 lead. Second baseman Herb Bonner was safe on an error and moved to second on Leonard Bick's sacrifice. After regaining new life when his pop foul was dropped, Johnson slammed a triple into deep right field, scoring Bonner.

Hillsboro went back into the driver's seat in the third frame. The Indians sent four runs across the plate, as the big blow came on a two-run double by Brent Zink.

Lion first baseman Allan Coppock put on a one-man show to score one run in the bottom of the third. Coppock reached second on a two base throwing error and proceeded to score on two wild pitches.

Washington went back on top, 7-6, in the fourth. With one out, Johnson walked and stole second. Shaffer walked and both runners advanced on a passed ball. Coppock's double brought Johnson and Shaffer home. After Coppock advanced to third on a wild pitch, Duke Willis' suicide squeeze bunt brought him in.

The Lions' enjoyment was only short-lived, as the Indians came up with five runs in the sixth. Singles by Steve Coy, Zink and Mike McGinnes tied the score. Wharton was safe on a sacrifice bunt, as Zink scored with the deciding run. Gibbs doubled to score both McGinnes and Wharton. Seeling padded his lead by bringing Gibbs in to score with a single.

Hillsboro remains with a perfect 4-0 record for the season. All four victories have been in the South Central Ohio League.

The Lions, now 1-4 for the year and 1-2 in the SCOL, travel to Wilmington tonight.

Perry hurls 15, Brewers beat Tribe in 16th

By The Associated Press

After 15 innings of Gaylord Perry, the Milwaukee Brewers were happy to see someone else. They saw Ken Sanders—but they didn't see him very long.

With Cleveland's ace out of the game at last, Bob Coluccio immediately seized advantage of the situation and hit a home run that carried the Brewers to a 16-inning, 5-4 victory Wednesday night.

"Perry had a good fastball and slider and an awful lot of guts," said Coluccio. "That was the best I've seen him. When a guy 35-years-old throws that kind of stuff for 15 innings, that's super."

Although pitching almost two complete games, Perry didn't want out. "I wanted to stay in," said the Indians' star. "I could have gone more."

Elsewhere in the American League, the Boston Red Sox nipped the New York Yankees 4-3; the Baltimore Orioles beat the Detroit Tigers 6-1; the Texas Rangers defeated the Kansas City Royals 4-2; the Chicago White Sox turned back the Oakland A's 5-3 and the California Angels trimmed the Minnesota Twins 5-3.

Coluccio not only delivered the game-winning hit on a 3-1 pitch leading off the 16th inning, he also broke up Perry's no-hit bid earlier.

Despite the sour luck, Perry was pretty content with his night's work.

"I was mixing a fastball and a hard slider," he said. "The hard slider was rising and the fastball was sinking."

Red Sox 4, Yankees 3

Bernie Carbo and Bob Montgomery drove in eighth-inning runs, lifting Boston over New York. Pat Dobson of the Yankees fell apart after pitching no-hit baseball for six innings.

Dobson lost his no-hit bid and shutout when Carl Yastrzemski hit a home run in the seventh inning, when the Red Sox tied the game 2-2.

"I was throwing fastballs inside to the left-handed hitters all day," said Dobson. "Yastrzemski hit a high fastball that I got too far over the plate. I wouldn't have thrown that pitch with a man on base."

Orioles 6, Tigers 1

Baltimore jumped on Woodie Fryman for five runs in the first inning and Jim Palmer fired a five-hitter to lead the Orioles to victory over Detroit.

Fryman, 0-2, walked Bobby Grich and balked him to second to begin the outburst. Designated hitter Tommy Davis followed with a run-scoring single, then rookie Jim Fuller smashed a two-run homer, his first of the season.

Bill Slayback replaced Fryman and was greeted by a single by Mark Belanger, who drove in the fifth Baltimore run.

Rangers 4, Royals 2

Jeff Burroughs' tie-breaking double in a three-run eighth inning carried Texas over Kansas City.

Pinch-hitter Lenny Randle led off the eighth with a single and reached third when pitcher Gene Garber fielded Dave Nelson's bunt and threw the ball wildly past first base.

Harrah singled to tie the game and, after Alex Johnson bounced into a double play, Burroughs doubled to center field.

White Sox 5, A's 3

Brian Downing's two-run homer capped a three-run, eighth inning for Chicago that carried the White Sox past Oakland.

Angels 5, Twins 3

Bob Oliver hit two home runs, then shortstop Sergio Ferrer's error gave California the tie-breaking run in a two-run seventh that carried the Angels over Minnesota.

Mitterwald's blasts batter Bucs

By The Associated Press

They call Chicago the Windy City—and the hurricane the Pittsburgh Pirates ran into was stirred up by the Cubs' George Mitterwald.

He hit three home runs Wednesday, one of them a grand-slammer, and drove in eight runs as Chicago's Cubs blew out the Bucs 18-9.

"I heard about this wind in Wrigley Field, but I didn't know it could be so beautiful," said Mitterwald, who came to Chicago in an off-season deal with the Minnesota Twins.

In Wednesday's other National League games, Montreal whipped the New York Mets 7-4, Philadelphia beat St. Louis 12-5, Houston downed San Francisco 3-2 and San Diego defeated Atlanta 6-1.

Mitterwald hit his bases-loaded bomb in the first inning, smacked a homer with two men on in the third and socked one with the bases empty in the sixth.

In the eighth, Mitterwald doubled and, when got back to the dugout, the rest of the Cubs zinged him for not hitting a fourth homer.

"If I'd hit a fourth one, I would have fainted," he grinned.

He also got a run batted in with a bases-loaded walk in the fourth inning. "I wanted to try for another homer, but when the count went to 3-0, I was given the take sign," Mitterwald said. "So I got a walk and still produced a run."

Rick Monday, Jerry Morales and Bill Madlock also homered for the Cubs, whose first 10 runs came off Pittsburgh starter Jerry Reuss. Willie Stargell, Richie Hebner and Richie Zisk homered for the Pirates.

Expos 7, Mets 4

"I was kind of excited about getting my first major league homer here," said Barry Foote—and so were the rest of the Expos. It came at a most convenient time, leading off the bottom of the seventh inning, breaking a tie and propelling Montreal past the staggering Mets, who have now lost six straight games.

Bob Bailey also homered and Tim Foli drove in three runs for the Expos. Steve Rogers went the route, giving up six hits. Two of them accounted for all the Mets' runs, a pair of homers by Dave Schneck.

Phils 12, Cards 5

Mike Anderson had four hits and Bill Robinson three in Philadelphia's throttling of St. Louis, the Phillies' sixth straight victory, their best winning streak in four years.

"This is great," said Anderson, who enjoyed his first 4-for-4 game in the majors. "Everybody's sharing the load. With a man in scoring position, if you don't do the job the next guy will."

"The competition makes us all pull a little harder," Robinson agreed.

Astros 3, Giants 2

Ollie Brown's walk, a wild pitch by San Francisco's John D'Acquisto and Dave Kingman's wild throw on Bob Watson's sacrifice bunt gave the Astros the winning run in the seventh inning.

"I wanted to make him field it." Watson said of Kingman. "That was the idea. I think it's the first time I ever bunted against the club."

Padres 6, Braves 1

John Grubb and Fred Kendall each drilled two-run singles in the third inning and Dave Winfield homered in the fifth to lead San Diego past Atlanta.

Jim McAndrew withstood 10 hits by the Braves, four of them by Ralph Garr. "He hit everything I threw up there," said the Padres' pitcher. "Fastball, curveball, forkball...I threw everything at him but the telephone book."

Panthers clip Eagles in extra innings, 6-5

Madison Plains pitcher Rick Forest only walked one Panther, but the one walk proved to be very costly when Miami Trace defeated the Eagles 6-5 in eight innings.

Forest walked pinch-hitter Dan Jones in the top of the eighth frame. Phil Skinner sacrificed Jones to second. Jones took third on a passed ball and scored the winning run on Forest's wild pitch.

The Eagles threatened in the bottom of the eighth, as their first two batters reached base. However, Panther pitcher Randy Reiber managed to fight his way out of trouble by forcing one runner at third and striking out the next two batters.

Reiber turned in another sharp pitching performance, as he struck out six batters in four innings of relief work. Reiber has now struck out 20 batters in 14 innings of pitching in the South Central Ohio League.

Both pitchers slammed key home runs for their squads. Reiber blasted a two-run shot in the fourth, as the Panthers came back to tie the score at 4-4. In the bottm of the seventh, Forest hit a solo shot to send the game into extra innings.

The Panthers are now 3-4 for the season and 3-0 in the SCOL. Tonight, the Panthers will be visiting Circleville.

Lions lose match in sudden death

Washington Senior High's golfers lost a tough match at the Washington Country Club, as Hillsboro defeated the Lions by one stroke in a sudden death playoff.

Both teams finished with team rounds of 182. The Lions sent sophomore Dan Dean back onto the course, while the Indians' representative was Mike Sharkey. Sharkey parred the first hole and Dean shot a bogey to end the match.

Dean was the top medalist for the match, as he shot a 41. David Butterfield carded a 46, while Mike Stanforth and David Garringer had a 47 and 48, respectively.

Steve Thompson's 44 was high for Hillsboro. Mike and Kim Sharkey, Steve Newby and Brian Landrum each shot 46's.

Washington is now 2-4 for the season. The Lions next match will be at Circleville on Friday.

Tigers trounce Lion jayvees

After a nine-run eruption in the third inning, when they sent 14 batters to the plate, the Circleville reserves blasted the Washington C.H. Jayvees 16-5, Wednesday.

Only one extra base hit, a triple by pitcher Brian McGlone, was collected by the Tigers; but they added to that 10 singles and numerous bases on balls off of Lion pitching.

The game was tied 4-4 going into the bottom of the third inning when Circleville unloaded and put the game out of reach. The winner was McGlone, pitching six innings, striking out seven and walking only one. The loser was David Van Dyke.

The Lions collected just six hits, none of which were for extra bases.

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

When I first met Peter Nicastro about 15 years ago, he was an award-winning specialist on portaiture with a studio in Garfield, a small New Jersey town, which earned him an enviable national reputation in the studio portrait field.

After that, we met periodically at professional photography conventions where he continued to win awards and had branched out into photographic lecturing, teaching and writing.

Along the way he had also become a globe-girdling photographer recording travel scenics and native personalities in 51 countries. The pictures were exhibited and brought international notice.

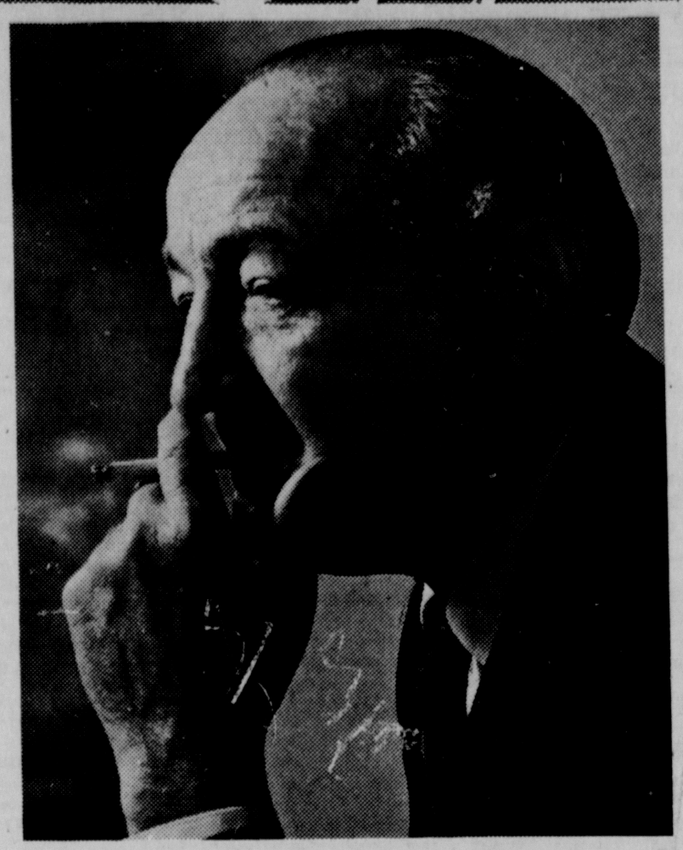
Two years ago I met Nicastro in an exhibition hall in Cologne, Germany, at Photokina, the world's largest photo fair. Did you ever meet someone who was irrespressibly joyful and bubbling with excitement when describing his work? Well, that's Peter Nicastro talking photography or his part in it.

I gathered that lecturing and teaching portraiture had taken up a greater share of his time in recent years but that he felt there had to be a better way for one man to reach a wider audience than one group at one place at one time.

"I believe I've found that better way!" he added. "I've been working for the past year on a modern audio-visual teaching system. It'll consist of a series of slides illustrating tape-recorded lessons and supplemented by a printed workbook for permanent reference.

"It's a way to share the techniques I've been teaching fellow professionals and students for many years. It's a system whereby one recording can reach hundreds of individuals or groups in hundreds of cities at the same time — or at any place or time convenient for any audience.

"I think it's a breakthrough in portrait instruction. . . a teaching method that's not been done before."



PROFILE LIGHTING for a dramatic effect is an example of portraiture by Peter Nicastro of Garfield, N.J. His studio experience and years of teaching are the basis for a new audio-visual self-learning course in basic portrait lighting which combines slides, tape cassette lessons and a studybook so that teaching can be seen, heard and referred to.

THAT BRINGS US to the present chapter of the story. I had another reunion with Nicastro recently and he was as exuberant and spirited as ever but this time like a proud father with a new baby. And that's practically what it was.

Three years of work have produced a tangible result, an audio-visual, self-learning study course: "The Dynamics of Light in Portrait Photography" by Peter A. Nicastro for Photography Learning Systems, Garfield, N.J.

"Here it is," he said. "Although when I saw you in 1972 in Photokina, I had no idea of how many technical complications lay ahead of me. The basic concept of teaching by combining slides with explanatory tape recordings plus a studybook for reference seemed simple enough.

But production of the completed package required the coordinated skills of a great many friends who are also engineers, sound technicians, educators, script writers, editors and printers. With their guidance and expertise, the production came through.

"It's a package of photo education. It's topic is basic lighting in portraiture. Its students can be individuals or groups. They can study anywhere they can set up a tape recorder and a slide projector and screen. The groups can be camera clubs; in neighborhood or hobby centers; or photo classes in high schools, colleges or adult education facilities.

"Teaching portrait lighting by this audio-visual approach is a first of its kind," Nicastro reported. "It's been in operation the past few months and the reports have been good. Now meet the 'baby.' "

THE SELF-LEARNING course consists of a 221-page studybook and 12 separate units called "modules." The modules, numbered 1 through 12, have been arranged to develop orderly learning continuity and, like good teaching in general, should be studied in sequence.

Each module contains a hi-fidelity tape cassette on which is recorded the progressive lessons narrated by Nicastro himself and which range from 14 to 31 minutes in duration. Each module also contains between 33 and 51 slides to illustrate the cassette tape.

The slides are synchronized with the tape text and are advanced when an audible signal is heard.

The supplementary studybook reviews the material covered by the tapes and slides, and adds suggested work that will reinforce the lessons by practical application.

Needless to say, success in learning depends greatly on a student's conscientious attention to the teaching and how much he or she gets involved in the suggested homework.

DIVORCE SUIT FILED

Pauline Perkins, Rt. 3, Greenfield, has filed suit for divorce in Common Pleas Court against Carl E. Perkins, Rt. 2, Chillicothe, on grounds of neglect and cruelty. The parties were married Aug. 23, 1967, in Columbus and have no children, according to the petition. The plaintiff asks temporary and permanent alimony, a property settlement to be determined by the court and that she be restored to her former name, Pauline Cartwright.

Quarterly dividend set by Owen-Illinois

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — The board of directors of Owens-Illinois Inc., has announced a quarterly dividend of 40 cents a common share payable to shareholders of record on May 10.

The board said Wednesday it was the third consecutive year to record an increase in the common share dividend.

Lima State case reviews said needed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Lima State Hospital patients under observation after criminal offenses, must have periodic reviews of their cases, the Ohio Supreme Court has ruled.

In a case involving a Cincinnati man, the court said Wednesday that patients may be held for a "reasonable amount of time," then some disposition must be made of their cases.

The court said if it has been determined that a person cannot be restored to reason, he must be given full consideration for commitment to a mental hospital.

The ruling was in a suit filed by Robert L. Burton, who was charged in Hamilton County Common Pleas Court Aug. 2, 1962, with passing bad checks.

Burton was found mentally unable to stand trial and sent to Lima "until restored to reason."

Nine years later, Burton filed an appeal in Allen County asking to be released from Lima State.

The court ruled Burton still was not capable of standing trial and referred the case to the Allen County Probate Court.

The probate court, finding it "unlikely" Burton would ever be able to stand trial, ordered that he be committed to the Dayton Mental Health Center.

Under Ohio law, persons convicted of sex offenses or other crimes, or thought to be mentally incompetent, may be sent to Lima State for observation before sentencing.

Pregnancy benefits ruled on by court

ST. MARYS, Ohio (AP) — The 3rd District Court of Appeals in Allen County has ruled that female employes at the St. Marys Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. are eligible for 52 weeks of disability benefits for pregnancy.

The court Wednesday issued a ruling supporting an arbitrator's decision which extended the benefits beyond a six weeks' limitation in the disability contract. The court said once the company and union decided to submit to binding arbitration, that decision would hold.

Inventors try heating home with manure

NORTH BRANFORD, Conn. (AP) — Home heating from a manure pile is the ultimate goal of a simple tank converter fashioned by Alton Eliason and Joseph Pelliccio.

Two home-fuel tanks connected by pipes already are producing enough methane gas to heat Eliason's greenhouse, they say.

When the converter is fully operational it will use manure from Eliason's chickens plus dead leaves and plants from the greenhouse to produce gas.

"The residue is even richer than when it went in and will make excellent fertilizer for the greenhouse," Eliason said.

With success and a sufficient supply of chicken manure the two hope to create a larger converter and switch the oil-heating system of Eliason's home to methane gas next winter.

"The beauty of the thing is its cost," Eliason said. The existing converter would cost between $200 and $300 to build, he said, and the gas-making ingredients cost little, if anything.

Home production of methane from animal waste is growing in popularity throughout the country because of the fuel shortage.

Scenic designation set for state river

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Department of Natural Resources has announced the eighth Ohio river to be proposed for scenic designation.

The section of the upper Cuyahoga River is in Geagua and Portage counties and begins at River Park near Burton, ending downstream at the State Route 14 bridge crossing north of Lake Rockwell, the agency said Wednesday.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ♥	Pass	1 NT	2 NT
Pass	3 ♣	Pass	5 ♣

Opening lead - king of hearts.

The light opening bid has much to be said in its favor, but there are times when the bid boomerangs and causes its user endless grief.

Consider this deal from a team match where, at the first table, South got to five clubs after East opened the bidding with a heart. The two notrump bid by North was of the unusual notrump variety and announced a distributional hand with great length in both minor suits.

West led the king and another heart and East continued with a heart, ruffed in dummy. Declarer thus learned that East had a six-card suit, and was of course already aware that East's opening bid was rather lacking in substance.

This knowledge had a great bearing on the problem of how to play the clubs so as to avoid a trump loser, which was the crux of the hand. There was no way of making the contract if East had the guarded king of clubs, so declarer assumed that West had that card.

Accordingly, South played a diamond to the king and led the jack of clubs (not the two, which would ordinarily rank as the better play). West covered with the king, taken by the ace.

The question that now arose was whether East had started with a singleton club, and declarer rightly decided that East would not have opened the bidding without that distributional asset.

South therefore ruffed a diamond, led a club, and finessed the nine. As a result, he made five clubs.

At the other table, where the declarer at the same contract did not have the benefit of an opening bid by East, South played the clubs more normally and went down one.

The Crusty, Dry Nose

I have a hole in the septum of my nose. My nose becomes crusty and dried and I can barely get any breath through it. Can anything be done about it?

Mr. T.I. Vt.

Dear Mr. I.: The nasal septum is the wall that separates one side of the nose from the other. The front part of it is composed of cartilage; the back is a thin bone.

A hole, or perforation, through the septum may be the result of surgery, injury as a result of chronic nose picking, or exposure to chemical fumes.

Young people who have been sniffing cocaine are now sadly paying this additional penalty for their ill-advised habit.

Surgery for the repair of the septum has been tried. Unfortunately, the results are not always gratifying. The perforation may return, and get even larger.

Continued lubrication with simple mineral oil softens the crust and makes the condition more bearable. Steam inhalations may be soothing. There are also a number of excellent techniques that can be used by the ear, nose and throat specialist. This should make you more comfortable.

My 14-year-old daughter has a trichomona of the vagina. Isn't this most unusual in a young unmarried child?

Mrs. M.D.V. S.C.

Dear Mrs. V.: Trichomonas vaginalis is a common infection that is more annoying than serious. It occurs far more often in adults than in children. Yet children can become infected with the protozoan organism; trichomonas vaginalis.

It sometimes spreads through camps and schools when rigid rules of cleanliness are not observed. Frequent bathing and individual towels can prevent its spread.

There now are a number of excellent drugs which can control this condition.

Only recently, greater attention has been paid to the fact that husbands may harbor the protozoa on their skin, and thus continue to re-infect their wives.

This should be considered in cases of adult infection.

Minor mishaps reported

A hitskip accident and a damaged street sign were reported by city police overnight, while the Fayette County Sheriff's Department listed a minor incident yesterday involving a broken drive-shaft.

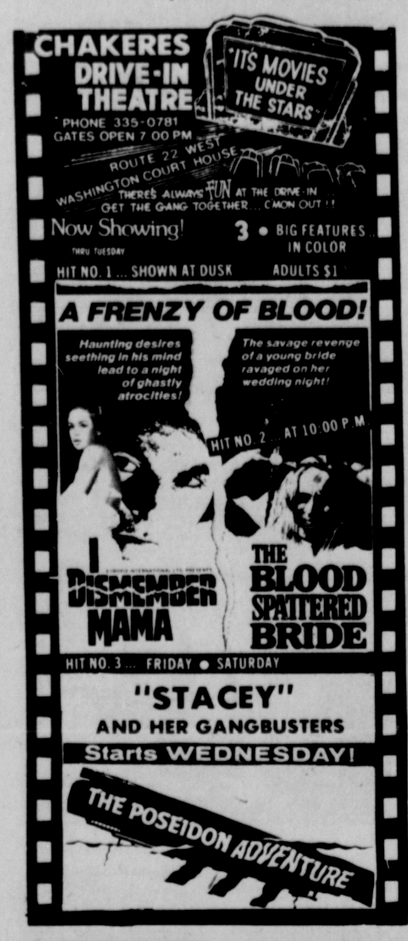
A car driven by Karen L. Wheeler, 25, of 1062 Lewis St., ran off N. North Street and onto the curb where it hit a street marker Wednesday. The incident occurred near the Paint Street intersection.

The drive-shaft on a semi truck, driven by Wiley S. Hansen, 54, Zanesville, broke at 3:45 p.m. yesterday while Hanson was traveling on U.S. 35, 100 feet southeast of Palmer Road.

A car driven by Larry D. Sholler, 16, Rt. 2, which was following the semi, ran over the drive-shaft and was damaged slightly, sheriff's deputies reported.



Tire fire causes damage to truck

When semi driver, Gerald Peters, 41, Chillicothe, stopped for the traffic light at the intersection of U.S. 35 and Palmer Road at 2:55 p.m. Wednesday, he saw and smelled smoke coming from his rear tires.

The Washington C.H. Fire Department was summoned to the scene and doused the burning rear tires with water.

Sheriff's Sgt. Bill Crooks said the fire was caused by an overheated brake. The semi belong to Chef's Supply Inc., Chillicothe. Damage was estimated at $50.

The operator of the yellow van, which had Florida plates, purchased $7.33 worth of gasoline at the Sohio Truck Stop, U.S. 35 and I-71, at 10:15 p.m. Wednesday and left the premises without paying. Sheriff's deputies are seeking the van.

A bad check for $31.73 was passed at Sea-way, CCC-Highway-W, on March 10, the sheriff's office was told.

Mark Frechette given sentence

BOSTON (AP) — Mark Frechette, star of the film "Zabriskie Point," has been sentenced to six to 15 years at Walpole State Prison after pleading guilty to the armed robbery of a city bank last August.

Frechette, 25, was sentenced Wednesday along with Sheldon T. Bernhard, 31, a fellow member of the Fort Hill commune in Boston's Roxbury section.

Both men were arrested inside the Brigham Circle branch of the New England Merchants National Bank in Roxbury Aug. 30, 1973. A third member of the holdup team, Christopher Thien, 15, was shot and killed by police.

Appeals board OKs 2 variances, denies 1

Two variances were granted and a third denied by the Washington C.H. Zoning Board of Appeals at its regular meeting Wednesday night in the City Office Building.

Glenn Tatman, city inspector, said the city zoners granted variances to the United Farm Agency, of Akron, which is establishing a real estate office in Washington C.H., to erect two signs, but turned down a request for the erection of a third sign.

Robert E. Lewis, a Fayette County real estate broker and developer, applied for the variances for Gordon West, a representative of the United Farm Agency. Lewis owns the property located at 1013 Clinton Avenue and is leasing it to the Akron real estate firm.

The board granted the applicant variances to erect a 1-by-2 foot sign in the front window of the building and a 5-by-8 foot unlighted sign to be placed flush against the west wall of the building.

However, the board turned down the applicant's request to erect a 3-by-4 foot neon sign in the front yard of the property.

The real estate firm was granted permission recently by the City Zoning Board of Appeals to establish an office in the vacant brick building on Clinton Avenue. But, the firm had neglected to mention erecting signs at the earlier meeting.

Downtown Assn. elects directors

Two Washington C.H. men were re-elected to terms on the Washington Downtown Association board of directors at the annual shareholders meeting held Wednesday night in the Sam Marting lodge, CCC Highway-W.

Re-elected to three-year terms were A.C. Heer, 628 S. Main St., and Paul Lipschutz, 545 Mayfair Dr. The terms of both Heer and Lipschutz had expired and they will be serving until February, 1977.

Heer and Lipschutz will join Walter Morrow, Jack Alkire, Billie Wilson, Lee Kraus and Marting on the board.

U.N. Assembly seeks to help poor nations

But they can't agree on where the money for the immediate special measures is coming from.

The "working party" of the Assembly's special economic session decided Wednesday night that various proposals for easing the present hardships of needy countries should be taken up ahead of longer-range matters.

Chairman Eustace Seignoret of Trinidad-Tobago asked for specific proposals in writing for the discussion starting today, midpoint of the special session.

A cabinet minister from Sri Lanka told the assembly that fuel, food and fertilizer price rises have brought "some developing countries...including my own...to the brink of a disaster."

It is a disaster "which could not merely imperil economic development programs but which could even threaten the very foundations of their social and political order... Some measures of urgent and immediate relief must be found while the ultimate solution is being sought," said Felix Dias Bandaranaike, the Asian island nation's minister of public administration, local government, home affairs and justice.

Bandaranaike said his country must pay 300 per cent more than it did in 1973 for oil, 162 per cent more for fertilizer and 170 per cent more for rice and flour.

Proposals have been submitted or are expected from Iran, France, Japan, Romania, Zaire, West Germany, Ivory Coast, Argentina, Algeria, the United States and Italy.

But there is a basic conflict over the main source of new funds to feed and fuel the approximately 30 poorest countries hit hardest by rising oil and fertilizer prices. Their added costs through the end of 1975 have been estimated at from $9.5 billion to $12 billion.

The industrialized countries are asking the oil exporting nations to contribute generously of their new wealth. Major Middle East oil nations have replied at the assembly that prime responsibility rests with the advanced nations.

Council reviews salary changes

A proposal for an improvement in the salaries and benefits for city employes was reviewed by members of Washington C.H. City Council at a special session Thursday morning in the City Office Building.

City Manager Dan Wolford said the pay increase proposal was presented to Council members for review by Hugh S. Patton and Ralph Cook, who comprise Council's personnel committee.

Wolford said he will be reviewing and discussing the package with various city department heads before legislation is prepared for Council's final consideration of the proposal.

No details on the contents of the salary increase and benefit proposal were released.

Talking trash can swallows garbage, says 'Thank You'

BROOKVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — He talks, he sings, he makes slightly risque suggestions and he swallows garbage.

He's Arthur, the talking trash can.

His inventor thinks a kind word from Arthur encourages people to fill him with garbage rather than dump it where it doesn't belong.

Arthur's voice is a tape cassette, activated when trash is stuffed into the 45-gallon can.

Hamad said he has five different tapes for Arthur. Several say, "Thank you," one plays music and another makes random noises.

And then there is what Hamad calls the "X-rated tape."

Hamad says it's "kind of corny, but says things like, 'Meet me up in your room in 10 minutes with a whip and a prune danish.'"

But Hamad says a simple "thank you" seems to work best.

Arthur is a standard plastic trash can. There is a face painted on the lid, with blond hair, blue eyes and yellow teeth. The teeth surround a plastic mouth attached by a hinge, through which garbage is deposited.

When the mouth is pushed, the cassette is activated.

Hamad says he placed Arthur in a college dining hall for about four hours one day.

For the first hour, the cassette was turned off, and only 20 persons stuffed garbage in Arthur.

For the next three hours, the cassette was turned on and "a few hundred people" used Arthur, Hamad said.

But Hamad says Arthur has been used only for about 15 hours and more data is needed to confirm his theory that people are more likely to use trash cans if the can talks back, and to determine whether the novelty will wear off.

"Basically it's an example of behavior modification, it's merely a mild form of reward," Corey said.

Hamad says some students have had trouble coping with Arthur, the gabby garbage collector.

"One person had keys in his hand and he thought it was a regular garbage can," Hamad said. "He was sort of taken aback by the response the can gave him. He dropped his keys in it and we had to take the whole thing apart to get his keys back."

Glenn OKs debate with Metzenbaum

By The Associated Press

U.S. Senate candidate John Glenn accepted his opponent's challenge Wednesday to public debates, but he promised U.S. Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, he would press hard on the issue of "openess and candor" in financial disclosures.

In response, Metzenbaum, on the campaign trail in Canton, said he "is anxious to ask Col. Glenn a few questions about his finances, too."

Glenn said he would debate Metzenbaum April 25 on WEWS-TV in Cleveland, May 1 at the Cincinnati Communications Coalition and May 3 at the Cleveland City Club.

"I believe the public's right to see the candidates for the Democratic nomination discuss issues on the same platform should not be impaired any longer by Howard's refusal to make a complete financial disclosure," Glenn said.

Responded Metzenbaum: "I am pleased that John Glenn has partially capitulated on the issue of free and open debate. But he is still running away from making himself available in Columbus, Toledo and Dayton."

Glenn earlier had accepted a date to debate Metzenbaum in Cleveland, then changed his mind saying he would only participate in a debate if Metzenbaum disclosed his federal income tax returns for 1969-72.

Glenn said Wednesday the same provision goes for any dedates other than the three he listed.

Both candidates disclosed their federal and state income tax returns for 1973, but Metzenbaum has refused to disclose prior income tax forms claiming they include information about private individuals who have not waived their rights to privacy.

Earlier in the year Metzenbaum released financial information which he said should clear up any questions about conflicts of interest.

Metzenbaum and Glenn both were scheduled to be in Cleveland tonight for fund-raising dinners.

In other Ohio politics, state Sen. Tony P. Hall, D-6 Dayton, candidate for secretary of state, blasted the Republican incumbent for a 24-year record of perpetuating "outdated election practices." Hall charged that Secretary of State Ted W. Brown "has consciously maintained practices which systematically deny the right to register and vote to thousands of Ohioans."

The unopposed Republican incumbent said his office for years has "been responsible for legislation that makes it easier to register and vote."

Mideast crisis worsens

Egypt threatens to join fighting

By The Associated Press

Israeli planes bombed and strafed Syrian positions on strategic Mt. Hermon again today, Egypt hinted it might join the battle, and another terrorist explosion erupted in a Tel Aviv suburb, injuring 13 persons, officials reported.

The Israeli planes scrambled following artillery barrages aimed at Israeli troops occupying the 9,232-foot mountaintop, often described as Israel's Middle East eyes, an Israeli spokesman said.

At the same time Syrian gunners also opened up on Israeli forces in the southern sector of the 300-square-mile Syrian enclave captured last October, the Israelis said. But the Syrians charged the Israelis with firing first.

It was the second straight day Israeli planes were called into action and the fourth time in a week.

Israel has held all high ground on Hermon since the October war. From the craggy windswept top viewers can see Damascus and beyond, the Israelis say.

In Cairo, War Minister Ahmed Ismail said Egypt would fight alongside the Syrians if the situation on the Golan Heights became critical.

Ismail, who is commander in chief of the armies of both Syria and Egypt, said: "If the fighting became more serious or the situation became critical, no doubt we will take part."

In the Tel Aviv surburban village of Pardes Katz, an Israelimade hand grenade exploded, wounding 12 Arabs and one Jew, the Israeli military command reported.

The blast came as Israel sirens sounded throughout the Jewish state marking the annual day of mourning for six million Jews slaughtered by the Nazis in World War II, and less than 24 hours after the body of a Jerusalem taxi driver was found wired tt a booby trap.

Guerrilla sabotage bombs have been going off in Israel almost daily for the past few weeks.

The Israeli military command reported a one-hour air attack on the Mt. Hermon range Wednesday but gave no details. It said all the planes returned to their bases.

Steel prices likely to rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Director John T. Dunlop of the Cost of Living Council says an estimated 13.6 per cent increase in costs for the nation's steel firms will result in sharply rising steel prices.

"We expect prices to increase substantially," Dunlop told a news conference Wednesday.

Steel companies will be free to raise prices without government interference when wage and price controls expire April 30.

"We think there will be rather substantial inflationary pressures in the economy growing out of steel prices," Dunlop said.

He noted that the pending price increases would be on top of the 9.2 per cent hikes already allowed the steel industry during the Phase 4 controls program.

The 13.6 per cent increase in costs projected by the steel companies would be for the period from Jan. 31 to July 31, according to Dunlop.

Simon to tackle inflation problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — The country's high inflation rate will replace the energy crisis as the number one challenge for William E. Simon, President Nixon's choice as his fourth secretary of the Treasury.

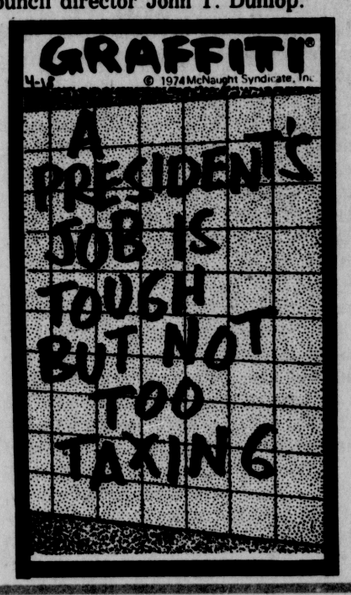
Nixon named the 46-year-old millionaire and former Wall Street investment banker to succeed economist George P. Shultz, who steps down in May after nearly two years at the Treasury Department helm.

Simon has served since December as head of the Federal Energy Office. The White House said he will be succeeded as energy administrator by his deputy, John C. Sawhill, 37.

Simon's appointment as Treasury secretary is expected to touch off a struggle among Nixon's economic advisers to gain a portion of the considerable influence over economic policy-making held by Shultz.

Nixon said he would take a more active hand himself in economic planning and will head the important Council on Economic Policy, a post previously held by Shultz.

Other positions held by Shultz that will not go to Simon include assistant to the President for domestic and international economic policy, which will remain unfilled for the time being, and chairman of the Cost of Living Council, a position of declining influence that will be filled on an interim basis by council director John T. Dunlop.



Sources say that Simon will face a difficult challenge in the international policy-making arena from Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who Monday showed his interest in this field in an important statement on U.S. foreign economic policy delivered to the United Nations in New York.

But Simon is said by aides to feel the major problem facing him as Treasury secretary will be the country's worsening inflation rate, which saw consumer prices rise 8.8 per cent last year, and at a 12 per cent rate during the first two months of this year.

Simon is said to generally support the approach to inflation followed by Shultz, including steps to increase agricultural supplies combined with conservative spending and money supply policies.

Like Shultz, Simon is cool to economic controls.

Simon likely will give additional details on his thinking on ways of combatting inflation when he appears before the Senate Finance Committee for confirmation hearings; expected early next week.

Nixon pledges Latin trade

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has pledged efforts to lower U.S. trade barriers with Latin America and said he will encourage American private investment in the region.

Serving as host for 24 Latin American foreign ministers at a White House dinner Wednesday night, Nixon listed trade and private investment as two essential ingredients for overcoming Latin America's development problems.

On private investment, one of the most sensitive areas in inter-American relations, Nixon said, "we recognize that each government has the sovereign right to determine the rules for investors in its country, but we also believe that private investment is the richest potential source of technology, capital and organizational skills the developing world needs."

The ministers dined with Nixon after spending the afternoon in private, informal consultations with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

By DAVID C. MARTIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — While Congress is in recess, nearly four dozen senators and representatives are traveling overseas at taxpayer expense — "feeding at the trough" as one State Department official put it. Many are accompanied by their wives.

The legislators are members of delegations to international conferences in Romania, Malaysia, Korea and Taiwan.

Their itineraries also include stops in Paris, Athens, Istanbul, Singapore and Hong Kong. They travel in Air Force planes, and at each stop are eligible for $75 a day spending money.

On two of the trips, the congressional delegations will meet with legislators from other countries to "talk and pass resolutions on international topics of the day," said the State Department official who asked not to be named. A third group will look on as observers while outgoing Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz participates in the annual meeting of the Asian De Development Bank in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia.

On all three trips, some wives are going along "for protocol reasons," said an aide to Rep. Melvin Price, D-Ill. Price and his wife are part of a 50-person delegation headed by House Majority Leader Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill, D-Mass., attending interparliamentary conferences in South Korean and Taiwan.

The State Department handles arrangements for most overseas trips but refers all queries concerning itineraries to Capitol Hill.

Asked why the State Department would not release unclassified information relating to travel at public expense, one department official explained that "their first allegiance is to the congressmen, and you don't want to be running around advertising that your principals are feeding at the trough."

Members of the O'Neill delegation are stopping off for two days in Hong Kong, with the option of a side trip to Saigon, on the way to South Korea and Taiwan. Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., and his wife went along because "Mo thought it'd be a fun trip," an aide said.

The group of 19 senators and congressmen, plus wives and staff members, attending the annual meeting of the Interparliamentary Union in Bucharest, Romania, are going by way of Greece, Turkey and Bulgaria, a memo to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee says, and will fly to Paris for the weekend before returning home.

Demo election wins to shape strategies

Their collective clout in Washington doesn't add up to much. They are, after all, the most junior members of the House of Representatives.

But the way they got there will be a significant factor in shaping campaign strategy in both political parties for the congressional election season just ahead.

For they are the men who won the special House elections of 1974, all in what had been safely Republican districts. All but Californian Lagomarsino are Democrats.

"No Republican should assume he has a safe seat any more," said Sen. Robert P. Griffin of Michigan, the Senate GOP whip.

Democrat Traxler's victory in the Saginaw, Mich., area made it four out of five for Democrats — and while the White House said President Nixon was not disheartened, some Republicans who will be running in November obviously were.

"It appears some Democrats are riding the President's coattail to Washington," said Republican Gov. William G. Milliken of Michigan, where VanderVeen earlier captured another traditionally GOP House seat.

In each of the five special elections, the issues raised had included national and area economic problems, Watergate and the President himself.

Although Nixon spent a day campaigning for Traxler's Republican opponent, the White House maintained that the President had not become the big issue in Tuesday's election.

No one can prove or disprove that Nixon's situation was behind the Republican defeats there and elsewhere. But each of the districts involved went Republican by a landslide margin in 1972, before the scandals unfolded.

Together, the five elections point to a protest vote aimed at the Republican White House.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., who is running for re-election this year, said he was concerned about a backlash against all Republicans because of Watergate.

Vice President Gerald R. Ford said the trend in the special elections pointed to an overwhelming Democratic majority in the House next year. "One party control is not good for America," Ford said.

That, and the comments of other Republicans about the danger of damage to the two-party system itself, sound a good deal like the GOP comeback theme that followed landslide congressional losses in the 1964 presidential defeat of Sen. Barry Goldwater.

Patty Hearst bank holdup role still subject of dispute

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Was Patricia Hearst forced to take part in the Symbionese Liberation Army bank robbery?

Everyone from the U.S. attorney general to the governor of California seems to have a different opinion.

U.S. Atty. Gen. William Saxbe told a Washington news conference Wednesday he personally thought that Miss Hearst "was not a reluctant participant in this robbery."

He labeled the SLA a group of "common criminals" and said he included Miss Hearst "as part of them."

Miss Hearst was abducted Feb. 4. In the last communique from the SLA, which claimed it kidnaped her, Miss Hearst scorned her parents and said she had joined her captors.

The FBI has issued a warrant for Miss Hearst's arrest as a material witness to Monday's armed holdup at a Hibernia Bank branch, in which five bandits who identified themselves as members of the SLA stole $10,690. Two bystanders were shot during the getaway.

Authorities said Miss Hearst was identified as one of the five from automatic photographs taken in the bank during the holdup.

Miss Hearst's father, newspaper executive Randolph A. Hearst, refused to comment on Saxbe's remarks, except to call them "speculation."

In Sacramento, Gov. Ronald Reagan said he believed Miss Hearst acted under duress — "There still is no conclusive proof that she was there or participating of her own free will."

U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr. said a federal grand jury is reviewing the evidence and might issue indictments by next week.

Edward Shea, 66, a guard at the bank, said the woman identified as Miss Hearst took an active role in the holdup, "giving orders and all that, saying she would shoot the first guy that moved.

"She wasn't scared. She let it be known that she meant business. She had a gun and looked ready to use it."

After studying the photographs, Miss Hearst's mother, Catherine, said she wasn't convinced her daughter was even a participant.

Greece and Turkey dispute oil rights in Mediterranean

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — The armed forces of Greece and Turkey have been quietly put in a state of preparedness because of the controversy between their governments over oil rights in the Aegean Sea and Cyprus, informed sources reported today.

Travelers arriving from Turkey reported "unusual military activity," including tanks and other armor in operation, on both sides of the 125-mile border.

The Greek navy also was reported in a state of readiness. The government announced it was sending only one destroyer to take part in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization manuevers that began today off the western Italian coast.

A pro-government Athens newspaper accused the Turkish government of "issuing threats of war" in demanding oil prospecting rights in the Aegean and the creation in Cyprus of a federation of the Turkish and Greek Cypriot communities.

"Turkey is mobilizing the masses and is almost demanding the re-establishment of the Ottoman Empire, the setting of the Turkish flag on the Acropolis and the governing of Greece by some fat pasha," said Eleftheros Kosmos, apparently speaking on behalf of the Greek military regime.

Turkey began demanding oil rights in the Aegean after oil was discovered off the Greek island of Thassos, in the northeast Aegean. Greece claims that each of the 1,250 Greek islands in the Aegean — some of which are in sight of the Turkish mainland — has its continental shelf, in effect making the Aegean a Greek lake.

Woman, 76 admits sale of heroin

NORRISTOWN, Pa. (AP) — A 76-year-old woman who came to court in a wheelchair and admitted selling heroin has been sentenced to six years of unsupervised probation by a judge who liked her cooking.

Judge Frederick B. Smillie, recalling fondly how much he'd enjoyed Blanche Smith's food when she ran a local restaurant, handed down the decision in Montgomery County Court on Wednesday.

"If it can be used for the vice president of the United States, it can be used for you," Smillie told Mrs. Smith, referring to the sentence of unsupervised probation.

Mrs. Smith had pleaded guilty to charges of selling heroin to state police undercover agents.

State police said they raided her home three times in 1972 and each time they found heroin.

"I don't believe you were engaged in drug traffic," the judge told her. "Your son who is downstairs on a murder charge used you as a fall guy. You collected the money that he finally got."

Mrs. Smith's son Donald is in jail awaiting trial on charges of murder and drug trafficking.

Before sentencing, prosecutor Theodore Swain asked the judge: "The problem is, what do we do with a 76-year-old heroin pusher?"

"You don't really believe she is a pusher, do you?" the judge replied.

aboard the plane carrying Secretary Shultz and will spend time in the Philippines, Indonesia and Singapore before arriving in Kuala Lumpur next week for the two-day meeting of the Asian Development Bank.

The cost of the foreign travel will remain largely hidden from public view. Flights aboard Air Force planes disappear into the mammoth Pentagon budget while the State Department absorbs much of the cost incurred by various U.S. embassies charged with entertaining the visiting congressmen.

The $75 a day in expense money also is furnished by the State Department in the form of U.S. owned foreign currencies. Members are required to make public the amount of these so-called "counterpart funds" spent in each country, but records of past accountings give little indication of what the money actually was spent on.

Regardless of what budget the money comes from, all expenses are met with funds originally authorized and appropriated by Congress. "It's a nowin situation," the State Department official said. "It's all money appropriated by the self-same congressmen who are spending it."

Bar group eyes Nixon and Mitchell

The probe is part of a nationwide investigation by bar associations into all lawyers allegedly linked to the Watergate case and related matters, Bonomi said.

Information for the probes has come from Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski and the Senate Watergate committee, Bonomi said Wednesday in a telephone interview.

Also involved in the city probe are Gordon Strachan, a former aide to H.R. Haldeman, former White House chief of staff; David R. Young, former co-director of the White House "plumbers;" and an unidentified lawyer, Bonomi said. All are licensed to practice in New York.

John D. Ehrlichman, former presidential adviser; Herbert W. Kalmbach, Nixon's former personal attorney; and political saboteur Donald H. Segretti are the subjects of similar investigations in California where they are licensed to practice, he said.

Any disbarment proceedings against the President will be held up and will rest on the question of whether a President in office may be prosecuted in the courts or subpoeaned to appear before an investigating committee, excluding a congressional impeachment panel, Bonomi said.

Auto emission guarantee under fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — A spokesman for independent manufacturers of automobile parts has criticized the government's requirement for longterm warranties on auto emission controls.

Harold T. Halfpenny told a congressional panel Wednesday that implementation of a provision in the 1970 Clean Air Act "will mean economic catastrophe to the thousands of small independent businesses that now make up the aftermarket industry."

The act stipulates that auto manufacturers must warrant antipollution equipment for five years or 50,000 miles.

Halfpenny, general counsel of the Automotive Service Industry Association, testified before a House small business subcommittee that the warranty provision "will create a monopoly" for the automakers and their dealers.

He said there was every indication that auto manufacturers will insist on use of their own parts as a condition of the warranty.

The car owner "has no choice, he must bring it to the dealer...and while he is there he will have other parts and services supplied by the dealer that are not covered by the warranty, thus further cutting into the independent automative aftermarket."

A large ridge of high pressure stretching from the Gulf Coast to the Ohio Valley is now beginning to move eastward allowing an area of showers over the Mississippi Valley to pose some threat of ending Ohio's fair weather of the past two days.

A weak frontal system dropping southward across the Great Lakes also complicates the weather pattern somewhat. This front is producing very little active weather at the present time, according to the National Weather Service, but offers some threat of showers over northern Ohio by tonight.

Mild temperatures will continue south of the front today but some cooling over northern sections is likely tonight and Friday.

Highs in the state Wednesday were mostly in the 60s and today's readings are expected to be about the same or a few degrees warmer.

A chance of showers Sunday and Monday. Above-normal temperatures are forecast across the state Saturday through Monday with highs in the upper 60s and the 70s and lows in the 50s.

Clear skies favor U.S.

By The Associated Press

Fair skies stretched across most of the nation today, while a band of showers spotted areas from Texas into Wisconsin.

Scattered showers also sprinkled the Carolina coasts and southern Florida, with about a half inch reported at Fayetteville, N.C., before dawn.

Along the upper Pacific Coast, light rain fell and skies were increasingly cloudy.

Cooler air moved into the upper Great Lakes region, while temperatures in the eastern half of the country were generally below normal.

are likely to lead many Republican candidates to seek to put some room between themselves and the administration, particularly the President. Nixon was quoted weeks ago as saying privately that he understood some Republicans would find it necessary to do so. Democratic candidates are just as likely to do what Traxler did, and try to depict their GOP rivals as Nixon men.

Ford and other GOP leaders said the Democratic special election victories should have no bearing on House action on Nixon's impeachment.

Of course, there are four more Democratic votes now.

But the political situation could have a more significant, indirect effect on Republican House members. The defeats, the polls, and in many cases, their own surveys of constituents, indicate that the President's political power has ebbed to the point at which it doesn't have to be a factor in their individual decisions on impeachment.

While politicians weigh the impact of their elections, Reps. Traxler, VanderVeen, Lagomarsino, Murtha of Pennsylvania and Luken of Ohio will have to start campaigning all over again.

The terms they won last only for the balance of this year. To stay in the House, they'll have to run and win again in November.

Stock prices edge lower

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market returned to a sluggish, drifting pattern today as a two-day rally ran out of steam.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 1.64 at 865.77, but gainers and losers were just about even in light trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Colonial Penn Group was the NYSE volume leader, up 1⅜ at 30⅛ in trading that included a 124,700-share block at 29½. The stock sold for as much as 57⅞ earlier this year. On Wednesday the company said it expected to show a strong first quarter earnings gain.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .18 at 94.73.

Other Big Board issues on the active list included National Airlines, up ⅜ at 21⅝. The airline reported sharply higher first quarter earnings today.

Bausch & Lomb, also benefitting from a favorable first quarter report, was up ⅝ to 34⅛.

Oils were generally fractionally higher. Golds also gained, but other metals issues softened. Autos and most retail stocks were lower.

The Amex's most heavily traded issue was Texas International, unchanged at 8⅛.

The Big Board's composite index of all its listed common stocks was down .03 to 50.21 at mid-day.

Penn Central capitulates to Teamsters

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Penn Central Railroad has capitulated to Teamsters Union pickets who had been resisting a railroad proposal to shift jurisdiction of several hundred workers in piggyback rail-truck terminals from the Teamsters to another union.

Pickets have seriously hampered freight and mail operations in terminals in New York City; Chicago; St. Louis; Boston; Cincinnati and Columbus, Ohio; Indianapolis and Elkhart, Ind.; and Weehawken, North Bergen, South Kearny and Port Newark, N. J.

A management statement issued Wednesday night said the Penn Central had instructed the president of its division, Pennsylvania Trucking Lines, to offer the Teamsters "a return to the status quo."

A railroad spokesman said, "Pennsylvania Trucking Lines employes are now in the process of making contact with the Teamsters locals in order to determine if an agreement can be reached that will allow the Penn Central terminals to resume operations."

He said he expected there would be no final settlement until sometime Thursday, but added that the union had not mentioned any other grievances.

Teamsters officials have said their picketing meant that as much as 90 per cent of the goods, including perishables, shipped by the Penn Central were rerouted to other railroads, causing delays of several days.

The strike was called because the Penn Central wanted to transfer the workers from the Pennsylvania Truck Lines to another division, which also would transfer them to the jurisdiction of the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks.

The teamsters asserted that their contract, running through 1976, barred the change.

Picketing began in the New York-New Jersey area April 1. It was halted by court action until last week, when a federal court judge in Newark lifted a temporary injunction against the picketing.

Wheat exports below prediction

AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Only a few months ago Agriculture Department figures showed wheat exports might shoot over 1.3 billion bushels this fiscal year and leave the U.S. bread grain reserve at practically zero by midsummer.

But now some in the trade think shipments will have to pick up sharply in the next two months if wheat exports are to match the USDA's prediction of 1.2 billion bushels.

George S. Shanklin, one of the department's export watchers in the Foreign Agricultural Service, said Wednesday "we have no reason right now" to reduce the 1973-74 wheat export estimate below the 1.2 billion bushels projected earlier.

The possibility that wheat exports might drop significantly was raised by reports showing clearances from U.S. ports last week totaled around 8.5 million bushels. That was the lowest one-week export total in about two years, Shanklin said.

Wheat shipments from U.S. ports had averaged about 18 million bushels per week since Jan. 1. During peak activity last year they rose to more than 32 million bushels per week.

The low mark for wheat exports last week raised doubts among some grain traders that shipments would pick up enough from now on to boost the total for the year ending June 30 to the department's estimate of 1.2 billion.

Reports filed by exporters showed that nearly 932.8 million bushels of wheat had been shipped as of March 31 for the fiscal year which began last July 1. Wheat remaining for delivery to known destinations this fiscal year totaled 221.5 million, unknown destinations added another 58.1 million.

Thus, counting wheat already shipped and the total exporters said remained for delivery, the gross wheat exports by June 30 could total slightly more than 1.2 billion bushels.

Shanklin said the arrival of spring shipping from Great Lakes ports is expected to stimulate wheat exports from now on. Thus, he said, the 1.2 billion bushels estimated still appears a sound figure.

Assuming that, the wheat reserve on July 1 would be 180 million bushels, far below the 483 million bushels of last summer and the stockpile of 863 million on July 1, 1972.

Farmers will begin harvesting 1974-crop wheat in southern areas by late May, with the new crop developing for market in Kansas in early June.

Stans denies secret contribution illegal

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Commerce secretary Maurice H. Stans says he had a mandate to keep secret financier Robert L. Vesco's $200,000 cash contribution to President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign. He swears he was not covering up any misdeeds of his own, or anyone else.

Stans testified about a March 14, 1972, meeting of campaign officials, including four White House aides. He said it was decided not to follow the lead of Democratic presidential aspirant George McGovern, who voluntarily released names of campaign contributors.

"I took that as a mandate to me to do everything possible to insure the privacy of these contributors," Stans told a jury Wednesday at his federal conspiracy trial. He is a codefendant with John N. Mitchell, the former attorney general.

"That was behind the whole thing," the 66-year-old Stans said at another point. "Vesco made a contribution in private and privacy was his constitutional right under the law. I was doing my best to protect Robert Vesco and every other contributor up to April 7."

A new law effective April 7, 1972, mandated the reporting of all campaign contributions from that point on.

Stans was still under direct examination when the trial recessed for the night. He will return to the stand when it resumes today.

Mitchell and Stans are accused of conspiring to obstruct justice for allegedy attempting to impede a Securities and Exchange Commission fraud investigation into Vesco's affairs, in exchange for the $200,000 cash contribution, and later lying about it to a grand jury.

One of the most potent government witnesses against Stans was G. Bradford Cook, general counsel and later chairman of the SEC. He admitted he lied under oath about Stans on five earlier occasions, but insisted his trial testimony was the truth.

In line with a key clause in the conspiracy count, Cook testified Stans got him to change a paragraph in a proposed SEC complaint about Vesco, to delete specific reference to the transfer of the $200,000 in cash that made up the contribution.

"I did not ask Brad Cook to delete anything on that occasion or any other occasion," said Stans. He said Cook told him he was having the paragraph reworked at his own instigation because it was too "sensational."

Sterilization lawsuit filed

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A 36-year-old divorcee on public assistance has charged welfare officials in neighboring Armstrong County with illegally ordering her sterilization.

The suit, filed in federal court recently on behalf of Norma Jean Serena, is seen by her attorney as an unprecedented challenge of welfare department decisions involving the child protection system.

The complaint seeks in excess of $10,000 for compensatory damages for Mrs. Serena and in excess of $10,000 for punitive damages.

Mrs. Serena claims that two days after giving birth to her fifth child at Citizens General Hospital in New Kensington, in August 1970, she was sterilized without her consent or knowledge.

Bizarre kidnap comes to end

ELKINS, W.Va. (AP) — The house father at a Huntington children's home was arraigned Wednesday on charges stemming from the alleged kidnapping of three boys from the facility.

Roger Dale Blankenship was arraigned before U.S. Magistrate Leslie Lucas Jr. following his arrest Tuesday by state police and FBI special agent Philip Sheridan in a rural area near Franklin in Pendleton County.

The arrest ended a bizarre, seven-week search for the youths in which they enrolled in two schools in two different states.

Blankenship was charged with child abduction and unlawful flight and on two counts of kidnaping. Bond was set at $50,000 and was being held in Grafton.

An indictment returned April 14 in U.S. District Court in Bluefield charged that Blankenship kidnaped the youths from the Cammack Children's Home "for immoral and illegal purposes."

Two of the boys were found unharmed Tuesday and were taken back to the center. The third youth was discovered Friday in Cleveland.

According to police Blankenship left the center Feb. 27 with the three youths.

The 16-year-old was driven to a Greyhound bus station and got a ticket to Wheeling and then Cleveland where authorities found him, said Lt. Pete Bowen, commander of the juvenile unit of the Huntington Police Department.

Blankenship took the other two boys to a South Point, Ohio, motel and registered there as Roger Dale Sturgil, Bowen said. The boys told police they were under the assumption that he had adopted them, Bowen said.

The following day, according to Bowen, the three went in a car to Amelia, Ohio, where Blankenship rented a mobile home. The boys enrolled in a local school and attended classes two days before moving on.

Bowen said Blankenship left March 6, took the boys, drove across the Ohio river and into Pendleton County where he rented another house. Local neighbors gave them some old furniture, police said.

The boys told police that Blankenship got a job for $60 a week at a nearby farm and the three of them ate fresh deer meet provided by a hunter. After attending classes for one day, the youths did not return to a local school.

Authorities discovered Blankenship after a curious woman inquired why the boys failed to return to school, Bowen said.

Widen search for zebra killers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mayor Joseph L. Alioto has appealed to blacks to cooperate if they are stopped on city streets for identification and possible search by police hunting for the "Zebra" killers.

"Extraordinary situations like this call for extraordinary measures," Alioto told reporters Wednesday. "We will be stopping a number of people who fit a certain profile — a lot of them innocent.

"Mass murderers are simply roaming the streets of San Francisco, killing people at random without any real motive or without any real sense. This can't be investigated as a regular murder."

Nelson T. Shields IV, 23, became the 12th white person killed within five months by a black gunman who fired without warning and without provocation Tuesday night.

Six other whites have been wounded in shootings police have code-named the "Zebra" case.

Washington Garner, the black president of the Police Commission, urged the city's blacks, "If you are stopped, don't resent it. Show your identification and, if necessary, permit a search."

Alioto said, "We are mindful of constitutional guarantees. Everything will be done within constitutional limits."

Police Chief Don Scott said in three of the shootings two persons were seen and a composite drawing of one gunman was being circulated. He said police would be acting with information that would narrow the number of persons that might be stopped by police.

"We are going to stop slender black people," Scott said.

The composite drawing is of a black man 20 to 30 years old, slender build, and 5-foot-9 to six feet in height.

The mayor said the total reward now posted for information leading to the conviction of the killers is $30,000.

Radiation peril aloft

One wonders how long it is going to take the government to crack down on laxity in shipment of radioactive materials on commercial passenger aircraft.

There ought to be new impetus in the recent episode involving an inadequately shielded shipment of iridium 192. Passengers aboard two Delta Air Lines flights may have been exposed to harmful radiation.

The intensity of that exposure is problematical; the Atomic Energy Commission is investigating. But in a sense this is beside the point. It should be possible to assure that under all normal circumstances airlines passengers will not be subjected to such a hazard.

There are two ways of attacking the problem. One would be for the appropriate federal agencies to enforce tough packaging standards to guarantee against improper shielding of radioactive materials. Another would be to ban all transportation of such materials on commercial airliners.

The latter course has been proposed by the Air Line Pilots Association. The Federal Aviation Administration balks at this, maintaining that it is the airlines' responsibility to make sure that any radioactive shipments are properly labeled and safely packaged.

This is not an acceptable response. The AEC and the FAA should combine forces to set fail-safe standards and see that they are policed.

If the agencies object to this, then an order should be issued requiring that radioactive shipments be made only on non-passenger aircraft.

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . by John P. Roche

French politics as usual

By the time this column appears there may be as many as 25 announced candidates for the French presidency.

April 16 was the deadline for declarations of intention, but a large number of the characters who announced their ambition to replace the late Georges Pompidou are engaging in political blackmail and — even though their names will appear on the May 5 ballot — will by then have announced their support for someone else.

One party's "candidate" is conspicuous by his absense: there is no Communist. Georges Marchaise, the extremely shrewd leader of the Parti Communiste (PCF), already has announced endorsement of Socialist Francois Mitterrand.

This is a mixed blessing for Mitterrand. The advantage is that the highly disciplined Communist vote — which ranges from one-fifth to one-quarter of the electorate — is in his corner. Yet the thought of the PCF as a "government party" strikes many French voters as unthinkable.

Mitterrand's ideal scenario would have included a Communist candidate in the first round (if no one gets an absolute majority on May 5, the two top candidates go to a run-off on the 12th).

This could have presented him with the opportunity to get in a few symbolic punches at the PCF, thus indicating he was no stooge for Marchaise. But this would also have been risky: the Communist candidate might have come in ahead of the Socialist, utterly destroying any chance for a left-wing victory.

A TRULY Machiavellian proposal, suggested by a French friend, would have seen the PCF fielding a candidate but instructing their voters not to support him!

Believe it or not, the Communists probably could have pulled this off: they went fishing the day Pompidou beat Alain Poher, the 1969 candidate of the left, and the late president won a landslide victory. It was a cold-blooded decision based on the PCF's judgment that a strong anti-American Gaullist was preferable to a wobbly centrist with "Atlanticist" tendencies.

On the other side of the hill, a real joker has just emerged from the deck: Jean Royer.

Royer made his name and fame by sponsoring a law that put "les supermarches" (supermarkets) in an economic straitjakcet in the interests of small shopkeepers. (During the Depression, a number of American states passed similar laws, but failed to save the friendly neighborhood bakery, fish market or delicatessen from the encroachment of the big chain stores.)

Naturally, he is a hero to the small businessmen. But there is an additional demension: Royer could emerge as the catalyst of what I have called the "Danish Syndrome" — the anti-political vote.

There has always been a strong anti-political tendency among the French, and de Gaulle capitalized on it until he became a bore. Voting for Royer could become the ideal way to kick the politicians in the tail.

THIS IS PARTICULARLY true because the other right-wing nominees are old familiar faces who, for better or worse, have built a record. Jacques Chaban-Delmas, a former Prime Minister, is known for his spectacular ability to (legally) avoid income taxation.

Valery Giscard d'Estaing has been the Minister of Finance during a period of increasing inflation and unemployment and is an outspoken economic conservative. At this writing it seems that Jean-Jacques Servan-Schreiber may be the candidate of his party of one: he consciously imitated the Kennedy image, won a remarkable victory in a legislative election, but didn't have the sense to quit when he was ahead.

Instead he made a complete ass of himself by running against Chaban-Delmas for mayor of Bordeaux; campaigning on his own turf, Chaban obliterated "J.J.S.S." So much for charisma, so much for the "Parti Radical."

It is pointless to coninue these descriptions except to note that all the leading "Gaullists," "neo--Gaullists" and "Independents" have been involved in politics up to their ears. So, for that matter, has Mitterrand, 11 times a minister, who once achieved notoriety by having his car shot up.

His "miraculous escape" was subsequently explained by the news that he had staged the episode!

Which brings us back to Jean Royer, a new face ideally situated to denouce all the "old boys" and call for an end to "petty politics."

Since there is no reason to believe that France will escape from the "Danish Syndrome," which has been sweeping all of Western Europe and Great Britain, don't be dumbstruck to see Metterrand and Royer as the candidates in the run-off on May 12.

Injunction issued over poll workers

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — The Richland County Common Pleas Court has issued a temporary injunction ordering the county board of elections to give jobs back to elderly poll workers.

Judge James J. Mayer issued the decision Wednesday in a class action suit brought against the county board of elections by 77 dismissed workers who were fired because they were 70 years of age or older.

Mayer set a final hearing in the suit for April 30. He is seeking opinions from Gov. John J. Gilligan and former Gov. James A. Rhodes on how the ruling would affect the state political process.

The candy bar didn't become an American institution until World War I when manufacturing methods were changed to mass produce the compact packets of energy for "The morale, health and even survival of the doughboys," says the National Geographic Society.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR, RECORD HERALD:

For the past two weeks I have been reading letters concerning the graduation of Laurel Oaks students. Now I wish to express my feelings on the matter.

As a senior attending Laurel Oaks Career Development Campus, I completely understand and accept the fact that I will not get out of school early this year. As a member of the 1974 graduating class of Washington Senior High School, I cannot accept the fact that I am to receive an unsigned diploma at the commencement exercises.

There is no doubt in my mind that each instructor will know whether or not his or her students are eligible to graduate in plenty of time for the diplomas to be signed. If there is a question as to the eligibility of one or two students, why should the remaining students suffer?

Leaving my high school to enroll at Laurel Oaks was a hard decision to make. I do feel, however, that it was a wise decision and that I have bettered myself by attending Laurel Oaks.

In six weeks, I will have completed 12 years of school including a two-year secretarial course, and I am looking forward to graduation.

I am not, however, looking forward to going through the ceremonies in front of my relatives and friends only to receive an unsigned diploma.

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

"Three Cheers" for Mr. Crissinger, who finally got a fund started for our Fayette County tornado victims.

Several organizations and individuals wanted to help these people but were at a loss as to where to send their contributions as no one seemed to know of a fund set aside for Wentz Road victims.

Our Fayette Garden Club gave me a check, asking me to give it to whomever was setting up a fund, but after contacting several Jeffersonville residents, also the Red Cross and the Salvation Army, I found no requests had been made.

I also contacted the school, but the principals could give me no information. I was just about to send our check to the Red Cross, when Coffee Break advised that Mr. Crissinger had started a fund and that donations could be sent to The Jeffersonville Inn or to the bank.

It would be interesting to know what has happened to these five families who suffered this great loss.

Thanks again, Mr. Crissinger, I'm sure many people will now send in their contributions, as we did.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: THERE CAN BE NO HAPPINESS IF THE THINGS WE BELIEVE IN ARE DIFFERENT FROM THE THINGS WE DO. – F. STARK

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Don't call 'the other woman' - get help

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem which I have discussed with my married daughter, and she said I should write to you.

After many years of marriage, my husband has been seeing another woman. She's a young school teacher he met at church. (Her father is a minister.) The worst part of it is, I know he really loves her, but I'm afraid of what people would think if I let him go to her.

I admit that our marital relations have never been enjoyable for me, but I have done my duty and given him three children who are grown and married now.

I work full time, which my husband never liked, but it has provided us with lots of extras we wouldn't have been able to get as soon as we did.

Should I call this woman and tell her I know the truth and she'd better stop seeing my husband or else? Should I call her father and tell him about it? Or should I keep quiet and hope they get tired of each other before too many people know about it?

TROUBLED

DEAR TROUBLED: Don't call the young woman. And don't call her father. You and your husband should get some counseling and level with each other.

If you don't let him go to her (knowing that he really loves her) because you are afraid of what people will think, that's a poor reason. Add that to your feeling that you've done your duty and given him three children, and the picture becomes even more clear. You seem to be a sensible woman. Counseling is the only answer.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been arguing over a question that we would like you to answer.

I say it is bad manners to yawn in company, but if you can't help yourself you should do it with your mouth shut.

My husband says he only yawns when he can't hold it back, and he can't yawn with his mouth closed.

Please give us your opinion. Thanks.

MRS. B.

DEAR MRS.B.: Yawning with one's mouth closed isn't easy. However it can be done, but a squelched yawn offers very little satisfaction.

The ideal solution would be to go ahead and yawn, but cover your mouth with your hand. And apologize for it afterwards.

DEAR ABBY: In trying to decide what to give my son and his bride for a wedding gift, I have come to the conclusion that the best gift I could give them would be the treatment at a "stop smoking" clinic.

The treatment costs $350 per person, so I feel that it would be a generous gift, considering my relatively low income. My son has been warned by his doctor that he should stop smoking, and he has indicated that he would like to. However, there wouldn't be much point in giving him the treatment unless his bride takes it too.

Under the circumstances, would it be proper for me to offer such a gift or would I be considered meddlesome?

CONCERNED MOTHER

DEAR CONCERNED: I don't agree that there wouldn't be much point in giving your son the treatment unless his bride agreed to take it, too. However, unless you know for certain that they both want the treatment and would welcome it as a wedding gift from you, it might not be appreciated.

Eight judges named for talent contest

A panel of eight persons have been selected as judges for the seventh annual Washington C.H. Kiwanis Club's Teen Talent Show Friday night.

Judges for Friday night's show are Dr. and Mrs. Herman Torge, Mr. and Mrs. John Mc Enaney, Mr. Emily King, Mrs. Carol Hayward, Dennis Avey and Robert Coil.

Dr. Torge is superintendent of the Twin Valley School District in Preble County and has 20 years of experience as a vocal music instructor at Miami University at Oxford as well as extensive experience as a string bass member of a dance combo.

Mrs. Torge is an accomplished organist and pianist. She minored in music at Miami University and has had experience as a school music director and accompanist.

McEnney served 18 years as a disc jockey and comedian at radio stations in the Springfield area. The experienced choral vocalist and master of ceremonies was the creator of "Hoover J. Socker," a fictitious radio character. McEnaney's wife is a singer and self-accompanist, having worked clubs in the Springfield area. She is a choir director and founder of the Northridge Lions Club Backhouse Band, a novelty choral group in Springfield.

A TEEN TALENT SHOW winner in 1967, Mrs. King, the former Emily Rowe, is a gradute of the University of Cincinnati Conservatory of Music and is a soloist with the Westwood Presbyterian Church choir in Cincinnati. She plans to teach music.

Mrs. Hayward, the former Carol McCoy, is a graduate of Washington High School and the Capital University School of Music, Columbus. She teaches vocal and instrumental music in Canal Fulton.

A Miami Trace High School graduate and also a Teen Talent Show winner in 1967, Avey is presently a senior at Ohio State University, Columbus, where he is conducting and composing music in addition to his studies. He is an accomplished pianist and conducts a Columbus group.

Coil, a graduate of Washington High School and Miami University, received a master's degree from the University of Cincinnati Conservatory of Music. He has served as a high school vocal and instrumental music instructor in Indiana for the past two years. Coil presently plays the trombone with a dance combo in Cincinnati.

THE TEEN TALENT SHOW, which will feature 18 acts involving 43 Washington Senior and Miami Trace high school students, will be staged at 8 p.m. Friday in the Washington Junior High School auditorium.

The 43 students will be competing for a first place cash award of $150; second place of $100; third place of $50 and fourth place of $25. The remainder of the proceeds raised by the Kiwanis Club will be forwarded to scholarship funds at Washington Senior and Miami Trace High Schools.

Donald Riber, of Washington C.H., is serving as the show's director and he is being assisted by Mrs. Cinda Stinson, vocal music director at Miami Trace High School. Jim Pidcock, former disc jockey with WTVN Radio, Columbus, is again the master of ceremonies for the production.

Musical performances, both individual and ensembles, will be featured in the show in addition to dance and comedy routines.

Meningitis is traced to hamsters

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Health officials say they have traced an outbreak of a rare but usually mild form of meningitis in New York to hamsters.

The State Health Department said Friday the disease, called LCM, usually produces a flulike illness with fever, muscle aches, pains and prostration. It normally is not fatal.

The hamsters, state and New York City health officials said, were bred in Alabama and were purchased between Dec. 4, 1973 and March 24, 1974. They were identified in tests as the carriers of the disease.

New York was one of eight states named Thursday by the U. S. Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga. where a total of 93 cases of LCM have been reported. The others were California, Minnesota, Nevada, Florida, Massachusetts and New Jersey. LCM is an acronym for lymphocytic choriomeningitis. It normally is not fatal.

The New York City Health Department urged new hamster owners to isolate their pets in a ventilated room and to notify the department. They recommended that the 300,000 animals in the stock in question should be destroyed.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Two weeks from today, CBS News will air a one-hour daytime news special for women. It eventually could become a regular weekly event, according to a CBS executive in charge of th project.

The show is called "Magazine" and is hosted by correspondents Sylvia Chase and Charles Kuralt. Employing a format similar to CBS' "60 Minutes," it'll report on such diverse stories as hysterectomies, economical supermarket shopping and how soap operas are put together.

How did the show come about? Was it prompted by pressure from women's activist groups who feel daytime television should offer its predominantely female audience more than soap and games?

"No, I wouldn't think so," says Bill Leonard, a CBS News senior vice president. He said it basically stemmed from a suggestion made about 1½ years ago by CBS program chief Fred Silverman.

If the show gets the reaction CBS hopes it will, he said, it could become a weekly series in future years: "I would hope they (CBS brass) could make it that."

It isn't a low-budget effort, he said. Although he declined to say what the May 2 show is costing, he said the price tag was similar to that of a prime time documentary — in the $50,000 to $100,000 range.

The show will pre-empt two soap operas — "The Guiding Light" and "The Edge of Night." And Leonard expects gripes will come from devotees of those shows, as they usually do during such news pre-emptions.

But he's philosophical about it. "This is only an hour," he said with a laugh. "I guess we can live with a few phone calls."

Exploding glass bottles subject of commission probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Marion S. Gronemeyer was carrying a bottle of fruit juice in her kitchen when it shattered in her hand. She says the wounds she suffered from the accident required "a year of treatment, casts, therapy and tests."

Mrs. Robert V. Estes was opening a bottle of ginger ale when the top of the bottle exploded. Despite the care of specialists, according to her husband, "the flexibility and mobility of her right thumb is extremely limited and an uncomfortable degree of pain exists."

The Consumer Product Safety Commission estimates that about 62,000 such accidents occur annually, with about 25,000 resulting injuries requiring treatmet in hospital emergency rooms.

The hearings will include testimony from persons injured by exploding bottles and representatives of bottling companies, including the National Soft Drink Association and the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute, Inc.

In a letter to the commission, Mrs. Gronemeyer, of Santa Ana, Calif., said that had she not been helped quickly she may have bled to death as a result of her injuries.

According to Estes, of South Milwaukee, Wis., his wife "started the twist off operation and before the separation of the crown from the anchor ring, the top of the bottle exploded with a loud bang."

Dr. Lawrence Kushner, a commission member said that a survey of 119 hospitals across the nation indicated that approximately 110,000 injuries a year are associated with glass containers and must be treated in emergency rooms. Approximately one-quarter are associated with exploding bottles, but many more are treated in physicians' offices or at home.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Corespondent

The Russians act as if they suspect they've been had by President Anwar Sadat of Egypt, and that can make them tougher to deal with in the search for an over-all Middle East settlement.

Moscow was never very happy in its relationship with Sadat's predecessor, Gamal Abdel Nasser. But it is even more irked with the man who assumed Nasser's mantle in 1970.

This irritation has been increasing ever since the October war. Now, if Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger seems to run into mounting difficulties trying to bring about a military disengagement on the SyrianIsraeli front, it's a good bet Soviet pique has something to do with it.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko has been trying to counter Kissinger's shuttle diplomacy in the Middle East, and Syria is the obvious route. The Kremlin wants badly to shift attention away from Kissinger's activities to an unwieldy Geneva conference where the Russians can be more visible.

Sadat irked Moscow by failing to go along with that idea. But he had annoyed the Russians ever since October, when he failed to consult them on his war plans. He also:

—Neglected to confide in his Russian allies before agreeing to Kissinger's disengagement proposals.

—Ignored a Soviet proposal that Russian and American officers sit in on the disengagement talks between Egypt and Israel;

—Won majority backing for his policy from an Arab summit in Algiers.

—Ignored Soviet advice and successfully campaigned for suspension of the Arab oil embargo against the United States.

—In a telecast this month retorted testily to Soviet complaints and accused Moscow of having opposed the October war and having been niggardly with arms help. At the same time a Cairo newspaper accused Moscow of systematically sabotaging Syria-Israel disengagement efforts and of begrudging Egypt better relations with the Americans.

The Russians have had lots of time to get used to the idea that Sadat trusted them even less than Nasser did.

Sadat is a devout Moslem who fears the Soviet brand of atheistic communism. He gave a detailed account a few years ago of a bruising experience he had with Kremlin hard-sell when he visited Moscow at the head of an Egyptian delegation in May 1961.

At that meeting, Nikita Khrushchev exploded when Sadat suggested Egypt's international affairs were none of his business.

Relations between Cairo and Moscow have always been on-again, off-again. They were severely strained in mid-1971 when Communists in the Sudan, Egypt's neighbor, tried to seize power and failed; and again in 1972 when Sadat suggested the Russians were primarily interested in a no war-no peace situation in the Middle East because it would be advantageous to the communist cause. A few months after that Sadat abruptly told 15,000 Russian military advisers to pack up and go home, and the Kremlin had to grin and bear it.

Cambridge man dies of explosion, burns

ZANESVILLE, Ohio (AP) — A 19-year-old Cambridge man has died of burns suffered in an explosion near an oil well in Muskingum County.

Authorities said Billy W. Cleveland died Tuesday after flammable solvent exploded as it was being poured from one can to another.

A second man, 46-year-old Kenneth Knapp of Buffalo, is hospitalized in critical condition with burns over 90 per cent of his body, authorities said.

Hydrogen, a colorless gas, was discovered in 1766 by Henry Cavendish.

CRAIG'S DEPARTMENT STORE

Craig's observes 100th birthday

Craig's Department Store, which has served Fayette County for more than a full century, is celebrating its 100th anniversary in Washington C. H. this year.

It was scarcely 30 years after Fayette County was actually formed that D. S. Craig opened a general store in neighboring Staunton. His sons, Eli and Williams, moved the business to Washington C. H. in 1874.

The first store in Washington C. H. was located on N. Main Street. The business later moved to W. Court Street and eventually to the present location at 131 W. Court Street which was expanded to handle the growing business. The store has been located on E. Court Street for the past 95 years.

THE BUSINESS remained in the Craig family until 1971, when Merrill Kaufman, a Washington C. H. native who also operates a successful store in Delaware, purchased the long-established business with the idea of changing its image.

"We undertook a major remodeling project immediately," Kaufman explained. "We modernized both the upstairs and downstairs and introduced younger fashions for both men and women."

"The men's, women's and children's clothing departments were greatly expanded with a fashion in mind," Kaufman said. "The shoe department was enlarged; and the fabric department and gift department were relocated on the second floor. Craig's is now the most modern store of its kind in the entire shopping area," the store owner remarked.

HAILING from a long line of clothing retailers, Kaufman feels there is still a prominent place in today's business world for the small retail store.

"The small retailer can offer personal service, which is missing from so much today," Kaufman said. "At Craig's, we know most of our regular customers by their first names, and they know if they're not satisfied, they'll get their money refunded," he said.

"We owe our customers a lot and like to pay back to them part of what we receive by offering quality goods at reasonable prices," he said.

According to Kaufman, a series of anniversary celebration activities are being planned for the remainder of the year, evolving around historical, nostalgic and educational themes.

"Naturally, we'll have special sales," Kaufman remarked, "to show our appreciation to the many customers who have helped us reach our 100-year mark." The first anniversary sale begins Friday.

Birth defect brings boy $530,000

TORRANCE, Calif. (AP) — A jury has awarded $530,000 in damages to a 3-year-old boy after ruling that his birth deformities were caused by a fertility drug taken by his mother.

The drug, Clomid, is produced by Richardson-Merrill, Inc., of Cincinnati, Ohio, and is marketed worldwide.

A company spokesman said he was "shocked and dismayed over the verdict" which he called "absolutely unwarranted." He said the company would appeal the decision.

The money was awarded Tuesday to Mark Breinhorst, son of Heinz and Ingrid Breinhorst of Torrance.

The parents, who had filed a $3 million suit, were awarded $40,000 by the jury. Their son was born with no hands, facial paralysis, knock knees and eye problems.

Breinhorst said the money would go into a special trust fund for his son, who attends a special school for crippled children.

The Breinhorst's attorney had argued that Clomid had not been tested properly although it did have the approval of the Food and Drug Administration.

Richardson-Merrill's attorney claimed during the month-long trial that the birth deformities had occurred naturally.

Mrs. Breinhorst said she took the drug in September, 1969. Her son was born in June, 1970.

Safety inspections uncover violations

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John J. Gilligan says an intensive safety inspection program has uncovered 14,882 violations in eight months in business and industry.

The governor said Wednesday more than 2,000 inspections yielded an average of 6.2 violations per inspection. He said more than $175,000 in penalties have been collected.

Ohio Perspective

Office space costs rise for state

By DAVID LORE
Columbus Dispatch

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The State Office Tower across from the capitol will rent for about $8.5 million the first year, but the state faces sharply increased costs after July 1, 1975.

The Ohio Building Authority (OBA) the project financer, set initial rents for some 30 state agencies scheduled to occupy the tower.

OBA agreed that through July 1, 1975, the Gilligan administration will pay $8.12 a square foot. That would amount to about $8.5 million a year when the tower's 1,048,000 square feet of net rentable space is fully occupied next fall.

But, the three-member OBA board began last week to consider ways of refinancing the $60 million tower project in order to prevent rents from climbing rapidly to $9 or $10 a square foot.

OBA is financing the 41-story state tower through the State Insurance Fund, investment monies of the Ohio Bureau of Workmen's Compensation, with interest rates being recomputed every two years.

OBA originally agreed to pay the fund interst of less than 5 per cent. Last week it found itself approving a new, one-year, $76 million note at 8.6 per cent.

An administration analysis said an 8.6 per cent interest charge would force OBA to charge its state tenants about $8.75 a square foot in order to retire the debt in 30 years, $9.60 to retire the debt in 20 years.

Gilligan estimated an $8 a square foot rental cost in his 1973-1975 budget, but state officials only a month ago talked about $8.50 a square foot.

John B. Olsen, director of the Office of Budget and Management, called the $8.12 compromise a "conservative and solid figure." He said the administration couldn't afford more.

The administration tries to keep its agencies from renting space from private landlords at much more than $5 a square foot.

Still, the $8.12 beginning rate will cover only interest payments to the Insurance Fund and maintenance costs, Olsen said.

It probably will be insufficient to allow OBA to begin repayments on the debt principle, he said.

John Kessler, OBA chairman, said Insurance Fund interest rates meant the OBA must consider lower-cost financing.

The first stell-bladed ice skates were made in 1850. Wearing the new "Philadelphia skate," Jackson Haines of New York dazzled audiences in the United States and Europe by executing intricate figures to music. Called the "Father of Figure Skating," Haines revolutionized the art.

Mead Corp. lists gains for quarter

DAYTON — Mead Corporation reports first quarter sales of $356 million, compared with the $302 million it recorded in the first quarter of 1973.

Earnings for the first quarter of 1974 are reported at $13,475,000, or $.75 per common share after provision for preferred dividends. Mead earned $7,980,000 or $.37 per share, in the first quarter of 1973.

Mead's earnings have shown significant improvement for six consecutive quarters, Board Chairman James W. McSwiney noted. "However considering today's replacement costs for Mead facilities, the present performance must be further improved," he said.

The major thrust for Mead's improvement in first quarter earnings came in the white paper area, McSwiney said. Sharp improvement at the large Escanaba, Mich., mill plus the timely addition of wood pulp for sale on the open market at a time of growing demand and increasing prices were important factors.

Product mix has been refined at all Mead's paper operations, and this has been an important ingredient in their earnings, McSwiney said.

BUSINESS in Mead's Paperboard group continued strong during the quarter, McSwiney said. Both Mead Containers and Mead Packaging recorded increased volume at increased prices during the quarter. "The company's paperboard mills have experienced sharply higher costs, however, and price improvements were not effected in time to fully offset these increases," he added.

Supplies of pulpwood for Mead's paper and paperboard operations, which were very tight during most of 1973, have improved, according to McSwiney. However, he indicated pulpwood costs are significantly higher.

Operating results in Mead's Industrial Products group were hurt by major costs increases in basic raw materials used in its foundries, McSwiney said. "Those increased costs will not be fully covered by price adjustments until the second quarter," he added.

Demand for Mead's industrial products continues strong, the chairman reported. He said the new Archer Creek, Va., plant of Mead's Lynchburg Foundry Co. is making good progress in its startup and that order backlogs for castings continue at a high level.

First quarter performance by the Mead School, Home and Office Products group, Mead Interiors and the Mead Merchant group was at or above that of a year ago, McSwiney said. The Westab division, which makes school supplies, has had significant gains this year, and sales by Stanley Furniture, a Mead company, continue strong, he said. The Mead Merchant group, distributors of both fine and industrial papers, showed increases in sales and profits.

MEAD'S EARNINGS from its Canadian affiliates, Northwood Pulp and Timber and British Columbia Forest Products, declined in the first quarter. McSwiney said the difference resulted from lower lumber prices, transportation problems and operating problems experienced by some of the Northwood sawmills and its pulp mill.

Both Northwood and BCFP are major pulp producers, and this part of their business continues to be very strong.

"Over the last two or three years, Mead has devoted considerable time and effort to several new ventures," McSwiney commented. "These include an information storage and retrieval system now used in legal research and a high-speed, ink-jet imaging system.

"Now that we are entering the commercialization stage with several of these developments, it is important to provide top-level operating leadership.

Accordingly, Robert O'Hara, who has been Group Vice President - Mead Paper, will assume the role of Group Vice President - New Ventures as of May 1.

Burnell Roberts, former head of the Mead Merchant group, will succeed O'Hara as Group Vice President - Mead Paper," McSwiney stated.

Action at Steele Data Processing

Steele Data expands its computer service

Due to a recent merger with National Scanning Inc., Columbus, the former Steele Data Processing operation in Washington C.H. is now able to offer a complete spectrum of computer services.

Previously limited to preparing imput data for clients with their own computers, the firm now has access to the other facilities of National Scanning which include computer programming, processing, optical scanning and a full range of consultant and advisory services.

One of the advantages to local business is that services can be made available to some firms which do not have the volume to make computer service profitable under the old operation, James and Marie Steele, managers of the local office, point out.

A wide variety of data processing services are offered at the computer facilities in Columbus. National Scanning can provide such diverse services as routine business reporting and payroll systems, plus sophisticated statistical data manipulation of tests and surveys. One of the programs carried by National Scanning is the weekly feature of computer ratings during the football season.

OPTICAL SCANNING is of primary importance to the average businessman, the Steeles observe. This process of material reading allows businesses with sporadic quantities of computer material to utilize the assets of the system by minimizing the amount of material preparation for computer input.

Another arm of National Scanning located in Lancaster, Pa., is the only full service printing facility of its kind. The staff is engaged in the design, composition, printing and distribution of optically scannable business forms, surveys tests, etc. This operation is capable of producing forms for every major scanning system currently in use.

Although the range of work encompassed by National Scanning is much greater than was done by Steele Data Processing, the local operation will remain essentially the same as before.

"We are now the data processing arm of a computer service organization," says Mr. and Mrs. Steele, "and, as such, we can offer our clients the benefits of the entire operation. However, our primary functions on the local level remain the preparation of input data."

Help with chores

Junior Leader club to hold 'slave auction'

Members of the Fayette County 4-H Junior Leadership Club are offering their services to assist with spring chores at a "slave auction" which will be held at 10:30 a.m. Saturday on the Courthouse lawn.

Jack Sommers, Fayette County 4-H Extension agent, said more than 40 Junior Leadership Club members will be "sold" to work for four to eight hours at various spring chores such as yard work, house cleaning, farm work, window-washing and many other tasks.

Minimum wage is $1 per hour with the Junior Leader being "sold" to the highest bidder on a per hour basis. The Junior Leader will complete the work before May 11 and will schedule arrangements for the work with the buyer on the day of the sale. Payment will be made to the Junior Leader when the working hours are completed.

Funds raised from the "slave auction" are to be used by the Fayette County 4-H Junior Leadership Club to sponsor trips to the National 4-H Citizenship Short Course in Washington, D.C. this summer.

Sommers said several older 4-H'ers will be attending the National 4-H Citizenship Short Course, depending on the amount of money raised at the auction.

City manager nixes handicapped measure

The plane was picked up Wednesday from the LTV Aerospace Corp. in Dallas, Tex., and flown to Lockbourne Air Force base by Col. William F. Bill Casey, commander of the 121st TFG.

Spokesmen for LTV said the Ohio unit will receive additional planes during the next few months.

Community Education events scheduled

Hank Shaffer, program director, said that although the six courses have concluded, a number of other events are in the planning stages for the spring and summer months.

In fact, the summer recreation program in Washington C.H. will be conducted under the auspices of the Community Education program. Shaffer will serve as the recreation director.

City officials and members of the Washington C.H. Board of Education recently entered into a formal agreement for conducting the program.

GENEALOGY, quilting and the open recreation activities in the Washington Junior High School gymnasium were the most popular among the programs offered.

"I told the class as we were ready to leave, if you've enjoyed this half as much as I did, then we accomplished a lot," Robinson said after the four-week course had been completed. "The class was receptive, cooperative and interested," he said.

"It was interesting and I enjoyed it a lot," said Mrs. Irene Grim, of Bloomingburg, one of the participants in the class. "I learned the library had a lot to offer on genealogy and it made the class well worth my while," Mrs. Grim said.

"I wanted to learn the basics about quilting and I did," remarked Mrs. Eileen Tatman, 929 Millwood Ave. "I enjoyed the relaxed and informal atmosphere. It made the class very friendly," Mrs. Tatman noted.

An average of about 60 youngsters and others attended the open recreation activities in the junior high school gymnasium each night.

"It was fine supervised recreation for the children," Mrs. Vic Luneborg, 307 N. North St., said. "My children talked a lot about the mini-trampoline and the parellel bars. They are really looking forward to the summer recreation program at Eyman Park," Mrs. Luneborg said.

Leroy Wilson, 526 Delaware St., was one of the students in regular attendance at the open recreation activity. "I really enjoyed it and I wish you would have kept it open longer because even though the weather is nicer, it still gets dark outside," said the ninth grader at Washington Junior High School.

THE THREE-WEEK gardening course attracted 14 participants, while the landscaping class had 125; public speaking, 7, and meal management, 3.

A Kite Day activity was also conducted recently by the Community Education program. A total of 20 children participated and there were a number of spectators for the event held at Eyman Park.

Tennis lessons to begin here next week

An organizational meeting will launch beginning tennis lessons at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Washington Junior High School gymnasium.

The tennis lessons are being offered by the Community Education program. Maurice Pfeifer will conduct the tennis course.

Hank Shaffer, Community Education program director, said the class is open to all beginners over 8 years of age. Shaffer said it is hoped the class will build the interest of younger persons toward the game of tennis. Adults are also welcome as participants. Following the first meeting, the lessons will be held Tuesday evenings at the Eyman Park courts.

There will be six lessons, including the organizational meeting, at a cost of $5 per person. Those interested in taking beginning tennis lessons should attend the first meeting and bring their rackets and tennis shoes. It is hoped that an intermediate and advanced course can be established later, Shaffer said.

Plan suit against segregation

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—The parents of eight Columbus school children plan to file a complaint against segregation in the city's education system, their attorneys said Wednesday.

On the advice of a federal judge, the families withdrew a request for an injunction against an $89.5 million building plan. Their original complaint said the plan would further racial separation.

School attorneys will not take action until the new complaint comes to trial, probably sometime in December, spokesmen said.

An Ohio State University education professor testified in the original hearing that the Columbus school system is "highly segregated."

Dr. Charles A. Glatt said he studied segregation in the schools for a period from 1969 to 1972.

The judge said a ban on school construction would put undue burdens on taxpaying voters who in 1972 approved the money for a five-year construction program.

Sentences meted out in Municipal Court

Three persons charged with non-traffic offenses by the Fayette County Sheriff's Department have been found guilty and sentenced in Municipal Court.

Four cases, on private warrants, were dismissed at the request of the prosecuting witnesses.

Robert Curtis, Xenia, pleaded guilty to conversion of mortgaged goods and received a 90-day suspended jail term from acting Judge John P. Case. Curtis was fined $100.

Curtis was charged with selling or otherwise disposing of goods on which he was making payments, which is illegal without permission from the creditor.

Robert J. Hawkins, Guilford, Conn., was found guilty of possession of marijuana and was fined $100 and sentenced to 30 days in jail. Both the fine and jail term were suspended.

Harold E. Smith, 111 Water St., was fined $50 for failure to obey a lawful order from a sheriff's deputy. Smith had been told to stand clear of the automobile accident scene on Ohio 41-S Saturday night. When he refused to obey officers at the scene he was placed under arrest.

A bad check charge against John Carpenter, 25, of New Carlisle, was dismissed as were charges of assault filed against Thomas E. Lyons Jr., 1330 Pearl St., Clifford R. Upthegrove, Jeffersonville, and Donn Bowles, of Good Hope. All four had been charged on private warrants, and all agreed to pay the court costs.

MEMORIAL FUND GETS A BOOST — Curtis E. Fleisher, right, principal at Miami Trace High School, thanks Jon Ervin, of the Miami Trace Boosters Club, for the club's $500 contribution to the Delmar Mowery Memorial Fund. Ervin, treasurer of the Boosters Club, said the fund is used to finance an annual grant for a graduating scholar-athlete. Recipients of the grants are selected on their scholarship (b average or better), athletic ability (varsity lettermen), and school and community leadership. The fund was established in honor of Delmar Mowery, a highly respected teacher and coach at Miami Trace, who died unexpectedly last November.

New energy chief to push conservation for future

WASHINGTON (AP) — John C. Sawhill, designated Wednesday to head the Federal Energy Office, says the major thrust of his agency over the next 12 to 18 months will be toward energy conservation.

Sawhill promised when his appointment was announced to send the President a plan by Nov. 1, to make the nation selfsufficient in energy.

But in an interview before the announcement Sawhill said it would take several years at least to achieve any substantial increases in U.S. domestic oil and gas production.

In the meantime, he said, the nation's imports of petroleum will continue to increase — making it even more vulnerable to sudden interruptions of supply, such as the recent Arab oil embargo.

During the next few years, the only way to reduce the imports and the threat is to reduce U.S. petroleum demand, he said.

"My approach would be to pursue very vigorous conservation."

Sawhill's attitude should be welcome to the administration's top environmental advisers, Environmental Protection Administrator Russell E. Train and Chairman Russell W. Peterson of the Council on Environmental Quality.

Train charged Monday that energy conservation was mostly just talk so far and said he saw no great push in that direction by the Federal Energy Office, which has authority over energy conservation programs.

Peterson is urging a national goal of reducing the growth rate of energy consumption from its recent 4 or 5 per cent a year to 1.8 per cent.

First 'summer' collector show slated

The first of the 1974 "summer shows" sponsored by the Central Ohio Gun and Indian Relic Collectors Association will be held at the Fairground Saturday and Sunday.

Doors will open at 7:30 a.m., and lunch will be served both days. The Mahan, Youth and Merchants buildings will house the "inside" displays, and, depending on the weather, the outdoor flea market will expand over the grounds.

Competition, a feature of the summer shows, will be resumed this weekend, with a trophy offered for the best 41-caliber Remington Derringer pistol.

Also to be resumed at the April meeting will be the 25-cent parking charge.

Only members of the association are permitted to have displays, although the meetings are open to the public. Alcoholic beverages are not allowed on the Fairground, and gun laws are strictly enforced.

American official will come home

CORDOBA, Argentina (AP) — Alfred Laun III, the American official wounded during a kidnaping by leftist guerrillas last week, will return to the United States soon, U.S. embassy officials said.

Laun, 36, of Kiel, Wis., was flown to Panama Wednesday night for further medical treatment. He had undergone surgery here for a bullet wound suffered in the kidnaping and was said to be in stable condition.

Laun, the chief of the U.S. Information Service branch in Cordoba, was shot while resisting the abductors at his home last Friday and released 15 hours later.

Utility rate hike under attack

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Cincinnati Mayor Theodore Berry called a rate hike sought by the Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co. "shocking" and urged city council to "vigorously resist."

The utility, seeking its second hike in two years, asked a 7 per cent increase in electric rates and 10 per cent for natural gas.

The utility has 131,000 customers in the city and must ask the city's permission for rate increases. Rate increases for customers outside the city are determined by the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio.

Glenn-Metzenbaum mud-slinging nears wire

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — In this corner, a millionaire businessman already an interim senator. Across the way, an astronaut space hero.

At ringside, Ohioans watching an old fashioned mud-sling as candidates for the Democratic nomination for U.S. Senate verbally lash each other daily as the May 7 primary nears.

"We think he (Metzenbaum) has a lot to hide," Glenn tells laborers during a stop in Cincinnati.

"Honesty, integrity and sincerity" are key issues, Glenn explained to reporters early in his campaign.

"The people of Ohio have gotten only a campaign of personal vilificiation and distortions of fact from my opponent," Metzenbaum said a few days ago.

So it goes. The fight for the nomination has become one of the most hotly contested election races in years.

Glenn leads the polls, slightly. Metzenbaum, a former labor attorney, has captured the unions, or most of the unions. Glenn slowly erodes Metzenbaum's labor and state Democratic party endorsements, inching forward.

Glenn, shedding the "boy scout" image he acquired in a loss to Metzenbaum in 1970's primary, remains the aggressor.

He made a "full disclosure" of his financial status, including income tax returns back to 1965, and demands Metzenbaum do the same. Metzenbaum disclosed his holdings and net worth — $3.6 million, calling it "the fullest disclosure ever made by a U.S. Senator."

Glenn makes his opponent's refusal to display his past income tax returns the reason for turning down a recent proposal for a series of televised debates.

"If Howard Metzenbaum cannot trust the Democratic voters of Ohio with information about his taxes and finances, how can they trust him with their votes?" Glenn asked.

Metzenbaum released his 1973 tax return and countered with a charge that Glenn was "back peddling" and called on him to "get on with the important business of the campaign, a dialogue about who is better qualified to serve the people of Ohio."

Glenn and Metzenbaum have been political adversaries for years.

Glenn, who filed for the nomination in 1964 and dropped out after suffering a head injury in a bathroom fall, lost by 13,442 votes to Metzenbaum in the 1970 primary. Two lesser known candidates in the fourway race compiled 32,000 votes.

Metzenbaum later lost the 1970 general election to U.S. Sen. Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio.

Late last year, Metzenbaum was chosen by Gov. John J. Gilligan, a Democrat, to serve out the term of William B. Saxbe, then Ohio's senior senator and now attorney general.

Gilligan acted after being urged by state and national labor leaders with whom Metzenbaum enjoys a long rapport. Gilligan later won Metzenbaum the backing of the state party organization.

Glenn turned down an offer from Gilligan to run for lieutenant governor on the governor's re-election ticket.

Ordinarily, a candidate with the backing of his party, the governor, organized labor, and plenty of money could rest at ease in an Ohio Democratic primary. But Metzenbaum has problems.

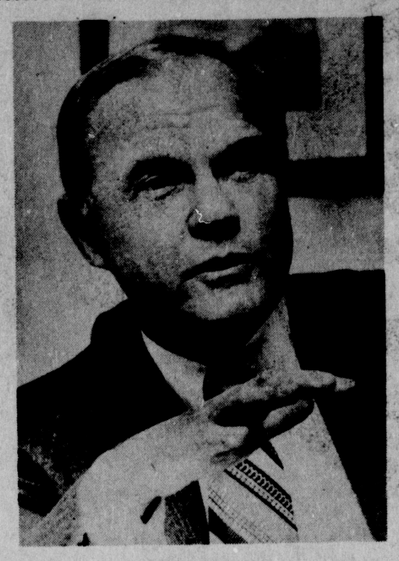
Just before he was sworn in last January, Metzenbaum revealed he deposited $118,000 with the Internal Revenue Service pending settlement of back income tax issues. Glenn has sought to make that, along with the payment of no income tax by Metzenbaum in 1969, gut issues in the primary.

The senator was rankled by Glenn's comment and expressed confidence the money will be returned after the IRS completes its investigation. "Mud slinging," Metzenbaum said, and repeated his invitation "for the colonel to join me on the high level to bring the real issues before the people."

Another time, Metzenbaum was furious when an aide in Glenn's headquarters reportedly told a newsman that the senator's home was built with non-union labor. "A vicious lie," Metzenbaum countered.

Metzenbaum's campaign director, James J. Schiller, asserted the statement was aimed "at the senator's overwhelming support among the working people of this state.

"But it is doomed to fail. It is an unmitigated lie," Schiller said.



JOHN GLENN

HOWARD METZENBAUM

Glenn said Metzenbaum's claim of overwhelming labor support is invalid. Glenn predicts he will have the support of rank-and-file union workers when the polls open.

Metzenbaum has the endorsement of the Ohio AFL-CIO and the United Auto Workers.

Yet, Glenn cites big labor support of his own: 2,500 service employes in Youngstown, teamsters in Dayton, steelworkers in Mansfield and the Paper Workers Union of Ohio. He has picked up endorsements of county Democratic organizations, defecting from state headquarters.

Glenn's greatest county endorsement victory was Franklin County, the state capital which voted for Metzenbaum in 1970.

Metzenbaum, with union help and other major contributors, is expected to match the $800,000 he spent in the 1970 primary, much going to television. Glenn's press secretary estimates the Glenn camp will spend half that.

'Scoop' Jackson enjoys home life

WASHINGTON (AP) — Capitol Hill duties and an avowed interest in considering another bid for the Democratic presidential nomination mean these are busy days for Sen. Henry M. Jackson.

But the four term senator from Washington State tries to find as much time as he can to be with his wife and two young children.

Youthful looking at 61, Jackson as chairman of the Senate Interior Committee has been a key figure in congressional efforts to deal with the energy crisis.

He is also chairman of the Permanent Investigations Subcommittee and a senior member of the Armed Services Committee. An advocate of a strong military posture, Jackson has been an outspoken champion of Israel and a critic of U.S. Soviet detente.

Jackson first came to the Capitol after being elected to the House at age 28. Initially elected senator in 1952, he was re-elected in 1970 with more than 80 per cent of the vote.

Outside his home state, Jackson's major political strength is among leaders of organized labor and party officials in the South and West.

Jackson got the second most votes at the 1972 Democratic National Convention. Though he intends to delay any formal decision for at least a year, he makes no bones about his interest in another presidential race.

After getting up early, the senator shaves, gives his son Peter, 8, a good brushing up, then he's downstairs for breakfast—plus a good morning kiss from his 11-year-old daughter, Anna Marie.

Jackson shares a moment with his wife, the former Helen Hardin, whom he married in 1961 after long years of bachelorhood. He manages to do a bit of tinkering with his 1961 automobile. Then he's off to his Capitol Hill office.

ZANESVILLE, Ohio (AP) — A second man has died as a result of a balloon crash March 31 near Cambridge.

Tom LeBleu, 38, of El Paso, Tex. died Tuesday en route by ambulance from one hospital to another. LeBleu, a registered geologist, was being transferred from Cambridge to University Hospital in Columbus when his condition worsened. The ambulance was diverted to Zanesville, and LeBleu was dead on arrival at Good Samaritan Medical Center.

The pilot, Clyde H. Jacobs of Cambridge, died after the balloon fell into power lines, severing the gondola from the balloon and plunging the passengers to the ground.

GE and GM fight energy critics

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Two of the giants of U.S. industrial life are showing their bruises from the energy controversy and are fighting their critics with unusually blunt accusations.

Says General Electric: "Appliances are not wasteful users of energy as the public has been led to believe." That belief, claim GE executives, is the result of "misinformation ... and downright bad advice," General Motor's outrage is directed at what it feels are smears contained in a booklet distributed by a Senate subcommittee alleging, among other things, that GM destroyed thriving street railway systems.

"General Motors did not destroy street railway systems," the company said in a 67-page reply. "They failed everywhere because they were no longer able to give adequate service."

It adds that the publication, distributed by the Senate subcommittee on Antitrust and Monopoly, "is replete with additional false and deceptive statements."

Neither company is likely to change attitudes immediately, but their claims seem to open a phase of the energy controversy in which opposing views might be better analyzed and the objective truth distilled from them.

One of the popular assumptions about the shortage is that the proliferation of electric appliances, such as toothbrushes and self-cleaning ovens and the like are among the chief culprits.

But, says GE, a self-cleaning over uses only slightly more electricity than a conventional oven.

A statement released here in March said:

"It is essential to recognize that the 300 million major appliances presently in use consume a small fraction of our total energy. Only about 5 per cent of the total energy supply is being used in the home ..."

GM's anger was made known to the subcommittee in the form of a request to suspend distribution of what it terms a false, misleading document. If that document is distributed again, it asked that GM's position accompany it.

The chief causes for GM's anger were assertions that:

—GM aided the Nazis during World War II through its subsidiary, the Adam Opel Co., After the German invasion of Poland, GM claims, it had little effective control of Opel decisions.

—GM helped supress rail transportation.

—GM helped destroy more than 100 surface rail systems, its motive being to promote the sale of its gasoline-using products.

The company's response was delivered to the subcommittee last week. A company spokesman said discussions were continuing with the subcommittee but that, so far as he could learn, no decision on GM's request has been receive.

9-day strike against Kroger comes to end

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Local 390 of the Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Workers Union ended a nine-day strike against the Kroger Co. Wednesday night by narrowly ratifying a three-year contract, 248-240.

All 60 Cincinnati supermarkets remained open during the walkout. A Kroger candy plant remains struck by the production, shipping, sanitation and oilers union.

The pact means a $1.58-an-hour raise over the three years. Base salary for six-year employes is now $4.20.

The union also won the right to respect the picket lines of other unions after 48 hours. The old contract said five days, officials said.

Metais to appear in trumpet recital

William A. Metais will present his senior trumpet recital at 3 p.m. Sunday in Presser Hall at Ohio Northern University, Ada.

Metais, a music major from Washington C.H., will perform compositions by Albinoni, Arutunian, Fitzgerald and a five-trumpet suite by Lo Presti.

He will be accompanied by Edward Zickafoose, Lima. Metais has been active in Concert Band (serving as president), Jazz Band, Brass Ensemble, Pep Band, Wind Ensemble and is vice president of Kappa Kappa Psi, honorary band fraternity. He has studied trumpet under Edwin Williams at ONU.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andre Metais, 330 E. Paint St.

A reception will follow the recital, which is open to the public without charge.

Accident prevention lapses under attack

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An eye safety expert has charged that no qualified safety officials are guiding accident prevention programs in the nation's schools.

James O'Neil of the Society for the Prevention of Blindness told the All-Ohio Safety Congress Wednesday every state and county department of education should be required to hire qualified safety specialists similar to those hired by major corporations.

Fined for fighting

A Washington C.H. man was found guilty in Municipal Court Wednesday of disturbing the peace by fighting. Lewis H. Lute, 27, of 1126 Gregg St., was fined $25 by acting Judge John P. Case after being found guilty. The charge had been filed by city police.

Set strike at Ohio U for Monday

The strike vote came Wednesday night after some 50 student employes ended a one-day walkout at Nelson Commons cafeteria.

Union organizer Mark Stachwell of Columbus said the campus-wide strike "will continue until the university administration recognizes the SWU as a bargaining agent for all student workers or agrees to bargain in good faith."

The union claims to represent 240 of what it says is a total of 1,200 student employes on campus.

The university says there are 2,500 student employes on campus, but the union says it does not include students involved in federally-sponsored work-study programs and those who work less than nine hours a week.

The union claims that 86 per cent of the student employes at the cafeteria stayed off the job, although the cafeteria remained open and most non-student workers reportedly crossed the picket line.

Traffic Court

Two persons forfeited bond Wednesday in Municipal Court when they failed to appear on traffic charges. Acting Judge John P. Case presided.

James M. Kilgore, 24, Greenfield, forfeited $35 on a charge of driving with expired license plates, and Ramond W. Green, 19, Jamestown, $35, on a charge of driving an unsafe vehicle.

Seniors of the Week

CATHY VAN DYKE

By ANN CAMPBELL

"My high school years were a really great experience, especially those at Laurel Oaks. I encourage all underclassmen to consider attending the vocational school," comments Cathy Van Dyke, our first senior of the week. Cathy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Van Dyke, Rt. 1.

After graduation, Cathy plans to work in a beauty shop.

Eileen Nichols, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Nichols, of Bloomingburg, is our second featured senior. Eileen is also taking cosmetology in Laurel Oaks along with American Government. Her hobbies include swimming, dancing, music, and just having fun.

She is a member of VICA, Vocational Industrial Clubs of America, and is secretary-treasurer of her cosmetology class at Laurel Oaks.

Eileen says, "I have greatly enjoyed my years at Miami Trace, especially my years at the vocational school. I'm looking forward to graduation. I'd like to thank Mr. Doyle at Miami Trace for all the assistance he has given me. To the underclassmen I say, 'Get everything out of school that you can, for your experiences will be most rewarding in the future.' "

Eileen plans to continue in the field of cosmetology upon graduation, as a licensed cosmetologist.

Bubbly, and bouncy Jeanette Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Anderson, Rt. 1, Mount Sterling, is our last featured senior this week, Jeanette has been a valuable asset to this year's music department. She had a major role as "Flora" in our musical production of "No, No Nanette", in addition to being an outstanding alto in the Folksingers.

Jeanette is a horse-lover and lists riding as a favorite hobby. She also enjoys playing softball and is on the girls' softball team at Miami Trace, and is in a softball league at London.

JEANETTE ANDERSON

When asked to comment on her past experiences at Trace, Jeanette said, "I can't believe they're over. I will miss the good times but will be glad to graduate."

Although unsure of her career, Jeanette is going to Ohio State. Needless to say, Ohio State will be very lucky in getting such a vivacious young lady.

National Library Week set at MT

By SUSAN THACKER

The slogans for National Library Week (April 21-27) this year are "Grow with Books" and "Get It All Together with Books." Miss Lida Grace Wissler, Miami Trace librarian, would like to encourage all students to do just that. The selection found in the library is very good, and all students should find something to interest them.

National Library Week is an annual event that was established to achieve three basic goals: to inspire, to inform, and to involve. Reading is the gateway to all these things and many more. Through reading one can be shown places he could never imagine on his own. He can never be bored if he lets books excite and challenge him.

So during National Library Week come in and choose a book. Investigate the new cassettes and see a new side of life.

Penalties scheduled for excessive noise

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — The Mansfield City Council has set up misdemeanor penalties for an anti-noise ordinance setting sound limits for trucks, buses, cars and motorcycles.

Sponsor Robert Boling said the ordinance is for "the cowboys — the guys racing and revving up their engines on the streets."

FHA week observed

By BECKY DAVIS

Miami Trace's chapter of Future Homemakers of America, like other chapters throughout the United States, observed National FHA week April 1-5. Each chapter decides what different things it will do each day, and it may choose different things each year.

This year Monday was New Members Day. Each girl in her first year wore a sign saying, "I'm an F.H.A.'er," with her name.

On Tuesday, Mr. Guy Foster, district superintendent, talked with representatives from the club on WCHO radio. He asked about several different things having to do with FHA.

Honor the Teachers Day was Wednesday, and each teacher received an apple. On Thursday the club made cookies for the teachers' lounges.

Friday was Honor the Seniors Day. The senior girls received flowers to wear all day, since this is their last year in FHA.

National FHA week this year was a big success, thanks to the girls who put in their free time working on it and to the teachers for their cooperation.

357 families located in temporary housing

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — The federal disaster Assistance Administration says a total of 357 families of the 2,100 left homeless by the April 3 tornadoes have been located in temporary housing.

The administration's Wright-Patterson Air Force Base field office said Wednesday it will take an estimated $11 million in federal funds to provide relief to the 2,100 families.

Committee to back State Issue No. 2

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Newspaper publisher and former state Rep. E. W. Lampson has announced the organization of a committee to back Issue 2 on the May ballot.

Lampson said the objective of Issue 2 is "to remove an inequitable requirement that the auditor and one commissioner of each county wait two years longer than all other county officials to receive cost of living adjustments."

The Jefferson Gazette publisher said the issue does not provide for salary increases, raising taxes or enabling county officials to vote themselves pay raises.

Garvey cracks two home runs

Los Angeles powders Reds, 14-1

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers stunned the Cincinnati Reds with a walloping 14-1 win Wednesday night to sweep their two-game series and continue to dominate the National League Western Division.

"I don't think they'd better get too gay," said Reds Manager George "Sparky" Anderson. It's still early."

"I'm happy to win these two games and sneak out of town before those guys get hot," said Dodger first baseman Steve Garvey, who belted two home runs in the contest, collecting four runs batted in.

"The Western Division is like an old cowboy movie," Garvey said. "Someone will be waiting in the bushes to ambush us pretty soon. You can take your pick in this division who that someone will be. We've had as much trouble with San Diego as we have with Cincinnati."

Garvey hit his first homer in the seventh to make it a 3-1 ball game. Jim Wynn followed with a homer with two on to chase loser Roger Nelson.

"I think it came at a very good time," said Wynn, acquired from Houston. "It put the icing on the cake and made the pitcher (Doug Rau) and the team relax."

Dodger Manager Walter Alston remained low-keyed. "It's nice to get started well, but it doesn't prove anything. We still have to play all 62 games," he said.

It was the fourth straight victory for the Dodgers who are 9-3 on the young season, leading the division by two games.

Rau, who previously pitched only one-third of an inning, was lifted for a pinch hitter in the eighth by Alston. "I didn't want to take the chance of hurting him," Alston said.

Rau gave up only three hits, one a home run to George Foster, his first of the season. Pete Rose singled in the first inning for his 17th hit in 11 games.

Los Angeles scored two runs in the third inning and four each in the seventh, eighth and ninth.

Johnny Bench, who went hitless in three attempts, suggested Phil Gagliano hit for him in the last inning. Bench has a bad cold, said Anderson.

Hillsboro tatoos Lions, 11-7

By LARRY WATTS
Record-Herald Sports Editor

Washington Senior High's outfield had a busy day Wednesday afternoon. Hillsboro's batters opened their guns full blast and riddled Lion hurler Mark Johnson for 11 hits and 11 runs in handing the Blue Lions a 11-7 defeat.

For the first four innings, the two squads traded the lead back and fourth. Finally, the Indians erupted for five quick runs in the sixth inning to regain the edge for the final time.

Playing right field was like being exposed to the bright lights of an oncoming car. Time and again, routine fly balls kept falling in for hits because the right fielders were losing the ball in the sun.

Although he struck out 13 batters, Indian pitcher Bob Seeling never retired the Lion batters in order. Seeling always had at least one runner on base, as he walked eight and his fielders committed seven errors and two passed balls.

Johnson worked in streaks. At one time, he retired eight consecutive batters. In his six innings, Johnson struck out five and walked one.

Both teams opened the first inning with two runs. The Indians' Dennis Wharton singled and scored on a triple by shortstop Larry Gibbs. Gibbs crossed the plate when Seeling doubled into the sun field.

Washington quickly retaliated, as Johnson opened the Lions' half of the first with a triple into right-center. Third baseman Craig Shaffer drew a walk and stole second. When Shaffer stole second, Indian catcher Kevin Bailey tossed the ball into center field, allowing Johnson to score and bringing Shaffer to third. Shaffer then scored on a wild pitch.

In the bottom of the second, the Lions took a 3-2 lead. Second baseman Herb Bonner was safe on an error and moved to second on Leonard Bick's sacrifice. After regaining new life when his pop foul was dropped, Johnson slammed a triple into deep right field, scoring Bonner.

Hillsboro went back into the driver's seat in the third frame. The Indians sent four runs across the plate, as the big blow came on a two-run double by Brent Zink.

Lion first baseman Allan Coppock put on a one-man show to score one run in the bottom of the third. Coppock reached second on a two base throwing error and proceeded to score on two wild pitches.

Washington went back on top, 7-6, in the fourth. With one out, Johnson walked and stole second. Shaffer walked and both runners advanced on a passed ball. Coppock's double brought Johnson and Shaffer home. After Coppock advanced to third on a wild pitch, Duke Willis' suicide squeeze bunt brought him in.

The Lions' enjoyment was only short-lived, as the Indians came up with five runs in the sixth. Singles by Steve Coy, Zink and Mike McGinnes tied the score. Wharton was safe on a sacrifice bunt, as Zink scored with the deciding run. Gibbs doubled to score both McGinnes and Wharton. Seeling padded his lead by bringing Gibbs in to score with a single.

Hillsboro remains with a perfect 4-0 record for the season. All four victories have been in the South Central Ohio League.

The Lions, now 1-4 for the year and 1-2 in the SCOL, travel to Wilmington tonight.

Perry hurls 15, Brewers beat Tribe in 16th

By The Associated Press

After 15 innings of Gaylord Perry, the Milwaukee Brewers were happy to see someone else. They saw Ken Sanders—but they didn't see him very long.

With Cleveland's ace out of the game at last, Bob Coluccio immediately seized advantage of the situation and hit a home run that carried the Brewers to a 16-inning, 5-4 victory Wednesday night.

"Perry had a good fastball and slider and an awful lot of guts," said Coluccio. "That was the best I've seen him. When a guy 35-years-old throws that kind of stuff for 15 innings, that's super."

Although pitching almost two complete games, Perry didn't want out. "I wanted to stay in," said the Indians' star. "I could have gone more."

Elsewhere in the American League, the Boston Red Sox nipped the New York Yankees 4-3; the Baltimore Orioles beat the Detroit Tigers 6-1; the Texas Rangers defeated the Kansas City Royals 4-2; the Chicago White Sox turned back the Oakland A's 5-3 and the California Angels trimmed the Minnesota Twins 5-3.

Coluccio not only delivered the game-winning hit on a 3-1 pitch leading off the 16th inning, he also broke up Perry's no-hit bid earlier.

Despite the sour luck, Perry was pretty content with his night's work.

"I was mixing a fastball and a hard slider," he said. "The hard slider was rising and the fastball was sinking."

Red Sox 4, Yankees 3

Dobson lost his no-hit bid and shutout when Carl Yastrzemski hit a home run in the seventh inning, when the Red Sox tied the game 2-2.

"I was throwing fastballs inside to the left-handed hitters all day," said Dobson. "Yastrzemski hit a high fastball that I got too far over the plate. I wouldn't have thrown that pitch with a man on base."

Orioles 6, Tigers 1

Baltimore jumped on Woodie Fryman for five runs in the first inning and Jim Palmer fired a five-hitter to lead the Orioles to victory over Detroit.

Fryman, 0-2, walked Bobby Grich and balked him to second to begin the outburst. Designated hitter Tommy Davis followed with a run-scoring single, then rookie Jim Fuller smashed a two-run homer, his first of the season.

Bill Slayback replaced Fryman and was greeted by a single by Mark Belanger, who drove in the fifth Baltimore run.

Rangers 4, Royals 2

Jeff Burroughs' tie-breaking double in a three-run eighth inning carried Texas over Kansas City.

Pinch-hitter Lenny Randle led off the eighth with a single and reached third when pitcher Gene Garber fielded Dave Nelson's bunt and threw the ball wildly past first base.

White Sox 5, A's 3

Brian Downing's two-run homer capped a three-run, eighth inning for Chicago that carried the White Sox past Oakland.

Angels 5, Twins 3

Bob Oliver hit two home runs, then shortstop Sergio Ferrer's error gave California the tie-breaking run in a two-run seventh that carried the Angels over Minnesota.

Mitterwald's blasts batter Bucs

By The Associated Press

They call Chicago the Windy City—and the hurricane the Pittsburgh Pirates ran into was stirred up by the Cubs' George Mitterwald.

He hit three home runs Wednesday, one of them a grand-slammer, and drove in eight runs as Chicago's Cubs blew out the Bucs 18-9.

"I heard about this wind in Wrigley Field, but I didn't know it could be so beautiful," said Mitterwald, who came to Chicago in an off-season deal with the Minnesota Twins.

In Wednesday's other National League games, Montreal whipped the New York Mets 7-4, Philadelphia beat St. Louis 12-5, Houston downed San Francisco 3-2 and San Diego defeated Atlanta 6-1.

Mitterwald hit his bases-loaded bomb in the first inning, smacked a homer with two men on in the third and socked one with the bases empty in the sixth.

In the eighth, Mitterwald doubled and, when got back to the dugout, the rest of the Cubs zinged him for not hitting a fourth homer.

"If I'd hit a fourth one, I would have fainted," he grinned.

He also got a run batted in with a bases-loaded walk in the fourth inning. "I wanted to try for another homer, but when the count went to 3-0, I was given the take sign," Mitterwald said. "So I got a walk and still produced a run."

Rick Monday, Jerry Morales and Bill Madlock also homered for the Cubs, whose first 10 runs came off Pittsburgh starter Jerry Reuss. Willie Stargell, Richie Hebner and Richie Zisk homered for the Pirates.

Expos 7, Mets 4

"I was kind of excited about getting my first major league homer here," said Barry Foote—and so were the rest of the Expos. It came at a most convenient time, leading off the bottom of the seventh inning, breaking a tie and propelling Montreal past the staggering Mets, who have now lost six straight games.

Bob Bailey also homered and Tim Foli drove in three runs for the Expos. Steve Rogers went the route, giving up six hits. Two of them accounted for all the Mets' runs, a pair of homers by Dave Schneck.

Phils 12, Cards 5

Mike Anderson had four hits and Bill Robinson three in Philadelphia's' throttling of St. Louis, the Phillies' sixth straight victory, their best winning streak in four years.

"This is great," said Anderson, who enjoyed his first 4-for-4 game in the majors. "Everybody's sharing the load. With a man in scoring position, if you don't do the job the next guy will."

"The competition makes us all pull a little harder," Robinson agreed.

Astros 3, Giants 2

Ollie Brown's walk, a wild pitch by San Francisco's John D'Acquisto and Dave Kingman's wild throw on Bob Watson's sacrifice bunt gave the Astros the winning run in the seventh inning.

"I wanted to make him field it." Watson said of Kingman. "That was the idea. I think it's the first time I ever bunted against the club."

Padres 6, Braves 1

John Grubb and Fred Kendall each drilled two-run singles in the third inning and Dave Winfield homered in the fifth to lead San Diego past Atlanta.

Jim McAndrew withstood 10 hits by the Braves, four of them by Ralph Garr. "He hit everything I threw up there," said the Padres' pitcher. "Fastball, curveball, forkball...I threw everything at him but the telephone book."

Panthers clip Eagles in extra innings, 6-5

Madison Plains pitcher Rick Forest only walked one Panther, but the one walk proved to be very costly when Miami Trace defeated the Eagles 6-5 in eight innings.

Forest walked pinch-hitter Dan Jones in the top of the eighth frame. Phil Skinner sacrificed Jones to second. Jones took third on a passed ball and scored the winning run on Forest's wild pitch.

The Eagles threatened in the bottom of the eighth, as their first two batters reached base. However, Panther pitcher Randy Reiber managed to fight his way out of trouble by forcing one runner at third and striking out the next two batters.

Reiber turned in another sharp pitching performance, as he struck out six batters in four innings of relief work. Reiber has now struck out 20 batters in 14 innings of pitching in the South Central Ohio League.

Both pitchers slammed key home runs for their squads. Reiber blasted a two-run shot in the fourth, as the Panthers came back to tie the score at 4-4. In the bottm of the seventh, Forest hit a solo shot to send the game into extra innings.

The Panthers are now 3-4 for the season and 3-0 in the SCOL. Tonight, the Panthers will be visiting Circleville.

Lions lose match in sudden death

Washington Senior High's golfers lost a tough match at the Washington Country Club, as Hillsboro defeated the Lions by one stroke in a sudden death playoff.

Both teams finished with team rounds of 182. The Lions sent sophomore Dan Dean back onto the course, while the Indians' representative was Mike Sharkey. Sharkey parred the first hole and Dean shot a bogey to end the match.

Dean was the top medalist for the match, as he shot a 41. David Butterfield carded a 46, while Mike Stanforth and David Garringer had a 47 and 48, respectively.

Steve Thompson's 44 was high for Hillsboro. Mike and Kim Sharkey, Steve Newby and Brian Landrum each shot 46's.

Washington is now 2-4 for the season. The Lions next match will be at Circleville on Friday.

Tigers trounce Lion jayvees

After a nine-run eruption in the third inning, when they sent 14 batters to the plate, the Circleville reserves blasted the Washington C.H. Jayvees 16-5, Wednesday.

Only one extra base hit, a triple by pitcher Brian McGlone, was collected by the Tigers; but they added to that 10 singles and numerous bases on balls off of Lion pitching.

The game was tied 4-4 going into the bottom of the third inning when Circleville unloaded and put the game out of reach. The winner was McGlone, pitching six innings, striking out seven and walking only one. The loser was David Van Dyke.

The Lions collected just six hits, none of which were for extra bases.

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

When I first met Peter Nicastro about 15 years ago, he was an award-winning specialist on portaiture with a studio in Garfield, a small New Jersey town, which earned him an enviable national reputation in the studio portrait field.

After that, we met periodically at professional photography conventions where he continued to win awards and had branched out into photographic lecturing, teaching and writing.

Along the way he had also become a globe-girdling photographer recording travel scenics and native personalities in 51 countries. The pictures were exhibited and brought international notice.

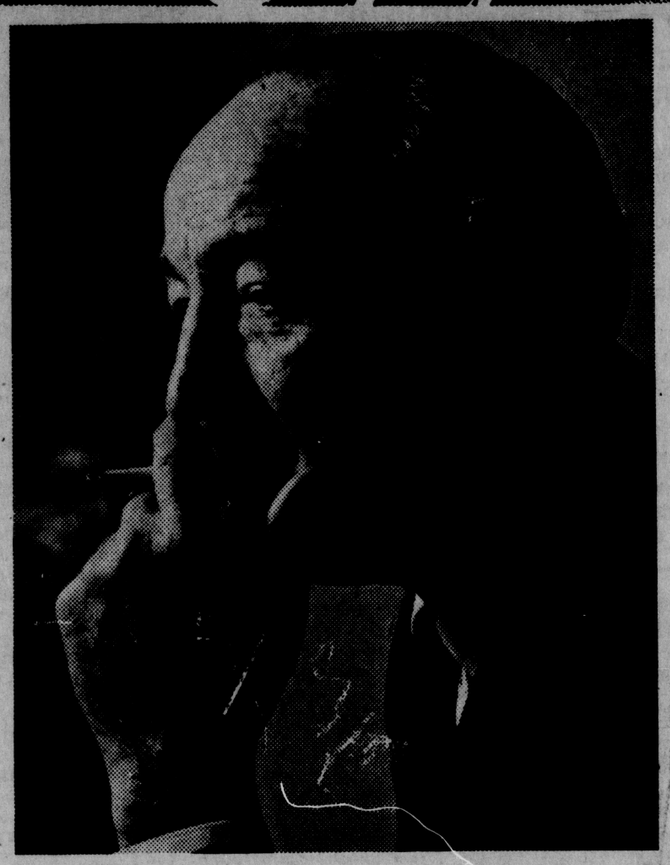
Two years ago I met Nicastro in an exhibition hall in Cologne, Germany, at Photokina, the world's largest photo fair. Did you ever meet someone who was irrespressibly joyful and bubbling with excitement when describing his work? Well, that's Peter Nicastro talking photography or his part in it.

I gathered that lecturing and teaching portraiture had taken up a greater share of his time in recent years but that he felt there had to be a better way for one man to reach a wider audience than one group at one place at one time.

"I believe I've found that better way!" he added. "I've been working for the past year on a modern audio-visual teaching system. It'll consist of a series of slides illustrating tape-recorded lessons and supplemented by a printed workbook for permanent reference.

"It's a way to share the techniques I've been teaching fellow professionals and students for many years. It's a system whereby one recording can reach hundreds of individuals or groups in hundreds of cities at the same time — or at any place or time convenient for any audience.

"I think it's a breakthrough in portrait instruction. . . a teaching method that's not been done before."



PROFILE LIGHTING for a dramatic effect is an example of portraiture by Peter Nicastro of Garfield, N.J. His studio experience and years of teaching are the basis for a new audio-visual self-learning course in basic portrait lighting which combines slides, tape cassette lessons and a studybook so that teaching can be seen, heard and referred to.

THAT BRINGS US to the present chapter of the story. I had another reunion with Nicastro recently and he was as exuberant and spirited as ever but this time like a proud father with a new baby. And that's practically what it was.

Three years of work have produced a tangible result, an audio-visual, self-learning study course: "The Dynamics of Light in Portrait Photography" by Peter A. Nicastro for Photography Learning Systems, Garfield, N.J.

"Here it is," he said. "Although when I saw you in 1972 in Photokina, I had no idea of how many technical complications lay ahead of me. The basic concept of teaching by combining slides with explanatory tape recordings plus a studybook for reference seemed simple enough.

But production of the completed package required the coordinated skills of a great many friends who are also engineers, sound technicians, educators, script writers, editors and printers. With their guidance and expertise, the production came through.

"It's a package of photo education. It's topic is basic lighting in portraiture. Its students can be individuals or groups. They can study anywhere they can set up a tape recorder and a slide projector and screen. The groups can be camera clubs; in neighborhood or hobby centers; or photo classes in high schools, colleges or adult education facilities.

"Teaching portrait lighting by this audio-visual approach is a first of its kind," Nicastro reported. "It's been in operation the past few months and the reports have been good. Now meet the 'baby.' "

THE SELF-LEARNING course consists of a 221-page studybook and 12 separate units called "modules." The modules, numbered 1 through 12, have been arranged to develop orderly learning continuity and, like good teaching in general, should be studied in sequence.

Each module contains a hi-fidelity tape cassette on which is recorded the progressive lessons narrated by Nicastro himself and which range from 14 to 31 minutes in duration. Each module also contains between 33 and 51 slides to illustrate the cassette tape.

The slides are synchronized with the tape text and are advanced when an audible signal is heard.

The supplementary studybook reviews the material covered by the tapes and slides, and adds suggested work that will reinforce the lessons by practical application.

Needless to say, success in learning depends greatly on a student's conscientious attention to the teaching and how much he or she gets involved in the suggested homework.

Quarterly dividend set by Owen-Illinois

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — The board of directors of Owens-Illinois Inc., has announced a quarterly dividend of 40 cents a common share payable to shareholders of record on May 10.

The board said Wednesday it was the third consecutive year to record an increase in the common share dividend.

Lima State case reviews said needed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Lima State Hospital patients under observation after criminal offenses, must have periodic reviews of their cases, the Ohio Supreme Court has ruled.

In a case involving a Cincinnati man, the court said Wednesday that patients may be held for a "reasonable amount of time," then some disposition must be made of their cases.

The court said if it has been determined that a person cannot be restored to reason, he must be given full consideration for commitment to a mental hospital.

The ruling was in a suit filed by Robert L. Burton, who was charged in Hamilton County Common Pleas Court Aug. 2, 1962, with passing bad checks.

Nine years later, Burton filed an appeal in Allen County asking to be released from Lima State.

The court ruled Burton still was not capable of standing trial and referred the case to the Allen County Probate Court.

The probate court, finding it "unlikely" Burton would ever be able to stand trial, ordered that he be committed to the Dayton Mental Health Center.

Under Ohio law, persons convicted of sex offenses or other crimes, or thought to be mentally incompetent, may be sent to Lima State for observation before sentencing.

Pregnancy benefits ruled on by court

ST. MARYS, Ohio (AP) — The 3rd District Court of Appeals in Allen County has ruled that female employes at the St. Marys Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. are eligible for 52 weeks of disability benefits for pregnancy.

The court Wednesday issued a ruling supporting an arbitrator's decision which extended the benefits beyond a six weeks' limitation in the disability contract. The court said once the company and union decided to submit to binding arbitration, that decision would hold.

Inventors try heating home with manure

NORTH BRANFORD, Conn. (AP) — Home heating from a manure pile is the ultimate goal of a simple tank converter fashioned by Alton Eliason and Joseph Pelliccio.

Two home-fuel tanks connected by pipes already are producing enough methane gas to heat Eliason's greenhouse, they say.

When the converter is fully operational it will use manure from Eliason's chickens plus dead leaves and plants from the greenhouse to produce gas.

"The residue is even richer than when it went in and will make excellent fertilizer for the greenhouse," Eliason said.

With success and a sufficient supply of chicken manure the two hope to create a larger converter and switch the oil-heating system of Eliason's home to methane gas next winter.

"The beauty of the thing is its cost," Eliason said. The existing converter would cost between $200 and $300 to build, he said, and the gas-making ingredients cost little, if anything.

Home production of methane from animal waste is growing in popularity throughout the country because of the fuel shortage.

Scenic designation set for state river

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Department of Natural Resources has announced the eighth Ohio river to be proposed for scenic designation.

The section of the upper Cuyahoga River is in Geagua and Portage counties and begins at River Park near Burton, ending downstream at the State Route 14 bridge crossing north of Lake Rockwell, the agency said Wednesday.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ♥	Pass	1 NT	2 NT
Pass	3 ♣	Pass	5 ♣

Opening lead - king of hearts.

The light opening bid has much to be said in its favor, but there are times when the bid boomerangs and causes its user endless grief.

Consider this deal from a team match where, at the first table, South got to five clubs after East opened the bidding with a heart. The two notrump bid by North was of the unusual notrump variety and announced a distributional hand with great length in both minor suits.

West led the king and another heart and East continued with a heart, ruffed in dummy. Declarer thus learned that East had a six-card suit, and was of course already aware that East's opening bid was rather lacking in substance.

This knowledge had a great bearing on the problem of how to play the clubs so as to avoid a trump loser, which was the crux of the hand. There was no way of making the contract if East had the guarded king of clubs, so declarer assumed that West had that card.

Accordingly, South played a diamond to the king and led the jack of clubs (not the two, which would ordinarily rank as the better play). West covered with the king, taken by the ace.

The question that now arose was whether East had started with a singleton club, and declarer rightly decided that East would not have opened the bidding without that distributional asset.

South therefore ruffed a diamond, led a club, and finessed the nine. As a result, he made five clubs.

At the other table, where the declarer at the same contract did not have the benefit of an opening bid by East, South played the clubs more normally and went down one.

The Crusty, Dry Nose

I have a hole in the septum of my nose. My nose becomes crusty and dried and I can barely get any breath through it. Can anything be done about it?

Mr. T.I. Vt.

Dear Mr. I.: The nasal septum is the wall that separates one side of the nose from the other. The front part of it is composed of cartilage; the back is a thin bone.

A hole, or perforation, through the septum may be the result of surgery, injury as a result of chronic nose picking, or exposure to chemical fumes.

Young people who have been sniffing cocaine are now sadly paying this additional penalty for their ill-advised habit.

Surgery for the repair of the septum has been tried. Unfortunately, the results are not always gratifying. The perforation may return, and get even larger.

Continued lubrication with simple mineral oil softens the crust and makes the condition more bearable. Steam inhalations may be soothing. There are also a number of excellent techniques that can be used by the ear, nose and throat specialist. This should make you more comfortable.

My 14-year-old daughter has a trichomona of the vagina. Isn't this most unusual in a young unmarried child?

Mrs. M.D.V. S.C.

Dear Mrs. V.: Trichomonas vaginalis is a common infection that is more annoying than serious. It occurs far more often in adults than in children. Yet children can become infected with the protozoan organism; trichomonas vaginalis.

It sometimes spreads through camps and schools when rigid rules of cleanliness are not observed. Frequent bathing and individual towels can prevent its spread.

There now are a number of excellent drugs which can control this condition.

Only recently, greater attention has been paid to the fact that husbands may harbor the protozoa on their skin, and thus continue to re-infect their wives.

This should be considered in cases of adult infection.

Minor mishaps reported

A hitskip accident and a damaged street sign were reported by city police overnight, while the Fayette County Sheriff's Department listed a minor incident yesterday involving a broken drive-shaft.

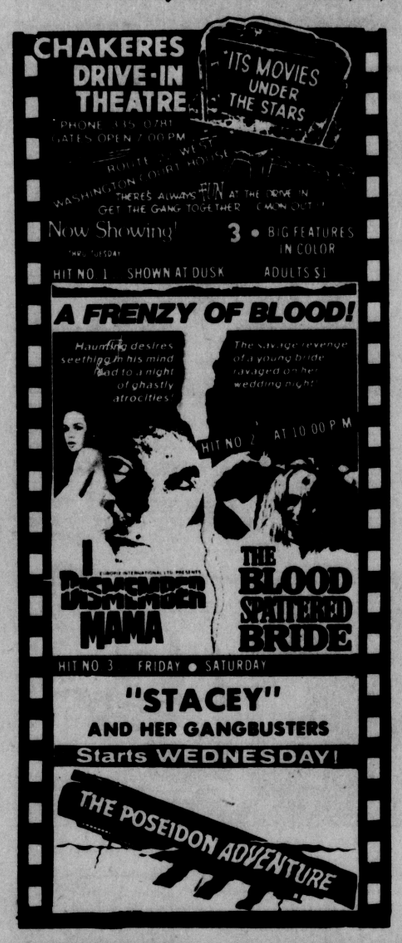
A car driven by Karen L. Wheeler, 25, of 1062 Lewis St., ran off N. North Street and onto the curb where it hit a street marker Wednesday. The incident occurred near the Paint Street intersection.

The drive-shaft on a semi truck, driven by Wiley S. Hansen, 54, Zanesville, broke at 3:45 p.m. yesterday while Hanson was traveling on U.S. 35, 100 feet southeast of Palmer Road.

A car driven by Larry D. Sholler, 16, Rt. 2, which was following the semi, ran over the drive-shaft and was damaged slightly, sheriff's deputies reported.



Tire fire causes damage to truck

When semi driver, Gerald Peters, 41, Chillicothe, stopped for the traffic light at the intersection of U.S. 35 and Palmer Road at 2:55 p.m. Wednesday, he saw and smelled smoke coming from his rear tires.

The Washington C.H. Fire Department was summoned to the scene and doused the burning rear tires with water.

Sheriff's Sgt. Bill Crooks said the fire was caused by an overheated brake. The semi belong to Chef's Supply Inc., Chillicothe. Damage was estimated at $50.

Appeals board OKs 2 variances, denies 1

Two variances were granted and a third denied by the Washington C.H. Zoning Board of Appeals at its regular meeting Wednesday night in the City Office Building.

Glenn Tatman, city inspector, said the city zoners granted variances to the United Farm Agency, of Akron, which is establishing a real estate office in Washington C.H., to erect two signs, but turned down a request for the erection of a third sign.

Robert E. Lewis, a Fayette County real estate broker and developer, applied for the variances for Gordon West, a representative of the United Farm Agency. Lewis owns the property located at 1013 Clinton Avenue and is leasing it to the Akron real estate firm.

The board granted the applicant variances to erect a 1-by-2 foot sign in the front window of the building and a 5-by-8 foot unlighted sign to be placed flush against the west wall of the building.

However, the board turned down the applicant's request to erect a 3-by-4 foot neon sign in the front yard of the property.

The real estate firm was granted permission recently by the City Zoning Board of Appeals to establish an office in the vacant brick building on Clinton Avenue. But. the firm had neglected to mention erecting signs at the earlier meeting.
